REPUBLICANS IN RETREAT ON INFLATION, WHITE HOUSE TURNS DOWN COMPROMISE

MRS. JUDD HELD INSANE; SAVED FROM GALLOWS

Jury's Verdict Automatically Suspends Execution of Arizona Slayer, Which Was Set for Friday.

CROWD IN COURT CHEERS DECISION

She Was Convicted of Murder of Agnes Anne Leroi, One of Two Women She Admitted Killing.

By the Associated Press.

FLORENCE, Ariz., April 22.—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd tonight was adjudged insane by a Superior Court jury, automatically suspending her sentence to death on the gallows for the murder of Agnes Anne Leroi. The verdict by a vote of nine to three, was returned about two hours after the jury began deliberation.

Mrs. Judd had been scheduled to be hanged next Friday. Under the verdict, she will be committed to an asylum for the mentally incompetent.

The crowded courtroom greeted the verdict with cheers.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, the 28-year-old woman's elderly parents, embraced and kissed her. She did not return the caresses. Calmly she walked out of the room between two matrons, her face expressionless. She kept her eyes to the front.

Leaves From Side Exit.

She had said not a word when the warden's motor car whisked her away from a side exit of the court house, back to her prison cell, to prepare for her transfer to the asylum in Phoenix. There she will be confined until such time, if ever, her sanity is adjudged to have been regained.

County Attorney Will C. Truman declined an offer of the court to have the jurors polled, and thanked them for their quick return of a verdict. "The verdict is entirely satisfactory to the state," he said.

The jurors were instructed by Judge E. L. Green they were to find Mrs. Judd insane if the evidence showed she "has not at the present time, from defects of her mental faculties, sufficient intelligence to understand the nature of the proceedings against her, what she was tried for, the purpose of her punishment, the impending fate which awaits her, and sufficient understanding to know any facts which might exist which would make her punishment unjust or unlawful, and sufficient intelligence to convey such information to her attorneys, or the court."

The jurors were instructed also, over protests of Mrs. Judd's counsel that they could not allow any consideration of her guilt or innocence to enter into their deliberations.

Final Arguments to Jury.

Mrs. Judd, confessed slayer of her two friends, Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, sat nervously through the long final arguments. Her counsel asked the jury to give her "the privilege of asking forgiveness of her God—with a sane mind."

"Give her the opportunity," they pleaded, "to meet death, if death must come, with a clear brain."

Chief defense counsel O. V. Willson told the jury:

"I am not appealing for your sympathy—I am appealing to your red-blooded manhood." He said alienists who had testified Mrs. Judd was insane contributed their services to "keep this State from blackening its name by hanging another woman."

Speaking for the State, County Attorney Will C. Truman demanded of the jurors to bear in mind they were "not sitting as a court of justice, but as a board to consider the mentality of this individual."

"There is no one here," said Truman, "who has more sympathy for this woman than I. But that must not enter into your consideration. The only question to be decided is whether Winnie Ruth Judd is sane or insane, under the definition laid down by the law."

Assistant County Attorney Charles Reed pictured Mrs. Judd as an "exceptionally clever woman, who attempts to escape punishment under the cloak of insanity."

"She has been aided in that," he said, "by marriage for nine years to a physician, a mental expert—Dr. William C. Judd."

The jury had listened for more than a week to testimony as to Mrs. Judd's mental condition.

AFTER 109 DAYS OF EFFORT LEGISLATURE NEARS END WITH FEW ELECTION PLEDGES KEPT 200 Bills Passed but Little Is Accomplished Toward Tax Relief or Progressive Reorganization of Government.

By BOYD F. CARROLL,
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—Plans of Senate and House leaders to bring the prolonged session of the 1933 Legislature to a close tomorrow were abandoned late tonight, after deadlocks developed over adoption of Conference Committee reports on several of the major appropriation bills.

Both Houses, adjourned until Monday morning. Leaders hope to complete consideration of the fund bills and to agree on adjournment by Monday night.

A proposal to keep both Houses working most of tonight, in an effort to iron out differences on appropriations, was discarded when Senate members, weary after an all-day grind, gained adoption of a motion to adjourn until Monday morning. It was done after word was received from the House of rejection of a conference committee report in the $5,000,000 civil list appropriation bill which threw the bill back in another joint conference.

The House then followed with an adjournment until Monday morning. A joint conference committee on 10 of the appropriation bills will work tomorrow, in an effort to adjust differences on the bill before Monday morning.

The General Assembly is dragging its way toward sine die adjournment, after 109 days of legislative effort which resulted in passage of nearly 200 bills but fulfillment of few of the pre-election promises of relief for taxpayers and progressive reorganization of the State and local governments.

The two houses have been struggling with the appropriation bills in the last two weeks, in an effort to balance the State's budget for the biennial period of 1933 and 1934, and to bring the authorized general revenue expenditures within the anticipated revenue collections.

$135,625,000 in Appropriations.

The bills carry about $135,625,000 in appropriations for all activities of the State government during the biennial period. Of this amount about $21,385,000 represents appropriations against general revenue, including the one-third of such revenue set aside for apportionment to the public schools. The general revenue fund largely is derived from direct taxation.

The remaining $114,240,000 represents appropriations against proceeds of special levies and various fees, earnings and special funds. The items cover operations of State departments and institutions which are chargeable to their earnings and fees, road funds, interest on and retirement of State bonds and expenditures from special levies. Most of the fund and fee appropriations are conditional on the departments for which they are made earning the amounts authorized to be expended.

General revenue appropriations approved by the House exceeded the anticipated collections for the two years by nearly $4,000,000 Drastic reductions made by the Senate when it received the bills virtually eliminated the over-appropriations and Gov. Park will have little trimming to do to bring the authorizations within the revenue estimates.

While the cuts by the Senate apparently bring the budget within reasonable distance of balancing, legislative leaders think a special session may be necessary next fall to consider revenue legislation, due to falling revenues and the mounting percentage of non-payment of taxes. Gov. Park has declined to say whether he will call an extra session.

Some Economies Effected.

The 1933 Legislature, heavily Democratic in both branches, began its session last January with optimistic forecasts by its leaders of a session of not more than 70 days, which would enact all of the legislation necessary to carry out campaign promises of economy in government, tax reduction, elimination of useless departments and employes and all other reforms necessary for the "new deal."

Much time has elapsed and many bills have been passed. Most of the Governor's program of departmental consolidations—which reorganizes some departments and changes the names of others—has been adopted. Some economies in the State and local government have been effected, and penalties have been modified for persons owing delinquent taxes, but taxes have not been reduced. The economies effected only offset revenue losses due to business conditions. No provision has been made for permanent reduction of State government operating costs.

BRYAN SAULPAUGH, AUTO RACER, KILLED AT OAKLAND

Racing Car Turns Over Three Times When Control Is Lost; Formerly of Rick Island, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

The automobile turned over three times after he apparently lost control in coming around the south turn. Saulpaugh was thrown 15 feet away and was dead before he could be rushed to a hospital.

Formerly the holder of several track records, Saulpaugh was practicing for the 150-mile race here tomorrow. He was driving a racer that had ben wrecked on New Year's day in 1932, but had been rebuilt. He was to have left here Monday for the Reading, Pa., races April 30, and was later scheduled to race at Woodridge, N. J., and Indianapolis.

BANK ROBBERS DISARM TWO OFFICERS, KIDNAP ANOTHER

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, April 22. — Two men sought in a bank robbery today disarmed two detectives who sought to capture them, used the detectives as shields as they shot at a third, then escaped and later beat and kidnaped a State patrolman when he attempted to place them under arrest.

The kidnaped patrolman was E. W. Reith. Witnesses said one of the robbers grabbed him when he approached their car, beat and kicked him and then took him into their machine and drove away.

The robbers' automobile hit a tree and 10 motorcycle officers descended on them. They offered no resistance. In the meantime, Patrolman Reith was discovered near Belair, Md., where he had been thrown from the robbers' automobile. He was uninjured.

ROOSEVELT, MACDONALD GO OVER MAIN WORLD ISSUES

Canvass Problems Confronting Economic Conference, Then Turn Them Over to Experts for Work on Details.

TO MAKE CRUISE ON POTOMAC TODAY

Apparently in Accord on Crucial Nature of Currency Question, With Ends Sought Much in Common.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—While their expert advisers struggle with the details of the world economic and financial problems confronting them, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain tomorrow will cruise down the Potomac for a further conference.

At the White House yesterday, the President and his guest for nearly two hours canvassed "the main problems of the world economic conference" to be held soon in London—primarily embracing stabilization of world currencies.

Then they instructed their advisers present to work through the day and tomorrow on relating the multiple problems, so the meeting of statesmen can resume Monday to agree on a course of action.

Joint Statement Issued.

In a joint statement, issued at the executive mansion through the afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. MacDonald said:

"The main problems of the world economic conference were reviewed and a decision was reached that these should be allocated in the first instance to the experts, who would commence their discussions this afternoon and continue them tomorrow."

The brief joint declaration, the first to come from the meeting between the President and the British Prime Minister, simply stated in the beginning that "a preliminary discussion was held this forenoon between the President and the Prime Minister, at which the following were present:

"President Roosevelt, Prime Minister MacDonald, Secretary Hull, Ambassador Lindsay, Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State; Chairman Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Herbert Feis, economic adviser of the State Department; William C. Bullitt, special assistant to the Secretary of State; Sir Robert Van Sittart, Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, James Barlow and Arnold E. Overton."

Their Ends in Common.

That Roosevelt and MacDonald found themselves in accord on the crucial nature of the currency question was clear tonight. Their preliminary exploration took place across a table in the oval room of the White House.

Each turning now and again to the advisory staffs headed by Secretary of State Hull and Ambassador Lindsay, it was evident that the ends sought by both had much in common. It had been asserted a while earlier in official United States circles that unsettlement of world currencies was a factor for trade disorders which would be attacked in the President's discussions with MacDonald, Premier Herriot of France and others coming to Washington.

One possible means for stabilization mentioned was a reduction of the gold percentage on which national currencies have been based, thereby making more money possible, which presumably would make it flow more freely and raise commodity prices, with consequent increases in employment, purchasing, etc. But stabilization would have to be achieved.

Answers to Debt Argument.

In connection with the project of currency, inflation on a world-wide scale, it was pointed out here that this would strike at one of the chief arguments advanced by America's debtor nations against meeting their obligations.

Great Britain and others, in their notes to the American Government seeking revision, have emphasized that while the amount they receive from selling their goods has drastically decreased, the war debts have remained the same. The effect, they argued, has been to increase the burden of the debts.

The impression grew in informed

COMPANION GETS FREE, CALLS HELP

Police and Firemen Dig 45 Minutes to Recover Body —Inhalator Is Used but in Vain.

Neil Y. Muench, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Muench, 5538 Hebert street, was killed yesterday when buried by sliding sand in the yard of General Material Co., 5617 Natural Bridge avenue.

He had been playing on a large pile of sand with two companions of his own age, James Riordan, 5552 Hebert street and Harvey Sherman, 5532 Hebert. Neil and James jumped from the peak of the sand, about 12 feet above ground, into a pit formed when a trap door beneath the pile had been opened to let the sand flow into an underground conveyor.

The Riordan boy was able to extricate himself, but Neil was buried under about eight feet of sand. His companions notified the watchman on the grounds of what had happened and the watchman called police and firemen.

They dug for 45 minutes before they were able to free the Muench boy, and then worked over him for more than an hour with an inhalator. A large crowd gathered at the scene and for more than two hours after 1:15 p. m., when the accident occurred, Natural Bridge avenue was choked with traffic.

Rescuers who crawled into the conveyor tunnel saw one leg of the boy sticking through the trap door, which was partly opened, but could not release him from underneath.

The sand pile was formed by unloading freight cars on an elevated section of track above the conveyor system.

Neil was a sixth-grade pupil at the Gundlach School. He had two brothers and two sisters. The father is a contractor.

MAN AND WOMAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN DITCH

Obviously Killed by Gangsters Following Previous Shooting of Supposed Rival.

By the Associated Press.

ST. HELENS, Ore., April 22.—The bullet-pierced bodies of a man and a woman identified by authorities as Jimmy Walker, ex-convict, and Mrs. Edith McClain, 35, of Long Beach, Cal., were found in a ditch beside a lonely road near here today.

Police said the two obviously had been killed by gangsters, probably because of the shooting in Portland this week of Frank Kodat, reputed speakeasy proprietor, who blamed Walker for his critical wounds. The two men, detectives said, had quarreled over the woman. Kodat, shot through the back, may die.

Neither Walker nor the woman was robbed. Apparently they had been beaten, shot to death and then thrown from an automobile.

BEER POSSESSION ARREST IN NORTH DAKOTA UPHELD

By the Associated Press.

BISMARCK, N. D., April 22.—North Dakota's prohibition enforcement statutes were held effective today by the State Supreme Court. It ruled that repeal of the constitutional prohibition provision by voters in the 1932 general election did not nullify the dry law enforcement acts.

The issue came before the Court after the arrest of Christ Aipperspach, of Jamestown, on a charge of possessing beer. His counsel said the enforcement acts were repealed automatically when the constitution provision was voted out and asked for a writ of habeas corpus, which the high court denied.

Beer becomes legal in the state on July 1, under a law passed by the Legislature several weeks ago.

UPTOWN THEATER ROBBED OF $373 BY ARMED MAN

August Matreci, Assistant Manager, Held Up in Lobby at Delmar and Aubert.

The Uptown Theater, Delmar boulevard and Aubert avenue, was robbed of $373 by an armed robber who held up August Matreci, assistant manager, in the lobby at 10:15 o'clock last night.

Matreci was alone when the robber entered. Drawing a revolver, the holdup man ordered him into the theater and upstairs to the office, where $100 was stolen, then back to the ticket booth, where $273 was taken. Matreci's brother, A. L. Matreci, manager of the theater, drove up as the robber was walking east on Delmar but was unaware of the holdup.

A newsboy entered the lobby during the holdup, but failed to see the revolver and went out again. The robber was wearing a black coat with a velvet collar and a gray felt hat, the assistant manager said.

At the same hour, a man about 45 years old entered the Branscome Apartment Hotel, 5370 Pershing avenue, and asked the desk clerk, Charles Grayson, who was alone, about a person who does not reside at the hotel.

Grayson told him the person was not registered and the visitor drew a revolver, saying, "You've been a pretty nice fellow but give me your money!" Grayson handed him $50 from the cash drawer. The robber then told Grayson to lie on the floor and fled.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT OF WHY U. S. WENT OFF GOLD STANDARD

THE STATE DEPARTMENT today notified London, Berlin, Paris and Rome of its purpose in going off the gold standard. The text of Secretary of State Hull's telegram:

It is important that our recent monetary action be understood not as a step in international contest or conflict and not as a move to get a weapon in the scheduled international conversations.

It was a measure required by circumstances and designed to enable us in this country to work out an improvement in prices which was essential.

It may be hoped that other countries, by taking suitable monetary measures, will assist in producing the desired price improvement.

The ultimate aim is to create a price condition under which the world can again be prosperous and not to seek any special American advantage.

CONFEREES VOTE $237,500 FOR CARE OF CITY'S INSANE

Committee on Legislation Allows Half of Appropriation Senate Killed.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—A conference committee of the Senate and House voted today to give St. Louis half of $475,000 appropriation for care of the insane that the Senate voted last week to kill altogether.

Mayor Dickmann, City Counselor Hay and others came to Jefferson City Thursday to protest against cutting off the city's appropriation.

Action of the conference committee means that the Senate probably will permit the appropriation measure to pass as reduced. That the House will adopt the committee report is virtually certain.

MILLS-REED COMBINE CONTINUES ATTACKS

Privately Concede Defeat, However, Unless "American People Wake Up"—Democrats in House Make Hot Retorts.

SENATE VOTE BY WEDNESDAY LIKELY

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 22. — Republican opponents of President Roosevelt's plan for controlled inflation of the currency were in full retreat tonight, although they continued to yell bloody murder at the top of their voices. Reed of Pennsylvania asserted on the floor of the Senate that "this insane scheme" could still be defeated "if the American people will only wake up," but in private conversation with reporters he conceded that the Senate would pass it not later than Wednesday.

Efforts by Reed and former Secretaries of the Treasury Andrew Mellon and Ogden Mills to organize opposition to the plan virtually collapsed in the face of the administration's adamant determination to compel acceptance of its program in its original form. Reed abandoned his original intention to filibuster against the measure. Mills, who visited former President Hoover in California before coming here to direct the fight, today agreed to surrender on condition that the provision authorizing the President to reduce the gold content of the dollar be limited. The White House refused to yield an inch.

While Reed was telling the Senate that a reduction in the gold content of the dollar would have "a terrible effect on the Government's credit," Democrats on the House side were launching a vigorous counter-attack. Rankin of Mississippi denounced Mellon and Mills in violent language, declaring that "they have their nerve" to offer advice in the present crisis.

If Rankin Were Rembrandt.

"They wrecked the administration of Herbert Hoover, and now they are trying to wreck President Roosevelt's administration," he shouted. "They should be officially designated as public enemies No. 1 and No. 2. I wish that I were a Rembrandt so that I could paint for posterity a picture of the period through which we have just passed. I would paint a cynical old Andrew Mellon, squeezing the blood of a human heart into a cocktail glass held by a cynical Ogden Mills."

Representative Byrns of Tennessee, Democratic leader, joined the attack by questioning the "Americanism" which prompted the statement issued last night by Senators Reed and Walcott (Rep.), Connecticut, and Representative Snell (Rep.), New York, and Luce (Rep.), Massachusetts, in which the Roosevelt program was denounced as "the road to ruin."

"If we Democrats had issued such a statement during the Coolidge or Hoover administration, you would have said it smacked of disloyalty to the nation," he said.

When Mills Was In.

Snell, the Republican leader, jumped to his feet, sputtering with rage. He said he had no apologies to offer for the statement and no apologies for having conferred with Mills on the subject. In fact, he volunteered the information that he and Mills had discussed it at length in Snell's office before making the statement public.

HERRIOT WILL URGE NATIONS' RETURN TO GOLD STANDARD

Instructions Sent by Radio After Cabinet Declares for Old Monetary System.

READY TO CUT WORLD DEBTS SETTLEMENT

Hastening of World Economies Conference Desired to Stabilize Monetary Situation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 22.—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, nearing American shores on his way to conferences with President Roosevelt, was semi-officially reported tonight to have been instructed to direct his efforts toward a general return to the gold standard.

The instructions were said to have been incorporated in special recommendations sent him by wireless on the S. S. Ile de France after a meeting of the French Cabinet today. At the Cabinet meeting a declaration was made for maintenance of the gold standard.

It was understood Herriot was instructed to hasten in every way possible convocation of the world economic conference, to present the French view that the problem of monetary stability is dominant, and to bend efforts of the French delegation toward a return of the gold standard.

While the former Premier's mission still was restricted to one of observation at Washington, it was reported he likely would take the position if the debt question is raised that France is willing to help in an elaboration of a general settlement of world debts.

Meanwhile the Bank of France became the gold stronghold of Europe today as a result of a decision by the Cabinet to stay on the gold standard. Eight airplanes from Holland are due tomorrow with $12,000,000 in gold to defend the guilder, and Belgium and Switzerland are protecting their currencies by selling their foreign holdings.

Finance Minister Georges Bonnet said that one of the principal objects of the world economic conference has been to remedy monetary instability. Consequently France's position is clear and she hopes that all countries will return to the gold standard as soon as possible. "I do not need to add that there can be no question for a single instant of our renouncing it."

Herriot Maps New Program as Boat Approaches U. S.

By the Associated Press.

S.S. ILE DE FRANCE, EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK, April 22. Approaching American shores tonight, former Premier Edouard Herriot of France reviewed with experts his emergency plans, devoted exclusively to efforts to clarify the confused international monetary situation, for his conversations in Washington with President Roosevelt.

The sudden suspension of the gold standard in the United States swept from the board detailed schemes which had been prepared regarding tariffs and other commercial and economic problems.

According to French official views, the American action made financial questions not only dominant, but also isolated, although Roosevelt and next week's events in Washington may induce the French mission to undertake conversations on broader terms.

REPUBLICANS IN FULL RETREAT IN INFLATION FIGHT

when Mills was Secretary, is that it has all the weaknesses it had then, and none of the strength which Mills brought to it," he declared. "The fact is that Mellon and Mills are such outstanding characters that you have nobody with which to replace them, so you attack them.

"You Democrats are preparing to issue greenback money without a single thing behind it. If this plan doesn't mean direct, simple greenback currency, I don't know what it means. Yet your party platform declared for sound money. Your proposal to let the President reduce the gold content of the dollars is in direct violation of the Constitution, which provides expressly that Congress shall regulate the issuance of currency and the coinage of money. This is the first time that any President has asked Congress to violate that section of the Constitution."

"We Have the Privates."

Meantime, Senate Democrats were replying to Reed. Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, who introduced the inflationery measure as an amendment to the pending farm bill, taunted the Pennsylvanian with being a mouthpiece for Mellon and Mills, and added:

"You have the generals, but we have the privates." He was speaking by the book, for a canvass of the Senate had shown that approximately 67 votes would be cast for the measure.

The strident voice of Senator Huey Long, famed Louisiana Kingfish, cut across the debate. Addressing himself belligerently to Reed, he declared:

"The bondholders never abdicate. The owners of the bloated fortunes of this country are still blind to the fact that 50,000,000 Americans have lost their purchasing power. Continued deflation means nothing to them except the opportunity to gobble up the property of their fellow men at 10 cents on the dollar."

He told of a Roman triumvir who ordered that all purchases must be made with gold.

"He took all the gold," Long continued, "and when the people had no more, and were therefore unable to buy the necessities of life, they took his gold, melted it, and poured it down his dad-gummed throat."

The galleries applauded frenziedly, despite the threats and admonitions of the presiding officer, and Senator Reed took himself from the Chamber in a dudgeon.

Between passages of angry oratory, the Senate moved steadily ahead with the farm bill, to which the currency measure has been attacked as a rider. It disposed of all committee amendments in short order, and cleared the decks for consideration of the currency amendment on the opening of business Monday noon.

Faced by the threat of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, to invoke cloture, Reed announced that he would not filibuster, and was even willing to enter into an agreement to vote on the bill not later than Wednesday, Robinson, knowing himself to be in complete command of the situation, said he would seek to have a vote by Tuesday.

Republicans Divided.

The truth of the matter is that the Republicans in both houses are in a state of demoralization, and badly divided over what course to pursue. The Progressives are virtually unanimous in support of the inflation measure, and there is a widespread conviction that Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, regards it with favor. The writer learned that Mills met with a rebuff when he attempted to persuade McNary to join Reed, Walcott, Snell and Luce in signing the statement issued last night. McNary has always been known to have Progressive leanings.

Likewise in the House, Snell admitted that the measure would receive the votes of many Republican Representatives. He said it sadly, but with full knowledge of the fact.

"We have the argument, but they have the votes," he observed.

Beaten on every front, the Mills-Mellon-Reed combination this afternoon sought to obtain an eleventh-houh compromise. They probised to withhold their fire if the administration would agree to limit the President's power to reduce the gold content of the dollar. A rumor circulated that such an agreement had been reached. Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, immediately communicated with the White House and announced that no such concession would be made.

Farm Mortgage Refinancing Approved by Senate.

By the Associated Press.

The proposal, designed to improve business and restore confidence by giving the President broad authority to expand credit and currency, was formally made the Senate's unfinished business just before adjournment for the week-end.

The Senate approved the two billion dollar farm mortgage refinancing section of the bill and the inflation amendment promptly was made the pending business and the Senate recessed until Monday to continue the argument.

By way of showing that it was not disposed to accept a forthright money expansion proposition, it had turned down by 44 to 25 the Frazier amendment to refinance farm mortgages at 1½ per cent through a bond and currency issue. It accepted a proposal by Senator Gore (Dem.), Oklahoma, for conciliation boards to adjust farmers' debts by negotiation.

Democratic leaders announced the administration had no objection to the Wheeler-King amendment enlarging the silver section to give the President power to institute free coinage of silver at a ratio with gold to be determined by himself.

The controversy ahead over the clause authorizing a reduction in the gold content of the dollar also spread when Senator Patterson (Rep.), Missouri, offered an amendment to eliminate it.

Speaker Rainey at his press conference said "the Republican leaders are 20 to 30 years behind the times. Big business and bankers they follow were repudiated last fall. They ought to know it by now. They are never in a position to learn anything new. Many of the bankers they have been following soon will go to the penitentiary.

"These men represent an old outdated school. They don't realize we are trying to remedy the mistakes these gentlemen, and men who think as they do, have made in the last 12 years.

"We are going to do it, even if they don't agree to it. The safe way to proceed along economic recovery is to learn what they think and go exactly in an opposite direction."

Dog on Ledge Eludes Rescuers

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

STRANDED on a quarry ledge 40 feet below the surface a very frightened dog (indicated by arrow), retreated to an inaccessible spot yesterday when a Humane Society agent rescued a bull dog which had shared the ledge with it. William O'Shaughnessy, the Humane Society man, will be lowered to the ledge by a rope again today in another effort to rescue the animal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., April 22.—Explosion of a bomb, tossed into the yard of William Daykin, a member of the Progressive Miners' Union, blew in several windows in his house tonight. The Daykin family was not at home.

The bombing was the twenty-ninth in the Taylorville district since last September, when strife between the United Mine Workers' Union and the Progressive Miners' Union became violent. Two companies of National Guardsmen are still at Taylorville.

MAXIM LITVINOFF CRITICISES BRITISH EMBARGO POLICY

(Copyright, 1933, by Associated Press.)

MOSCOW, April 22.—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissar, in a signed statement to the press today criticised England for its stand in the Anglo-Russian trade disruption.

"Such measure," he said, "hardly appear a proper preparation for the World Economic Conference, one of the problems of which is to regulate and normalize foreign trade on a world scale."

Litvinoff refrained from mentioning Great Britain by name, but indirectly and unmistakably he set forth Moscow's attitude toward recent trade developments between the two countries.

"Neither trade growth nor stability is possible," he said, "if the slightest friction or political clash between governments might dislocate that trade, or if the governments assume the right to liberate their citizens or commercial enterprises from engagements contracted in commercial agreements or treaties."

The statement, signed in red pencil, "M. Litvinoff," was handed out at the foreign office. It read:

"Russian external trade policy is based on firm foundations which have not been altered since the beginning of our foreign trade, and which we do not propose to alter in the future.

"This policy is based on:

"(1) Economic intercourse between countries of the world, and particularly between major powers irrespective of social and political systems obtaining in them.

"(2) Advantages accruing to each country from trade with other countries and confidence between the contracting countries based on a real solvency approved by the fulfillment of commercial and financial obligations.

"(3) Absence of political upheavals in relations between trading countries as an inherent condition of stability of trade relations.

"(4) Liberty for official representatives of trading countries to fulfill the normal functions necessary for trade.

"(5) Lawful intercourse between governmental representatives and citizens of trading countries.

"Elasticity of imports is an exclusive peculiarity of the Soviet Union.

"Regarding the elasticity of our imports it should be borne in mind that not only their very wide expansion, but also their contraction, is possible.

"Our interest in imports decreases annually. We can already, without detriment to the tempo of our construction, reduce our imports, and we are naturally doing this, and will continue to do so proportionately with the reduction of our exports.

"We are convinced not only that those countries which may compel us to reduce our imports will expose themselves to the greater loss, but also that such a reduction will react adversely upon the trend of the general world crisis.

"Tomorrow is the 15th anniversary of our foreign trade monopoly.

"It is unnecessary to mention the system, which, from our viewpoint, has entirely justified itself. We know this system serves as an object of envy on the part of other states, and that some of them even attempt to introduce it partially at home.

"At one time it was feared abroad that the Soviet Government would utilize the monopoly in foreign trade for political ends. These fears, however, have proved quite baseless and have never been substantiated.

"The Soviet Government has had dealings with friendly, semi-friendly and hostile countries, and even with those countries with whom it had no official relations, but by its nature, foreign trade demands a certain legal framework, whose absence affects its development.

"Naturally, trade is developed for preference with countries which have contributed toward the creation of the necessary conditions therefor. Trade development and trade stability demand a certain calm and lack of upheaval.

"Neither trade development nor trade stability is possible if the slightest friction or political clash between governments might at any time dislocate trade, or if the governments assume the right to liberate their citizens or commercial enterprises from engagements and contracts in commercial agreements or treaties.

ROOSEVELT AND MACDONALD GO OVER PROBLEMS

quarters that Roosevelt and MacDonald were mapping a broad program which would affect all the existing ills of economic relations including the debts.

Secretary Hull told newspaper men, who inquired about war debts in connection with the coming of Herriot, that if a nation insists on concentrating on a single phase, progress toward the general goal of revived trade and prosperity will be impeded.

MacDonald meanwhile accepted an invitation for himself and his daughter, Ishbel, to have breakfast with Senator Borah of Idaho and Mrs. Borah at their apartment Monday morning. Borah has advocated that the war debts be written off and that in return real contributions be made to disarmament and to removal of irritating clauses in the Versailles Treaty.

The United States took pains to clear up any impression abroad that its departure from the gold standard was devised to help in bargaining with the visiting statesmen. It notified the American Embassies in London, Paris, Rome and Berlin that the step was not one taken "in international contest or conflict," but rather was "required by circumstances and designed to enable us in this country to work out an improvement in prices which was essential."

Meanwhile in the Senate, Lewis (Dem.), Illinois, predicted failure for the economic conferences if European Powers insist on discussing war debts before international commercial co-operative steps.

Lewis said he understood England and France were contemplating an effort "before any concessions are made to us touching on trade that there shall first be an understanding of some form of cancellation or revision of debts."

If this is so, he went on, "the proceedings had best end now," for "the American people are in no temper for such threats."

It was officially announced this afternoon by the British delegation that A. E. Overton of the British Board of Trade, and Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, may remain in Washington after MacDonald leaves on Wednesday and continue their efforts to arrange a program in which they hope Great Britain and the United States may persuade other nations to co-operate in London.

There has been no discussion by the British and American experts as to the probable date which will be fixed for the London meeting, but the opinion prevails in British circles as well as among American experts that the conference can scarcely be held before June 15.

Roosevelt and MacDonald will board the Sequoia, trim yacht of the Government, early tomorrow morning. A cruise that will last probably until after dark is planned.

On the ship will be Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss MacDonald, Mrs. Anna Dall, daughter of the President, and James Roosevelt, his eldest son. Two other guests, friends of MacDonald, probably will be aboard also.

'NO MERE NATIONAL SYSTEM OF ECONOMICS CAN START WHEELS AGAIN'—MacDONALD

British Prime Minister Tells Washington Press Club That Roosevelt Is in Accord With His Views.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, here in conference with President Roosevelt on world financial and economic conditions, addressed the National Press Club this afternoon, saying that both he and the President felt no "system of mere national economics" could make "the machinery of production and consumption to begin going around again."

Describing President Roosevelt as "quiet, forceful and courageous," MacDonald spoke of the "millions of men" in Great Britain and this country who want work but can't find it and families "who want to be clothed and cannot be."

"There is spare labor, there is potential demand," he went on, "yet by what sinister device are those who want to clothe the naked being kept from clothing the naked?"

For Economic Disarmament.

An economic disarmament and an agreement among nations that would solve the monetary problem was pointed to by MacDonald as the first step needed to start the world moving back toward better days.

"If you want to be secure and protected, come to an agreement with other nations. So, on currency, an agreement is the only protection."

The Prime Minister told of Great Britain's effort to preserve the gold standard and, refering to this country's departure from a gold base early this week, said it created a very delicate situation internationally. "It cant' be helped," he said. "No one can be blamed."

MacDonald told of unemployment and poverty in Great Britain, the United States and other lands and ascribed it not to a failure of national resources but to a maladjustment of international economics.

Recalls His Last Visit.

He recalled that the last time he came to America in 1929, he and President Hoover "were trying to tackle the extraordinary problem of why peoples build up piles of armaments for security although every chapter in history tells you that those arms have never been used for security."

"They have always been used for war," he said.

The tragedy of jobless men and poverty stricken families, he said, has been caused by some "strange device" which must be broken to end the vicious circle "and bring peace and happiness to the masses."

"Governments can not be indifferent to conditions like that," MacDonald exclaimed.

At the International Economic Conference soon to meet in London, he said a way would be sought to adjust economic laws to enable the American farmer to get a market and a good price for his products. Putting money into the pockets of the farmers in this way, he asserted, would start the wheels of industry turning.

Saving Democratic Government.

Mr. MacDonald said one of the great purposes of the World Economic Conference would be to save democratic government.

He emphasized that democracy had raised the expectations of populations and that empty promises could no longer be given by governments.

He urged unity among the nations to meet their common problems and denied Great Britain's intention to adopt a retaliatory policy.

"Retaliation is repulsive," he said. "Retaliation is to drag conditions down.

"Four years ago I tried to persuade you that arms competition was wrong. I now say this economic competition is wrong. Come to agreements with other nations. Get your Kellogg pact and Round Table Conferences in action."

Pleading for world unity to face currency problems, MacDonald urged the completion of agreements and then "carry out those agreements like honorable gentlemen."

'DIPLOMA MILL' GRAFT SENTENCE IS SUSTAINED

Illinois Supreme Court Holds W. H. H. Miller Guilty of Conspiracy With Robert Adcox, St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 22.—The Supreme Court today upheld the conviction of William H. H. Miller of Champaign, director of the State Department of Education and Registration under Gov. Small, who was tried in Cook County, sentenced to seven months and a day in jail and fined $2000 for conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses.

Miller and Mitchell C. Blaine were charged with conspiring to get money from medical and dental students and practicioners by promising to help them obtain licenses to practice in Illinois.

The Supreme Court held the evidence was undisputed that Miller and Blaine, with the assistance of Robert Adcox of St. Louis, "falsely pretended that for a monetary consideration and with the use of political influence" they could arrange for easy examinations and get their clients licenses to practice in Illinois.

PROF. FISHER DEFENDS INFLATION PROGRAM

Says G. O. P. Attacks Is "In Line With Time-Worn Traditions."

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 22.—Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, economist, today asserted that the attack of four Republican Congressmen on the administration's inflation program is "in line with time-worn traditions."

Defending the inflation program, Prof. Fisher stated: "It (inflation) certainly should be used until it works enough and then stopped. It can be stopped, for we shall be stronger, not weaker."

Prof Fisher's statement follows:

"The protest against the President's reflation program, signed by Senators Reed and Walcott and Representatives Snell and Luce, is in line with the time-worn traditions of bankers—though few bankers today are as loyal to them as these four Congressmen. But 'we are now confronted with a condition, not a theory.' This condition is the opposite of Germany's when German inflation began.

"Few realize the gravity of our present situation. Our very national existence is at stake. Even more than it was in the World War. Halfway, traditional and timid measures will no longer do. If the price level is not speedily raised, so that business, industry and agriculture can be run again at enough of a profit to make sure that they are run at all and re-absorb the unemployed, and if that level is not raised enough to enable debtors to pay their debts and creditors to get their pay, this country will soon be over the precipice with bloodshed and revolution. There is, if my analysis of this depression is right, absolutely no escape from our present imminent danger except through reflation.

"Nor can we stop to cavil about methods. The situation is too desperate and imperative. The best method is whatever is the quickest. I, too, dislike to load on the President so much responsibility and power, but the alternative is a debate which will delay action when there is no time to lose. We are at war and must entrust to our commander-in-chief the war-time powers necessary to win this sort of war.

"The open-market operations which alone the objectors grudgingly admit might well be used, cannot be entrusted wholly to the Federal Reserve System. They had their opportunity a year ago and made insufficient use of it.

Republican officials retiring from these offices are: Park Commissioner, Fred Pape, Eleventh Ward member and former chairman of the Republican City Committee; Police Judge, George C. Foster; Commissioner of Weights and Measures, William H. Hubele, Seventh Ward Republican committeeman; City Marshal, William E. Duffy; clerk of Police Courts, Thomas S. Hauk, who has held the place for about 18 years.

Pape has been Park Commissioner about 16 years and has been in the Park Division more than 20 years, having previously been superintendent of parks. He has taken an active interest in municipal opera, playground activities and other recreational affairs.

Miller Among Those Drafted.

Miller, like many other appointees of the new Mayor, was drafted. He did not know until 9 p. m. Friday that he was considered for office, never having held a political position. For a number of years he has been an independent politically but formerly was a Republican. In Dickmann's campaign for the nomination, Miller was chairman of the Finance Committee, and in the subsequent election campaign he was vice chairman.

Miller was born in Kansas City, Mo., 65 years ago. He came here 40 years ago and established the W. A. Miller Hay & Grain Co. He retired from this business in 1928. From the time of the establishment of the Continental Portland Cement Co. in the southern part of St. Louis County until the plant was sold about 1921, Miller was vice president and general manager. He is a director and Executive Committee member of the Southern Commercial Bank. He is married and has two grown children.

Miller said: "I feel that efficiency in park maintenance has been low but can be increased."

Vest, who is 35, is a graduate of Princeton University and took his law degree at the University of Missouri. He is the grandson and namesake of the late United States Senator Vest, author of the famous eulogy on the dog. In the World War, Vest enlisted as a private and became a Second Lieutenant of Field Artillery. Formerly he was secretary of the Missouri branch of the Association Opposed to Prohibition. He is a law associate of George T. Priest, member of the Police Board. Vest made unsuccessful races for the Democratic nomination for Congressman last summer and for Attorney-General in 1928.

Waldman, 38, is married and has two children. He was in charge of the war veterans' organization in Dickmann's campaign and was credited with building up an influential group. In 1930 he was Democratic nominee for Circuit Clerk. The Mayor announced Waldman would sever his business connections and devote his full time to city work.

May is 58 years old, married, and known to associates as "Leggo."

Gallagher, 42 and single, is a close friend of Congressman Cochran and of President Igoe of the Police Board.

Mayor Dickmann announced that Director of Public Safety Chadsey is investigating the records of five men recommended for Chief of the Fire Department and that an appointment will be made probably tomorrow. The Mayor expressed a desire to make all appointments in the department on the basis of merit and to eliminate political activity among firemen.

An opinion from City Counselor Hay on the Mayor's power to ask resignations of members of the Efficiency Board is expected early this week. The three members are scheduled to retire, under present arrangements in September this year, 1934 and 1935.

told the jury that "if they had believed this woman insane we would have moved our chiars over to the other counsel table and helped her out."

"We've done the best we could," Reed said, "to get you efficient, well-informed men to aid you in your decision. Of course, they are being paid. You can't get something for nothing."

Mrs. Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson were slain on the night of Oct. 16, 1931, in Phoenix, and their bodies, Miss Samuelson's dismembered, shipped to Los Angeles in trunks. Mrs. Judd was arrested there a week later and returned to Phoenix to be tried, convicted and sentenced to death for murder of Mrs. Leroi. She was not tried for slaying of Miss Samuelson.

Her appeal to the Supreme Court was denied, and a month ago the Arizona Board of Pardons and Paroles denied her appeal for commutation of sentence. Only the fact that Arizona law forbids execution of the death penalty on a person who has become insane while awaiting death, gave her another opportunity for life.

HOLDS POLICE RECORDS MUST BE KEPT OPEN TO PUBLIC

State Attorney-General Rules on Gerk's Request, Occasioned by Demands During Election.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—Information obtained by police while not in official line of duty does not have to be disclosed but records of court and identification must be kept open for public inspection, Attorney-General Roy McKittrick said in an opinion prepared for Joseph A. Gerk, Chief of Police for St. Louis, made public today.

When the opinion was asked by Gerk April 5, mention was made that there had been demands at his office for police records of candidates for office. The opinion, prepared by James L. Hornbostel, an Assistant Attorney-General, called the police chief's attention to two Missouri statutes which require records of court and identification be open for public inspection.

Spectators Go to See Lindberghs, Not Trophies

Flyer, However, Seems Not to Grasp Idea and Vacates Museum to Relieve Crowd From Waiting.

Taking a place second to their admirers, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh yesterday cut their visit to the Lindbergh trophy collection at Jefferson Memorial to a brief 20 minutes, in order not to keep other visitors waiting.

The fact was, of course, that the visitors were waiting to see the Lindberghs rather than the trophies. But that was something not easily grasped by so modest a man as the aviator. And so, although he had not seen his trophies for three years, he cut his own visit short and returned last night for a leisurely inspection after the 5 o'clock closing hour.

Missouri Historical Society announced, following their visit, that the most valuable of the trophies will be stored in vaults and represented in the display by copies of less value. A watchman fired at a robber who attempted to enter the building Friday night. Colonel Lindbergh has said he would allow the trophies to remain in the custody of the society "as long as there is marked public interest"—a factor measured by attendance averaging 1,000,000 a year since the display began on June 25, 1927.

Wouldn't Keep People Waiting.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh had timed their forenoon before the regular opening hour of the memorial. But at 9 a. m., two women were waiting, and dozens of men and women had joined them before the Lindberghs arrived at 9:45, with Col. Lindbergh at the wheel of a blue sport sedan lent by a St. Louis acquaintance.

Doors were closed to allow them to view the trophies undisturbed, but Col. Lindbergh was hardly inside before he asked if they were keeping "all those people" waiting. Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, curator and archivist of the society, explained the obvious fact that "all those people" wanted to see the famous couple, and added that the Memorial had been crowded Friday afternoon, apparently by admirers who expected them to visit the memorial upon their arrival in St. Louis.

Mrs. Beauregard escorted Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh about the display, pointing out many exhibits placed since their last visit, in 1930. Mrs. Lindbergh was particularly interested by the case of Japanese gifts received after their Oriental tour by air.

Wanders to Oother Sights.

But Col. Lindbergh, glancing up from time to time at the faces pressed against the locked glass doors, was restless. Once he wandered away from the testimonials to his own fame to view war relics in an adjoining room. When he returned, he suggested that they go over to the east wing and allow the public to enter the trophy display.

The aviator, who has never removed any of the 2500 gifts for his personal use except a pair of goggles, again expressed his reluctance to take anything from the display. "Not even a watch?" asked Mrs. Beauregard, indicating a case displaying some masterpieces of the craft, every one of them Lindbergh's own.

"Oh, well," Lindbergh grinned. "I wear a cheap watch. See—— But it keeps time, and withstands water, jarring and almost every other kind of mistreatment."

He declined to be photographed with his trophies. Despite the request of "no quotations" which lay against his candid and friendly chats with reporters, it may fairly be explained that he wanted to avoid fostering the impression that the trophies were the dominant collection of the society, to him the memorial was not a "Lindbergh museum," but Missouri's.

Chats Two Hours in Office.

In line with that view, he and Mrs. Lindbergh gave some attention to historical collections of the society while they chatted for nearly two hours in the office with Mrs. Beauregard and her assistant, Miss Anne Kinnaird. When they left a dozen or so of the early arrivals were still waiting for a last glimpse, and they had been joined by others, including a group of Boy Scouts.

Retiring again from the public view—a difficult thing since the flight to Paris—they spent the afternoon and evening quietly with old friends here. Col. Lindbergh reminisced an hour or more about his student flying days at Kelly Field, San Antonio, with two of his old comrades, Lieut. Bernard A. Bridget and Lieut. Elmer J. Rogers of Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh had only two days in the "home town" of his air mail days, for they expected to depart today for Kansas City on the flyer's inspection tour of Transcontinental & Western Air, of which he is technical adviser. There was a possibility, however that they would postpone the departure until tomorrow.

NEW GRAND JURY TAX GRAFT INQUIRY OPENS WEDNESDAY

Special Panel to Be Called From Prominent Citizens of St. Clair County by Sheriff.

The special grand jury investigation of the St. Clair County tax graft scandal is scheduled to begin Wednesday at Belleville. State's Attorney Zerweck announced yesterday that he would ask the Circuit Court tomorrow morning to summon the special investigating body at once.

Supplanting the April term grand jury, which was discharged by Circuit Judge Bernreuter Friday, the special panel, composed of 23 men, will be selected by Sheriff Munie, who said he would draw it from the ranks of the more prominent citizens of St. Clair County.

Principal witness before the grand jury will be Addison J. Throop, voluntary prisoner in Belleville jail, whose confession of graft frauds on April 13, following exclusive disclosures by the Post-Dispatch, led to the inquiry.

Two Officials Named by Throop.

In his confession, immediately preceding his resignation as chairman of the St. Clair County Board of Tax Review, and in a subsequent 80-page statement, Throop implicated in the tax frauds two county officials, two former county officials, the auditor for an East Side packing firm, an East St. Louis lawyer and an East Side contractor.

State's Attorney Zerweck and Assistant Attorney-General Neiger, who are co-operating in the inquiry, are still without much hope that they will hear from Harry Parker, former confidential employe of Throop in the Call Printing Co., at East St. Louis, of which Throop is proprietor.

Parker "went south" after selling to a St. Louis newspaper a set of letters signed by Throop which purported to detail transactions in connection with the tax frauds. Prior to publication of the letters, however, the Post-Dispatch learned of their existence through an East St. Louis business man to whom Parker had tried to sell them, and began the investigation which led to Throop's confession and resignation.

Since collecting $1000 for the letters Parker, his mother, Mrs. Bertha Parker, his 12-year-old son, Billy, and Billy's brown dog, have been on a tour of the South. Souvenir postcards were received in East St. Louis from Mrs. Parker. They were mailed from New Orleans and Gulfport, Miss., April 7 and 8, respectively.

Callers Called Spurious.

County officials believe Parker, as Throop's confidential employe, could enlarge on the story told by Throop. Parker, however, has offered the letters for sale with the understanding his name would not be used and that he would not be called as a witness.

Throop, while making a clean breast of the tax fraud scandal, has characterized the letters as spurious. He explained that he signed seven sheets of paper and turned them over to Parker to be filled in with letters of thanks to St. Clair County Democrats who had indorsed Throop for a State park job. He expressed the opinion Parker filled them in with tax fraud information, instead, with a view to hawking them.

Parker was arrested in New Orleans on suspicion on Sept. 19,1931, and his photo and other identification information were forwarded to the St. Louis police. The police did not want him, however, and he was released. In the letter announcing his arrest he is described as follows:

"Ruddy complexion, medium stout, dark blond hair, blue eyes, 34 years old, 5 feet 10½ inches tall, 193 pounds. Letter 'T' tattooed on left arm. Moles on left cheek and on left side of chin."

WOMAN CONFESSES POISONING BOY, 13

Says She Did It Because She Loved Him; Had $4200 Insurance Policy.

By the Associated Press.

HAMMOND, Ind., April 22. — Mrs. Daisy Harmon, termed by officials the confessed poisoner of 13-year-old Anthony Braubender, was taken to county jail at Crown Point late today to await action of the Lake County grand jury which convenes Tuesday.

The 52-year-old widow admitted to Hammond police early today, they said, that she fed the youth poison. He died last Sunday after a violent illness.

"I killed him because I loved him," Captain of Detectives Charles Carlson said she told him. "I didn't want his mother to take him away from me."

The woman said she had no thoughts of the $4200 life insurance which she would have received by his death.

Capt. Carlson announced he might conduct an investigation into the death three years ago of her husband, Brant Harmon. Coroner Hofmann said the man's body mighrt be exhumed. He said Harmon died supposedly of alcoholic poisoning and that Mrs. Harmon collected about $2000 insurance.

UNEMPLOYED WAR VETERAN ENDS HIS LIFE WITH GAS

Elmer Schmucker, 34-year-old unemployed World War veteran, was found dead yesterday afternoon in the basement of his home at 1504 Del Norte avenue, Richmond Heights. His head was wrapped in a blanket from which two hoses extended to gas burners.

His mother, Mrs. J. W. Miller, who found the body, told police he had been shell-shocked and had been despondent recently over inability to get work. Police said he was revived by an inhalator last December after he had attempted to end his life with gas.

RECEIVER NAMED, TAKES CHARGE OF CHEROKEE BANK

A receiver for Cherokee National Bank, Jefferson avenue and Cherokee street, was appointed yesterday by the Comptroller of Currency. The bank had been in charge of a conservator since March 15. It was one of those not opened after the bank holiday.

Jack Bernhardt, recently employed in the office of Robert Neill, chief national bank examiner for this district, took charge as receiver immediately after his appointment, relieving Vance L. Sailor, national bank examiner, who had been conservator.

Examiners have completed a preliminary audit of the bank's accounts, instituted when a shortage was detected there. Official announcement has not been made, but it is understood the shortage is about $185,000.

Four officers and employes are charged in Federal warrants with embezzling $50,000 from the bank. They are its president, Henry P. Mueller; the vice-president and cashier, Harry G. Freiert; the assistant cashier, Rudolph Provaznik, and the bookkeeper, Edward Remmert. All are under bond.

Sailor became conservator March 31, after the shortage was discovered. He succeeded Mueller, who had served as conservator for about two weeks.

Appointment of a receiver, instead of a conservator, to take charge of the bank, Sailor said, does not necessarily mean that it cannot be reorganized. Conservators have the powers of receivers, but are appointed when there is a high degree of probability that the bank can be put in a sound condition promptly, Sailor said. Pending reorganization, conservators are authorized to operate the bank on a restricted basis.

Since Sailor took charge the Cherokee Bank has not been operated, even on a restricted basis. He announced its doors would be locked tomorrow when he and his staff will check the bank's assets over to Bernhardt.

Bernhardt was field secretary of the Illinois Bankers' Association until he came to St. Louis about two months ago. Previously he had been field secretary of the Arkansas Bankers' Association.

Walter Roos, attorney for the bank, said reorganization plans would be held in abeyance until directors received a copy of the bank examiners' report.

The bank, as has been told, is protected by a $100,000 blanket bond, and Roos had said it would be reorganized if the shortage did not greatly exceed that amount. Before the shortage became known stockholders and depositors had subscribed for $300,000 of new capital to cover depreciation of the bank's assets and enable it to reopen.

The bank was organized in 1924 with capital of $200,000. Deposits of $1,351,000 and total assets of $2,030,000, were shown in its last published statement, for Dec. 31.

Pledges Unkept as State Legislature Draws to Close

duction bill failed of final passage. As a substitute the Senate provided an average salary reduction of 10 per cent for the principal departments, through cutting the appropriations. The changes apply only to this biennum.

Among the more important bills passed of the Governor's administration program were ones revising the State budget system, creation of a county budget system, and substitution of central purchasing for the present system of supply purchasing by the different departments. Another bill gives him broad powers in instigate and audit the accounts of any State department or political subdivision receiving State funds.

Several bills giving additional patronage control to the Governor were passed. One gives him power to remove any appointive State official, irrespective of the term for which he was confirmed, without stating cause. Another permits ouster of members of the Highway Commission, without hearing. Several other bills extend his control over State jobs.

Public utilities fared well in the session, bringing about the defeat of all of the 27 bills they opposed and passage of the Buford "mystery bills," which would rewrite the public utility law of Missouri, combine the inspection of grain, gasoline and oil with regulation of utility rates, and enable ouster of the present members of the Pubic Service Commission, Gov. Park has not acted on the bill.

Among the bills passed by the Legislature, aside from the administration program, were the following:

Congressional redistricting bill, making nine, and possibly 10, of the 13 districts Democratic.

Emergency banking bill, giving the Governor and Finance Commissioner broad powers to take any action considered necessary in handling banking affairs in Missouri.

Appropriating $250,000 for relief of unemployment. This was the maximum that could be appropriated for such purposes, under the Constitution. The bill was passed to gain additional aid for the State from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation unemployment funds.

Bill setting up machinery for convening of convention ot act on ratification of any amendment to the Federal Constitution, which may be submitted by Congress for convention ratification. It was passed primarily to enable action by Missouri on a pending amendment to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

Proposed amendment to the State Constitution, to be submitted in the 1934 election, fixing the pay of members of the Legislature at $1000 a year. The pay now is $5 a day for the first 70 days of regular session, and $1 a day thereafter, except in decennial revision sessions when the pay is $5 a day for the first 120 days.

Bill modifying state "bone dry" law, to permit unlimited prescription of intoxicating liquors by physicians. It is subject to Federal regulations which may be adopted and will not become operative until Jan. 1, 1934.

Bill defining beer with an alcohol content of 3.2 per cent by weight as non-intoxicating, and legalizing its manufacture and sale.

Several bills modifying penalties on delinquent taxes, permitting redemption of property after a tax foreclosure, and permitting installment payment of delinquent taxes.

Attorney General McKittrick's legal patronage bill, authorizing him to appoint such additional special assistant attorneys general as he may deem necessary.

St. Louis Charter Proposal.

Proposed constitutional amendment, to be submitted in 1934 election, permitting changes in charter of City of St. Louis which would provide option of one or two houses of the city legislative body, and election of Aldermen either by wards or city wide vote.

Bill requiring bi-partisan division of membership of St. Louis Board of Education.

Authorizing manufacture of State automobile license plates and highway marker signs by the State penitentiary, if price is less than bids of private manufacturers.

Authorizing banks and trust companies in Missouri to sell preferred stock.

Consolidation Bills.

Combining offices of County Recorder and Circuit Clerk in counties with population of less than 20,000 and authorizing vote on such a consolidation in counties of 20,000 to 200,000 population.

Similar bill consolidating offices of County Treasurer and Collector in counties of less than 40,000 population, and authorizing vote on such consolidation in counties with 40,000 to 400,000 population.

Requiring State institutions to use coal mined in Missouri, if cost does not exceed that of coal from other states.

Eliminating names of presidential electors from ballot and substitution of names of presidential and vice-presidential candidates, in presidential election years.

Providing permanent registration of voters in cities of 10,000 to 30,000 population.

Among the Bills Killed.

The Legislature killed some bills which were actively pressed, among them the bar bill, to permit disciplining unethical lawyers and elevating standards of the legal profession in Missouri; proposed repeal of the State "bone dry" law; a selective sale tax bill urged by Gov. Park; the Bales bill to give the State control over water power sites; bills to reduce automobile license fees; requiring licensing of automobile drivers; legalizing betting on horse and dog races; providing nomination of judicial candidates by convention; permanent registration of voters in St. Louis; taxing chain stores; preventing utility companies from selling appliances; giving the Public Service Commission control of holding companies controling public utilities; establishing old age pensions; requiring a 20 per cent reduction for six years in general revenue tax levies of counties and municipalities; creating central purchasing for counties, and proposing creation of a State commission to study the State's fiscal system and departmental structure, and to recommend improved methods and consolidations.

MOLASSES PIPED THROUGH SEWERS TO ALCOHOL PLANT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 22.—Papers found in the hotel room in which Max Greenberg, former St. Louis gang leader was slain, have led to the discovery of a piping system by means of which molasses was pumped from a downtown warehouse through more than a half-mile of the city's sewers to a distillery in the old Briggs Brewery.

Prohibition agents seized 2000 gallons of alcohol and 25,000 gallons of molasses at the brewery. From the distilling plant a 30-foot tunnel ran into the center of the street, connecting with the sewer. A fire hose had been laid through the sewer to the warehouse.

In the warehouse the prohibition agents found 1500 gallons of molasses and high-pressure pumps used to send molasses through the hose to the brewery.

No arrests were made.

Greenberg and Max Hassel, beer baron of Eastern Pennsylvania, were shot to death in their hotel room at Elizabeth, N. J., April 12. Police said the men, active in the illegal beer traffic, were planning to merge forces and deal in the legalized brew. Greenberg and his associates owned 17 breweries in and around New York. Several of them had obtained Federal permits to manufacture the new beer.

CHILD, 3, FALLS TO DEATH FROM 11TH FLOOR OF HOTEL

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., April 22.—Mary Jean Anderson, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Anderson of Oklahoma City, was killed today when she fell to the ground from the eleventh floor of a downtown hotel.

Mrs. Anderson said the child had been playing on a radiator hood.

RECORD OF STATE LEGISLATURE IS PRAISED BY PARK

"I Doubt," He Writes, "Whether Any Assembly Has Done More to Bring Relief to People."

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—Messages praising both branches of the fifty-seventh General Assembly "for their excellent and beneficial legislation" this season were sent to the Senate and House of Representatives tonight by Gov. Guy B. Park.

"I doubt," the Governor wrote, "whether, in the history of this State, any Legislature has done more to bring relief to the people."

Among the acts of legislation that the Chief Executive listed as praiseworthy were: The beer bill, some administration measures and the preparatory steps for construction of a toll bridge across the Missouri River between Parkville—in Judge Park's native Platte County—and Kansas City.

The massage, copies of which were read aloud in each branch of the Assembly, follows in part:

"You are about to conclude your labors. I would not be true to my own feelings, nor to the sentiment of the people of this State, whom you represent, unless I expressed my own and their appreciation of your accomplishments. You have labored well. Your work can but result in good. I doubt whether, in the history of this State, any Legislature has done more to bring direct relief to thepeople. While your session has been a long one, it has been most economically conducted.

"The bill legalizing the sale and manufacture of 3.2 beer will not only raise considerable revenue, but will have the direct effect of stamping out the bootlegger and illicit manufacturer of intoxicating liquors.

"Your call for a constitutional convention to pass on the proposal to repeal the eighteenth amendment will afford the electorate of this State an opportunity to express their views on this question.

"You have passed a fair, equitable redistricting bill, which when effective, will save the State the enormous expense of State-wide congressional elections.

"You have relieved the already over-burdened property owner and farmer from the burdens of back taxes and penalties, provided a period in which property sold for delinquent taxes can be redeemed, have cut the penalty and eliminated fees of tax attorneys, Sheriffs and court costs and reduced the cost of publication. You have relieved property in drainage and levee districts from a system of double taxation.

"The establishment of a State purchasing agency and an executive budget system for the State Government should result in a substantial saving.

"Many useless boards and bureaus have been abolished, and many saving consolidations affected.

"The reduction of the membership of the State Penal Board from five to three, with the reduction in salaries of all members of the board, is a substantial economy.

"Establishment of a county budget system, consolidation of the offices of County Treasurer and County Collector in counties of less than 40,000 population, reduction of the salaries of County Collectors, consolidation of the offices of Circuit Clerk and Recorder of counties of 20,000 inhabitants and less, with optional consolidations in counties between 20,000 and 200,000 population, reduction of the salaries of Circuit Clerks and County Superintendents of Schools, of Prosecuting Attorneys, abolition of County Truant Officers, doing away with the county experiment stations, reducing the number of election clerks and judges in precincts of less than 300 votes, cutting the cost of printing ballots and the expense of publication of financial statements of counties, will all bring about actual reduction of county expenses, as will the substantial reduction in salaries of Jackson County officials.

"You have given aid to State banks, trust companies and building and loan associations.

"The bill reducing penalties on delinquent sewer taxes will result in enormous savings to the property owners of St. Louis County alone, and in no wise jeopardize the interests of outstanding bondholders.

"The act providing for the manufacture of automobile license plates and highway markers in the penitentiary will effect a substantial saving.

"Much benefit will accrue to our State by reason of the erection of a toll bridge across the Missouri River between Parkville and Kansas City, Kan.

"It was most thoughtful in you and proper that a monument be erected in honor of our great statesman, Senator and Governor, Missouri's distinguished citizen, the lamented William Joel Stone, whose memory is revered by all.

"This is but a hasty and incomplete digest of your accomplishments. When you have returned to your homes, your constituents can truthfull say, well done, my good and faithful servant. Personally, I thank you sincerely for your splendid co-operation and interest. It has been a real pleasure to know and work with you.

"Our common interest has been, and is, the welfare of the people of Missouri. The pledge of economy has been kept, and while no single Legislature can accomplish all that should be done, yet your action means wonderful progress in the right direction."

After Gov. Park's message was read in the Senate tonight, Edwin Nolte of St. Louis moved that 10,000 copies be printed and distributed throughout the State. There followed some discussion of the motion in which the expensiveness of the printing was mentioned. Senator Joffee of Kansas City suggested that 5000 copies would be enough, but Nolte insisted on 10,000 and the motion was so carried.

JEFFERSON HOTEL WINS SUIT FILED BY EJECTED GUEST

J. D. Landrum Sought $200,000 Damages in Consequence of Being Put Out of Hostelry.

A verdict in favor of the defendants was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge O'Malley's court in the $200,000 damage suit of James David Landrum, 4155 Lindell boulevard, against the New Jefferson Hotel Co., Inc., and its assistant manager, G. R. Scott. Landrum, who had been a guest at the hotel, was removed by police November 23, 1930, and taken to the City Hospital, where he was confined until December 31, following.

According to the petition, Scott called the police and was instrumental in having Landrum taken to the hospital. Landrum testified he was mistreated by a hospital attendant, who struck him and tied him.

The defense denied they asked the police to take Landrum to the hospital. It was alleged in an answer he had been disturbing guests in the lobby of the hotel after he had been "checked out," and the police were called on that account. Richard S. Bull, attorney for the defense, argued that his clients acted within their rights.

Landrum denied he was annoying anyone, and he charged that the conduct of the defendants toward him was malicious and unjustified. He said he had been a customer of the hotel and paid his bill.

GOLD BUYER ACCUSED OF POSING AS OFFICER

Following an investigation by Federal agents of widespread efforts to purchase old gold in the city, ostensibly for the United States Mint, United States Commissioner Burke yesterday issued a warrant charging Elmer B. Higginbotham, representative of a gold-purchasing concern, with impersonating a Government officer.

Miss Maude Whitsett, 4362 Forest Park avenue, according to Federal agents, said she sold Higginbotham two antique gold bracelets valued at $100 for $7.50 on Feb. 2, after he had told her his co pany, operating a gold refinery Chicago, was run by the Gover ment and that it was a "patrio thing to do" to sell her gold.

Several other women residing the same block reported they ha been asked to sell old gold, and o other woman, the agents were i formed, did sell some.

The GOLD STANDARD of Tire Values

THE MASTERPIECE OF TIRE CONSTRUCTION

RACE DRIVERS know tires. It is their business to know tires—it means life or death to them. These men know that a tire that holds all world's records on road and track must be a masterpiece of tire construction. They know it must have superior materials, must be scientifically designed, and must be made by master tire builders. That is why Firestone High Speed Tires are First Choice of race drivers and have been on the winning cars for 13 consecutive years in the 500-mile Indianapolis race—the most gruelling test for any tire.

Road speeds of today are the racing speeds of yesterday. Yet millions of motorists gamble with their lives by using inferior and thin, worn tires on their cars. Guard the safety of yourself and your family with the strongest, safest non-skid tires—made by master tire builders. Have your car completely equipped with a set of these Extra Value tires with the patented construction features of Gum-Dipping and Two Extra Gum-Dipped Cord Plies Under the Tread, at prices you may never be able to duplicate. Your dealer will give you a liberal allowance for your old tires. Remember—Your Brakes Can Stop Your Wheels But Your Tires Must Stop Your Car!

The inside of the tube is coated with a special compound which seals against air loss. Constant air pressure is maintained, which increases tire mileage and safety. The tube has a tapered rubber valve which seals the rim valve hole, keeping out moisture and dirt. The rubber valve base is an integral part of the valve stem, built and vulcanized into the tube.

MOTORISTS! Save money NOW! Firestone quality is higher than ever—prices are lower than ever. These tire "war" prices cannot last—equip your car at once and get these great values before prices go up!

There is no reduction in the quality of Firestone Tires. Tremendous savings are made possible by the fact that Firestone owns and controls every step in the building of Firestone Tires and distributes direct to dealers from factories and warehouses—a one-profit, low-expense system.

Firestone Tires are not made by cheap labor—to sell at a price. Every tire is built with the patented Firestone features of Gum-Dipping and Two Extra Gum-Dipped Cord Plies under a Scientifically Designed Safety Tread—to give you Added Safety and Longer Mileage. Only Firestone Has These Extra Values—THEY COST YOU NO MORE.

Take advantage of these great savings—you may never again have such an opportunity. Buy Firestone Tires with the confidence that they are built up to a quality—not down to a price.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

ROLAND W. BOCKHORST.

R. W. BOCKHORST WINS ARCHITECTURAL PRIZE

Receives James Harrison Steedman Fellowship, Providing Year's Study Abroad.

Roland W. Bockhorst, 4822 St. Louis avenue, has been awarded the James Harrison Steedman fellowship in architecture for 1933 at Washington University. He is the eighth recipient of this prize, which is valued at $1500 and provides for a year's travel and architectural study in foreign countries.

Bockhorst, who is 28 years old, the son of Mrs. V. E. Bockhorst, has not made plans as to where he will go or when he will depart.

The award was established in 1925 by George F. Steedman and Mrs. Alexander Weddell, brother and widow of James Harrison Steedman, a graduate of the university's engineering school. It is bestowed after a competition in architectural design.

This year's competition subject was an imaginary group of structures on the seashore, commemorating a great ocean catastrophe. The design consisted of a monument, two chapels, a life-saving station and other details. Twenty-two contestants entered the preliminary competition last January. Bockhorst's drawing was one of five selected for final decision.

The preliminary selections were made by a jury consisting of Samuel H. Allen, chairman, and Wilbur T. Trueblood, St. Louis, and George Maguolo, New York. The final work was judged at Washington by the following jury: Prof. F. V. Murphy, head of the architectural department of the Catholic University of America, chairman; Prof. E. S. Campbell, head of the architectural department of the University of Virginia, and Edward W. Donn Jr., Washington architect.

Bockhorst was graduated from the Washington University architectural school in 1929 with final honors. He also won the alumni prize and the medal of the American Institute of Architects for general excellence. After leaving college he was employed first in the architectural office of Maritz & Young here and then by Coolidge, Shepley, Bulfinch & Abbott, Boston. Returning to St. Louis in 1931, he entered graduate architectural study at the university and was appointed on the faculty as assistant in applied mathematics.

Lester Haeckel, 3853 Utah place, recipient of the Steedman fellowship last year, will depart for Europe in about a week.

KILLED IN DEFENDING GIRL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Mike de Stefano, West Side hoodlum, was sought for questioning in connection with the killing early today of Frank X. Holbrook, veteran newspaper man. Holbrook was shot and killed in a cafe when he tried to defend a 17-year-old girl from the insults of a crowd of roisterers.

The girl, Miss Lillian Nance, viewed a police photograph of De Stefano and said it resembled one of her assailants. His arrest was then ordered. Inquest into Holbrook's death was continued until May 12.

PEVELY DAIRY CO. WINS FIRST IN HORSE PARADE

Quartet of Draught Animals Driven Four-in-Hand; Policeman's Stud Gets Mention.

A quartet of draught horses, in four-in-hand formation, owned by the Pevely Dairy Co., won first prize in the Humane Society's horse parade yesterday afternoon, held as a feature of "Be Kind to Animals Week," which ends today.

More than 40 horses were in the parade, which took 25 minutes to pass a given point. The parade began at 2 o'clock at Grand and West Pine boulevards and went north to Lindell boulevard, west on Lindell to Kingshighway, and south on Kingshighway to Clayton avenue. A band from Jefferson Barracks and nine mounted policemen headed the procession.

To add luster to the parade company sent a prairie schoo drawn by three oxen and anot a wagon drawn by a pair of zeb

HOUSE TO VOTE TOMORROW ON TENNESSEE PLAN

Old Debate on Muscle Shoals Rehashed While Majority of Members Take the Afternoon Off.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Thirteen years of Muscle Shoals quarrels echoed in the House today as members consumed hour after hour of debate preparatory to voting approval next week of the Roosevelt plan for developing the Tennessee Valley.

So certain of passage was the bill that scarcely 50 members elected to spend a sunny Saturday afternoon indoors listening to a discussion old-timers long since have memorized. A final vote was expected Monday.

The big Democratic majority locked the membership tight in a rule preventing opposition amendments. Republicans on the Military Committee were willing to be bound, so not even a formal roll call was needed to clamp on the restriction.

Recalls Previous Vetoes.

"I am thankful that we have in the White House now a man who is looking at this thing from the standpoint of the people at large rather than that of those who have opposed this bill in the past," said Byrns, the Democratic leader, as he recalled the Muscle Shoals vetoes of Presidents Coolidge and Hoover.

"What has happened to the movement to take the Government out of business?" demanded Ransley (Rep.), Pennsylvania, expressing opposition to the measure the President has said would extend national planning to a wider field. He contended the bill would cost the Government billions.

Martin (Rep.), Massachusetts, meanwhile assailed it as "a Soviet dream" that would "end as have most of the Russian industrial ventures—in failure to accomplish the objective and leaving a heavy debt for the taxpayers to pay."

"Good Money After Bad."

"Throwing good money after bad," was the contention of Napes (Rep.), Michigan. Byrns said "one very important feature of the plan is that it will give us a yardstick by which we can determine the cost of producing electricity and thereby have something to use as a proper basis for determining rates to be charged the people."

Chairman McSwain of the Military Committee said the President had not approved details of either the Hill bill in the House or the Norris bill in the Senate.

"He simply approved the general principles and the details were written by members of Congress," McSwain said.

Hill Explains the Bill.

Hill (Dem.), Alabama, author of the House bill, explained its terms.

"It creates a Tennessee Valley authority with the power to operate the nitrate plants if it can not lease them and to operate the power plants," he said. "This corporation also would have the power to build navigation and power dams so that the power will take care of the cost and amortize it in 60 years.

"The farmer buys one-half his fertilizer from a Chilean and European cartel. This bill will free the American farmer from dependence on the foreign monopoly."

"Peke" Which Gave Fire Alarm

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

MRS. FRANCES A. CLIFTON, 4714 McPherson avenue, and her 9-month-old pet, "Wah Foo Ling." The dog, by barking and awakening her mistress, gave the alarm when fire broke out in a boys' clubhouse back of 4722 McPherson early yesterday. The fire, said to have been started by an electric heater, destroyed the clubhouse, an adjacent garage and an automobile.

GET OUT OF THE GROOVE, SAYS ISHBEL M'DONALD

Prime Minister's Daughter Wants People to Keep Up With Advances of Science.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the Prime Minister of Great Britain and his official hostess, addressing the Women's National Press Club here today, urged people to "get out of their grooves" and "adapt themselves to advances in science."

"Let us all do our bit just as strenuously and as whole-heartedly as people did during the war," she said. She asked for creation of jobs as well as aid for the jobless.

Then Miss MacDonald went out to the British Embassy to shake hands with 1100 notables invited to a garden party in her honor.

At the Women's Press Club she wore a simple jumper suit of blue with white blouse and gaily figured red, white and blue scarf. Her hat was a fine white straw.

Genevieve Forbes Herrick, president of the Women's Press Club, introduced her as one who had "a friendly viewpoint for a woman's pen-point," and gave back to her the Scotch good-wish that Miss MacDonald left with press women here four years ago: which translated is "long may your chimney smoke!"

Miss MacDonald's speech developed her belief that the world can never be turned back to the smoking chimneys of the old industrial order. "We all must realize this is not a crisis through which we are going back to the old state of affairs," she said. "We are not going through a bad time to return to what we have been doing and go on as before. We will always be in bad times if we don't get out of our grooves and face conditions as they are."

She told what women in England are doing to help the situation—collecting and distributing clothes; conducting occupation centers and clubs "so that the unemployed may have some place to occupy themselves and make themselves more employable;" aiding in placing families on land allotments, and furnishing them with seeds and roots, to grow the fruit and vegetables that help balance both the diet and the family budget.

"But what the unemployed want is not charity but employment," she went on. "One reason that there is so much unemployment is that we are still living in the old grooves. We are not adapting ourselves to new discoveries.

"We mustn't go on saying, 'well, we have never done this. We have always worked so many hours a week.' "We must say instead, 'well, if we are going to help workmen, we must have some adjustment.'"

In Scotch phrasing, Miss MacDonald made two entries in the club's guest book, both using the "chimney" figure. One was the "lang may your lum reek," which means "long may your chimney smoke," and the other was, "having a lum hat time," the "lum" in this case meaning "high-hat," or "very swell."

Divorces Eastman Heir.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Mrs. Dorothy H. Dryden was granted an uncontested divorce here today from George Eastman Dryden, heir to a part of the fortune of his late granduncle, George Eastman. The ground was desertion. Mrs. Dryden was awarded $250 a month alimony and support for the two children, George Jr., 5, and Dorothy, 3.

ADMITS EXTORTION THREATS AGAINST L. J. ROSENWALD

Jobless Clerk Caught in Act of Telephoning to Sears, Roebuck & Co. Chairman in Philadelphia

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Charles Weil, 29 years old, of this city, was held in $10,000 bail for court today by a magistrate and, in default of bond was sent to a cell, after Lessing J. Rosenwald, head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., had accused him of trying to extort $100,000 from him under threat of death.

Rosenwald told how letters, telegrams, and telephone calls demanded the money or pain of "ruthless, cruel and vicious" death to him, his wife and their five children.

It was while making his last call to the Rosenwald home in Abington, a suburb, from a store in North Philadelphia, that Weil was captured late last night. While he talked, the call was traced and detectives arrested him as he held the receiver in his hand.

Rosenwald Tells His Story.

Rosenwald, in telling how he kept up a nine-minute telephone conversation with a man who threatened his life, while police raced to make the arrest, said:

"There is no use saying I was not a little bit alarmed on receipt of the first threatening letter.

"The letter was framer to look as if a powerful organization was behind it. But you can't let those things get on your nerve, you know. You've got to handle them in a calm way.

"Probably the hardest thing I had to do was to keep this man engaged in conversation until police could arrest him. It was exactly nine minutes from the time he called until he was arrested. It was really kind of funny the way I kept him in conversation.

"First we talked about the money and tried to effect a compromise and you know that always takes time in any transaction. He came down from $100,000 to $75,000, and I told him that even that figure was much too steep. Finally he came down in price. I don't remember what his final figure was, but he said I would hear from him later.

Hard to Make Conversation.

"It became hard, then, to make conversation, so I said whatever came itno my mind. But maybe I wasn't relieved when the policeman picked up the receiver at the other end and said they had him."

A confession, alleged to have been signed by Weil, admitting that he posed to Rosenwald as the head of a "powerful underworld organization" was read in part. Weil's letters and telegrams were signed "organization," but police said he worked alone.

The prisoner, who was not represented by a lawyer, said he wanted to "say something" after Rosenwald and police had testified, but on being warned that whatever he said might be used against him, he changed his mind.

Weil, an unemployed clerk, previously had told police he wanted the money for himself and mother, who was in the courtroom, and that he had lost $3000 when a bank closed, He declared he was "mentally deranged" during the time he was trying to extort money from Rosenwald.

HOUSE REFUSES TO CUT FUNDS OF UTILITIES BOARD

Opponents of $300,000 Reduction Call It Effort to 'Hamstring' Missouri Commission.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—Charges that opponents of the Public Service Commission were attempting to "hamstring" it in the regulation of public utility rates in Missouri, through limitation of its appropriations, were made in the House tonight in a fight that blocked action, temporarily at least, on the major civil list appropriation bill.

Supporters of the commission gained rejection of a joint conference committee report which included approval of a Senate amendment reducing the commission's funds nearly $300,000 for the biennial period, and which will seriously curtail its work in valuation of public utilities and investigation of rates.

Rejection of the report threw the bill back into conference and a new joint committee was appointed. Supporters of the commission declared they would block any action on the bill until the reduction in the commission funds was eliminated.

Appropriation Cut.

The civil list bill, as passed by the House, carried an appropriation of $883,375 for the commission. The Senate cut this to $597,500, of this reduction, $278,300 was from the $750,000 alloted to the commission by the House for valuation and rate investigation work. This cut the amount to $471,700 for two years. This appropriation is not drawn from State funds, but from fee charges against utilities under investigation. The bill was before the House tonight for concurrence in the Senate amendments.

Representative Henry Lay of Benton County, said this move, if approved, would prevent the commission from carrying on its regulatory work. "The opponents of the commission will hamstring it if this is approved," Lay said.

Referring to recent passage of the Buford "mystery bill," which would rewrite the utility regulatory law of Missouri, and make possible the ouster of the present commission members, Lay said "you will be doing the Union Electric Light & Power Co. of St. Louis as great a favor, if you approve this amendment, as you did by passage of Senate bill No. 169 (the Buford bill)."

Charge by Opponents.

Opponents of the Buford bill charged, when it was up for passage in the House, that the Union Electric was one of the utilities supporting it.

Representative Munger of Scott County told the House the State might as well turn the fixing of rates back to the utilities, if the commission was not to be given enough money to operate. "The people of the State will be deprived of protection in rate matters," he said, "and you are not saving the State any money by this reduction."

The House rejected the conference report without a record vote. The civil list bill carries a total of about $5,000,000 in appropriation items for the courts, departments of the elective State officials, and several other of the principal State departments.

Santa Claus Town Wants Beer.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 22.—Santa Claus wants to try the new 3.2 per cent beer. An application for a license to sell the beverage in the little town of Santa Claus was received today by Paul Fry, State Excise Director, from the operator of a hotel and restaurant in the town made famous by James R. Martin, the Postmaster who each year receives thousands of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

$100,000 DAMAGES SOUGHT BY CLEANER

Suit Against Exchange and Union Charges Conspiracy to Fix and Regulate Prices.

Suit for $100,000 damages and an injunction was filed in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday by Morris Redler, proprietor of a dry cleaning plant at 6155 Page boulevard, against the St. Louis Dry Cleaners' Exchange, the Cleaners', Dyers' and Pressers' Local Union No. 17,920, and several firms and individuals.

The suit was filed for Redler by Arthur F. C. Blase, attorney, and head of the Dry Cleaners' Institute, an organization of cleaners.

The petition contains charges similar to those in a suit for $200,000 filed in the St. Louis Circuit Court six weeks ago against certain members of the St. Louis Dry Cleaners' Exchange, by the Staten Island Cleaning Co. Redler alleges that firms in the St. Louis Dry Cleaners' Exchange have entered into a conspiracy to fix and regulate prices "in excess of a reasonable charge" and, failing to do this through voluntary co-operation, recently revived Local Union No. 17,920 "in a conspiracy to accomplish the end through coercion and violence." The union is referred to as a "pretended labor organization," supported through a 5 per cent levy on profits of cleaning firms and $3 monthly dues withheld from the wages of each union employe.

Redler explains in his suit that he signed the union agreement, but refused to grant a wage increase, which, he says, was demanded for his employes by Joseph Quinn, union business agent. As a result, he claims, his plant and the stores of his customers have been picketed, and his receipts have depreciated 80 per cent. A hearing on an order to show cause in the suit was set for May 5.

MRS. FLORENCE M. KLINGE.

WOMAN DRIVER WINS CONTEST WITH A 91

Mrs. Florence M. Klinge Places First in Safety Council's School.

Mrs. Florence M. Klinge, 4924 Neosho street, won first place in the driving contest for women held yesterday as the concluding event in the St. Louis Safety Council's Safe Driving School. Mrs. Klinge, in the contest for the sixth successive year, won with a point score of 91.

There were 76 contestants in all, who were made to prove that they not only remember all they learned in school but that their cars were also in perfect shape. The main events centered along Lindell boulevard, between De Baliviere avenue and Skinker road, where the women were made to park parallel to the curb betwen two other cars, get in and out of a wooden framework which represented a narrow garage in a 15-foot alley, and drive zig-zag between a row of narrowly spaced barrels.

Previous to this the drivers were made to follow a prescribed course through Forest Park and around West End streets to demonstrate to the accompanying traffic policeman that they could start and stop on a hill and that they knew and obeyed all the regular city traffic laws.

Mrs. Klinge was awarded a silver loving cup by Mrs. L. H. Renfrow, chairman of the school. Two women won honorable mention, tying for second place with 90 points. They were Mrs. Nellie Bennett, 4024 Camelia avenue, and Mrs. Ruth Stevens, 8310 Buchanan avenue, Vinita Park. Both were contestants for the first time.

Near the end of the contest Mrs. Helen Houser, secretary of the school, was bitten by a stray dog while she was standing with a group of women in front of a lot adjacent to 5855 Lindell boulevard. She was taken to Barnes Hospital and treated for bites on the right wrist and hip.

Mrs. Houser, 44 years old, resides at 3868 Juniata street. She is the widow of Dr. Norman E. Houser, dentist, who died of a fractured skull as the result of a blow on the head by one of two robbers who held up the Commonwealth Loan Co., 3115 South Grand boulevard, last Nov. 5.

The driving contest yesterday was preceded by written examinations in traffic ordinances given to all members of both the day and night schools last week. Highest mark in the day school was made by Mrs. J. N. Fitzsimmons, 655 North Forty-first street, East St. Louis, and in the night school by Miss Gertrude Boyle, 4134 Cleveland avenue. A mark of at least 75 in the written examination was necessary for participation in yesterday's contest.

MRS. STELLA M. GERHART GETS ALLOWANCE OF $20,000

Amount Is for One Year's Support Pending Administration of Late Husband's Estate.

An allowance of $20,000 from the estate of Frank H. Gerhart, realty dealer, was granted to his widow, Mrs. Stella M. Gerhart, under a stipulation filed in Probate Court yesterday. The amount is for one year's support pending administration of the estate, which, according to testimony presented to Judge Holtcamp, is worth $500,000. In addition Mrs. Gerhart is granted the use of the family residence at 4900 Lindell boulevard and of the two family automobiles.

Mrs. Gerhart was bequeathed the residence under the will, together with one-half of the income of the estate for life. She has renounced the will and elected to take her dower interest of one-half of the principal without restriction. The income from the remaining half goes to two brothers of Gerhart.

Mrs. Gerhart had applied for an allowance of $24,500, testifying that was the amount she and her husband had been accustomed to use for their annual living expenses. The stipulation was signed by the executors under the will and Mrs. Gerhart's attorney, Everett Paul Griffin. The award will be deducted from the whole of the estate. Gerhart died Dec. 21.

EUROPEAN STARLING NESTS IN FOREST PARK

Bird Club Observes Pugnacious Aliens, Greeted With Both Consternation and Praise.

Starlings, the pugnacious aliens brought to the United States from Europe in 1890, when 160 were released in Central Park, New York, are nesting in Forest Park for the first time, according to members of the St. Louis Bird Club who took the fourth bird walk of the year yesterday. The starling was first seen about St. Louis in 1929, but this is said to be the first time it has nested here.

A hardy, muscular and powerful bird, somewhat resembling the crow, the starling is unusually prolific. In cities it nests in crevices of buildings, frequently driving out sparrows. In the country and in parks it nests in trees, generally preferring to seize the home of a woodpecker. Three nests in Forest Park, inhabited earlier in the season by woodpeckers, were noticed yesterday to be inhabited by starlings.

Most St. Louis ornithologists agree that the starling, because it drives out other birds and because it has congregated in eastern cities to such an extent that it creates a problem in sanitation, is to be greeted with consternation. However, Otto Widmann, of 5105 Enright avenue, one of the foremost ornithologists in the United States, holds that the starling is useful as an implacable foe of insects.

Including the starling 43 birds in all were seen, 17 being noted by the group in Shaw's Garden under R. W. Barrell and 42 by the group in Forest Park under George C. Mackay. A check of the two lists showed that all the birds seen in Shaw's Garden, except the purple finch, were seen in Forest Park.

STOCK TRADE STAMPEDE IS LIKENED TO 1929 BUYING

Suspension of Gold Standard and Launching of a "Controlled Inflation" Program in Washington Is Followed by 8.7 Point Rise in Stock Average — Wheat, Cotton, Silver, Copper Join Upturn.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Stocks and staples were swept up close to the best levels of last autumn in a buying stampede this week.

Announcement of suspension of the gold standard and the launching of a "controlled inflation" program in Washington prompted a stampede of buying reminiscent of the speculative orgies of 1929.

Much of it was an extraordinary kind of buying, however—buying prompted by fear of loss rather than hope of gain. It reflected a rush to get funds into property, as represented by stocks or actual commodities, as protection against depreciation of money.

Nevertheless, the excitement soon waned, and there was not for long any pronounced inclination to jettison highest grade bonds for fear of loss of purchasing power of fixed returns. The gilt-edged bonds rallied at the close of the week. Investors seemed to decide that such inflation as was in prospect would, indeed, be controlled. Some financial quarters, however, continued to express misgivings. Differences of opinion were naturally wide.

Aside from the fear of depreciation was the real hope that the stimulus necessary to bring real business recovery was being provided. J. P. Morgan, in one of his rare public statements, endorsed the rigid embargo on gold. Some high banking quarters regarded with favor the credit expansion program as it applied to the Federal Reserve operations, such misgivings as were expressed centered chiefly around the proposal for printing special currency.

Average Highest Since October.

Only the highest grade bonds were adversely affected by the prospect of inflation. Inasmuch as inflation in theory eases the burden of debtors and makes them more solvent, second grade bonds generally improved. The bond market, as measured by the standard index of 60 representative corporate issues, rallied substantially in the last half of the week.

The upswing in the stock market carried price averages to the highest since early October. Standard statistics index of 90 issues ended the week at 61.6, up 8.7 points for the week. Commodity issues, such as the non-ferrous metals, were particularly strong.

Wheat was one of the leaders in commodities, rising about 6 cents. Cotton gained more than $3 a bale. Silver advanced some 6 cents an ounce, and copper about a cent a pound.

Moody's price index of 15 sensitive commodities advanced about 10 per cent, reaching the best level since last September. Its percentage advance corresponded roughly to the percentage decline in the dollar, in terms of gold currencies.

Wall street noted with interest that the United States declared itself off the gold standard in a week that saw gold holdings of her central banking system reach a peak since the record total of September, 1931.

Strong Close to Week.

Markets ended the week with a flourish of strength as dollar fluctuations narrowed.

Easy absorption of early stock offerings found traders ready to buy again and the tide quickly veered back to the advance which became very brisk. Net gains ranged from 1 to about 5 points, which canceled most of Friday's reaction and put the closing market average only half a point under Thursday's 1933 high. Rails and metals were favored, though commodity descriptions generally bustled upward. Sales totaled 2,275,510 shares, the largest Saturday volume since last Sept. 3.

Several leading staples dipped at the opening, but "controlled inflation" was still the topic of the day and these markets quickly caught up their slack. Wheat jumped around 2 cents while cotton's early loss of approximately $1 a bale was exchanged for a smaller net advance. Speculative interest in silver asserted itself with another broad advance by futures and a rise of more than a cent in spot metal.

Among stocks, metal issues glowed with a warmth that recalled their previous exertions this week. U. S. Smelting soared 4½, International Silver more than 2, and Anaconda, Kennecott, International Nickel and American Smelting better than a point. Sugars were well represented by gains of around two points in American Sugar and Great Western. Tobaccos took their leadership from American Tobacco "B," which gained over 4.

Utilities were less aggressive, but firm.

Freight Movement.

Rails were favored by the forward movement of freight loadings which for the week ended April 15 rose 6919 cars, though traffic is still nearly 13 per cent under a year ago. Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville and Great Northern improved 2 to 3. New York Central rested a little, but Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio firmed at least a point.

One of the best trade barometers, steel production, is rising to a level that reduces operating losses and approaches at least an even break between income and expenditure for some companies, though it is evident that seasonal influences are to be reckoned with. However, some further expansion of activity is widely expected. Next week's first quarter earnings statements by the two leading manufacturers will, of course, not fully reflect the industry's improvement.

The dollar was lower against European moneys, but net gains were largely moderate and trading was fairly dull.

EXCHANGE MARKET QUIETER BUT MOVES AGAINST DOLLAR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Foreign exchange trading simmered down somewhat today, but most European currencies succeeded in retaining relatively moderate advances against the American dollar. A thin market was reported in most instances.

The British pound sterling generally fluctuated in a narrow range, but a late demand carried it up 3 cents to a cable rate of $3.83. The French franc reflected governmental assurances that there was no immediate intention of abandoning the gold standard and advanced about 1-16 of a cent to 4.26½ cents. Dutch guilders held a gain of nearly a cent at 43.75 cents, Belgian belgas gained 1-10 of a cent at 15.25 cents and Swiss francs reached 20.85 cents for a gain of 1-5 of a cent.

German marks displayed rallying tendencies by advancing nearly ½ cent to 25¼ cents for cables. Small gains were registered by the Italian lire, the Scandinavians, Spanish peseta and Japanese yen. Mexican pesos dipped 1 1-20 cents to 29.95 cents.

Stock Loaning Premiums.

Drygoods Market.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Cotton cloths were moderately active at steady prices today. Following the withdrawal of wool goods prices, the market continued inactive. Raw silk eased 5 cents from the mid-week highs, with mills steadily refusing to accept advanced quotations. COTTON RALLIES FROM DECLINE, CLOSES HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Coton rallied after an early decline today and closed about 50 cents a bale higher.

July contracts after selling off to 7.27 at the start, rallied to 7.63 and closed at 7.59 with the general market closing firm at net advances of 7 to 12 points. Spot quiet, mids 7.60.

The opening was 16 to 20 points lower with May selling off to 7.16 and October to 7.53 under realizing promoted by rather disappointing Liverpool cables and overnight reports of opposition to inflationary proposals in the Senate.

Offerings were oborbed by covering or trade buying combined with a renewal of commission house demand. Early losses were not only recovered, but active months sold 1 to 14 points net higher in the late trading with May advancing to 7.45 and October to 7.85. Closing quotations were a few points off from the best under realizing.

Little or no selling pressure was reported from the South. Liverpool cables reported a smaller market there with a little trade calling, but business otherwise chiefly local.

WEEK'S METAL MARKETS

By the Associated Press.

Copper prices gained ⅞ cent for the week to the basis of 6¼ cents per pound for electrolytic. An active covering movement by both domestic and foreign consumers was reported, although demand from the latter source tapered off when partial reactions developed in foreign exchanges. Producers for the most part limited sales nearby positions owing to uncertainty over future developments. Consumers reported an increased call for finished products, with prices for these also advancing.

Demand for lead from all branches of the consuming trade exceeded daily sales quotas of producers so that a considerable volume of orders was carried over from day to day. Prices were up $5 per ton, but buying continued active at the higher quotations. Business was largely for May delivery, and although inquiry extended into June sellers have not opened their books for that month.

The advance in zinc was even more rapid, amounting to about $11 to $12 per ton and carrying the market up about $17 from the recent lows. Demand was described as the broadest thus far this year, with consumers anticipating forward requirements liberally and speculative buying active. However, interest tapered off somewhat late in the week, with indications of resale offerings becoming available.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LONDON, April 22.—Although the general tendency was better, business was restricted on the stock exchange today. South African gold mining shares were firmer while leading international issues reflected the overnight reaction in Wall street. British funds were quietly maintained and German bonds turned firm. The market closed quiet.

BERLIN, April 22.—The tone of the boerse was irregular, prices improving generally with small fluctuations. The closing was sustained.

PARIS, April 22.—Prices on the bourse declined with the exception of rentes which were in good demand. The closing was sustained.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 22.—A sharp late advance in wheat price at Winnipeg, credited to outside interests, was followed by a substantial upturn in domestic prices, including local values. CHICAGO WHEAT ADVANCES ON SPURT AT WINNIPEG

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Wild jumps of Winnipeg wheat prices and incorrect market reports that Canada had abandoned the gold standard made Chicago grain markets go skyrocketing late today.

Sensational action of the Canadian wheat market was large ascribed here to big speculation buying at Winnipeg matched against heavy sales in Chicago. Prices for wheat here fell more than a cent a bushel eraly, but shot upward later.

Wheat in Chicago closed buoyant at the day's topmost quotations, 1¾@2⅜c above yesterday's finish; corn ⅞@1¼c up; oats ⅝@1c advance, and provisions at a rise of 5 to 20 cents.

Until after grain trading here had ended for the day, erroneous belief was general on the Board of Trade that Canada had abandoned the gold standard. This was corrected too late to change market results. Aside from incorrect report about Canada's monetary status, many traders were inclined to look for a decided narrowing of differences between Chicago and Winnipeg prices, a tendency which was strengthened by word of the opening of lake navigation from Canadian ports and by expectance of enlarged European demand.

Friends of higher prices urged also that effects of actual inflation were yet to be encountered, and that up to the present wheat had risen more on account of major crop damage than because of anticipated inflation. Today's advances in price were in the face of further rains over dry districts of the United States winter wheat region.

Corn and oats paralelled upturns of wheat.

Provisions sympathized with action of cereals.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 65⅝c, 72½c; July 66⅞@67c, 73@73⅛c; Sept. 68@68⅛c, 74½c. Corn—May 35c, 37⅝c; July 37⅝c, 40⅝@40¾c; Sept. 39⅛c, 42½@42⅝c.

Wheat Up 4c at Winnipeg.

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, April 22.—Wheat scored smashing price gains on the Winnipeg market today, closing 4 cents higher than last night's close after the strongest bull drive here in years.

Iiberal profit taking in the closing minutes did not retard the bullish uprush. Getting under way around mid-session, the darive steadily gained momentum and reached its highest pitch in the final dealings.

HICAGO WHEAT ADVANCES ON SPURT AT WINNIPEG

the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Wild jumps of nnipeg wheat prices and incorrect mar- reports that Canada had abandoned gold standard made Chicago grain marts go skyrocketing late today.

Sensational action of the Canadian heat market was large ascribed here to speculation buying at Winnipeg matched ainst heavy sales in Chicago. Prices for heat here fell more than a cent a bushel ly, but shot upward later.

Until after grain trading here had endfor the day, erroneous belief was geneon the Board of Trade that Canada had andoned the gold standard. This was rrected too late to change market relts. Aside from incorrect report about anada's monetary status, many traders re inclined to look for a decided narwing of differences between Chicago and nnipeg prices, a tendency which was rengthened by word of the opening of ke navigation from Canadian ports and expectance of enlarged European deand.

Friends of higher prices urged also that fects of actual inflation were yet to be countered, and that up to the present heat had risen more on account of mar crop damage than because of anticipatinflation. Today's advances in price re in the face of further rains over y districts of the United States winter heat region.

Corn and oats paralleled upturns of heat.

WINNIPEG, April 22.—Wheat scored mashing price gains on the Winnipeg arket today, closing 4 cents higher than st night's close after the strongest bull rive here in years.

Liberal profit taking in the closing mintes did not retard the bullish uprush. etting under way around mid-session, the arive steadily gained momentum and eached its highest pitch in the final dealgs.

RAIL BONDS LEAD WEEK-END ADVANCE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The bond market climbed aboard certain rails today and moved up another station on the higher price route.

Compared with the preceding two sessions, the trading volume was slightly lower. Sales, however, totaled $9,525,000, par value, or about double the ordinary Saturday's aggregate. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced threetenths of a point.

Transportation issues that advanced 1 to 3 or more points included some of Alleghany Corp., Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Frisco, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Southern Wabash and Western Pacific.

There were some mild irregularities in the utilities and industrials, but gains of fractions to around 2 points were held by issues of American Telephone, American & Foreign Power, Childs Co., Consolidated Gas, Goodrich, International Telephone, Texas Corp. and Western Union.

United States Government securities, while much quieter than usual, displayed a strong undertone generally. Liberty fourths 4¼s eased 1-32d of a point, but all of the other listed issues were up fractionally to nearly a point.

Foreign obligations were mixed. Some of the Germans, after early uncertainty, rallied for 2 or more points. United Kingdom 4s were heavily traded for a gain of 2 points and French 7½s were up 1½. French Government 7s, however, declined 3½ points.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Raw sugar continued its upward movement today on further buying by refiners with spot prices advancing another five points to 3.30c, a new high level for the year.

Sales reported included 64,000 bags of duty frees and 24,000 bags of Cuban late yesterday at 3.28c, and today 25,000 bags of Cuban and 54,000 bags of Philippines at 3.30c for May and June shipment to local and outport refiners. There was also a sale of 25,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment at 3.30c. The market closed with further buyers at this price.

With Monday first notice day for May delivery, there was considerable evening up in that position and exchanging to later months. The market ruled generally steady and closed net unchanged to three points higher. Active trade and Cuban buying carried all positions into new high ground for the movement. May contracts sold from 1.28c to 1.31c, while December rallied from 1.44c to 1.46c. Realizing checked the upturn and final prices were a little off from the best on some positions.

The strength in the spot market was again the principal factor, and reports that the segregation plan in Cuba was meeting considerable opposition seemed to have but little effect.

Approximate sales 74,350 tons, including 23,000 in exchanges. May closed 1.30c, July 1.37c, Sept. 1.40c, Dec. 1.45c, Jan. 1.45c, March 1.48c.

The refined market was unchanged at 4.50c for fine granulated, and it was reported that a good inquiry was reported yesterday before the advance became effective.

Military Honors for Old Tom of the Marines.

By the Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., April 22.—Old Tom, Marine Corps horse, veteran of the Spanish War, was buried today with a salute across his grave in the Portsmouth Navy Yard and taps. The battle-scarred old horse that carried a Marine Corps Colonel through the battles of Camaguey and San Juan Hill in Cuba, and was wounded in the latter engagement, died in his stall yesterday at the age of 41 years.

Tom was buried with full military honors, with every man of the Marine detail of 80 at the barracks here in attendance, and with Col. Chandler Campbell, the commander, speaking on the horses' record in the Spanish War days, and since. A metal slab, appropriately inscribed, will mark Tom's grave.

Secretary Wallace Shows How Roosevelt's Forestry Program Will Save Both Men and Trees

In Relieving Unemployment, U. S. Builds Up Its Natural Resources Which Long Have Been Neglected.

By HENRY A. WALLACE,
Secretary of Agriculture.
(Copyright, 1933.)

AS PART of President Roosevelt's program of unemployment relief the Government is recruiting an army of 250,000 idle men for work in the country's forests. While the immediate object is to provide jobs and afford thousands of the victims of the adversities of depression an opportunity to get a new grip on life, this vast humanitarian enterprise will mean not only the rehabilitation of many men, but the rehabilitation of the nation's forests which have suffered from all too much mistreatment in the past.

Thus in meeting one national tragedy, a later one may be averted.

There long has been a sinister threat in the country's diminishing forest resources. It is the lesson of history that when a nation destroys its forests, it destroys itself, but this country has paid little heed to it.

The seemingly inexhaustible supply of virgin timber found by the first colonists is greatly reduced. The New England States, which originally were so richly endowed, today cannot even supply enough lumber to provide for their own needs, and the same situation prevails elsewhere throughout the Eastern and Central States.

Situation in Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania — Penn's Woods, so named because of its dense covering of trees—today produces less than enough lumber for the Pittsburgh district alone. New York, which only about 80 years ago produced more lumber than any state in the Union, has so far depleted its timber resources that it produces only 10 per cent of its consumption.

Forty years ago lumber men reported that there was "an inexhaustible supply" of white pine in the lake states, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. They said the supply could never be cut away, and yet today it is almost gone.

At the rate the forests have been undergoing depletion it would have been only a matter of a comparatively short time until the United States would be seriously lacking in productive forests.

Forests render vital service in mitigating the serious effects of drouth and floods, by maintaining the great reservoir that nature provides for replenishing the supply of ground water.

Reason for Floods.

Man, in his thoughtless disregard for nature, has been destroying this great reservoir. He cuts the trees away carelessly, and permits fire to spread devastation in its path and destroy the remaining vegetation. Then when the rain comes there is no covering of vegetation to hold it in check; the water sweeps over the surface of the land and swells rivers to overflowing.

As a result there are devastating floods and the water which should have been stored in the ground for future use is carried away to the sea. In lands where floods occur, drouths occur likewise; one is the evil forerunner of the other.

Serious as the damage has been in this country, it is not beyond repair. The United States has millions of acres of forest land that needs only adequate protection and basic improvement work to make it productive.

The emergency conservation work program is to serve the double purpose of aiding unemployed men and accomplishing useful work for the protection and improvement of our forests.

Work in the forests will offer unusual opportunities to men from all walks of life to take a fresh start in a healthful occupation in the open. While the work which will be accomplished is much needed and will be largely self-liquidating, the primary object of the plan is to put men to work promptly.

The President's View.

To quote from President Roosevelt's message, "more important, however, than the material gains will be the moral and spiritual value of such work.

"The overwhelming majority of men who are walking streets and receiving private or public relief, would infinitely prefer to work. We can take a vast army of these unemployed out into healthful surroundings. We can eliminate to some extent at least the threat that enforced idleness brings to spiritual and moral stability. It is not a panacea for all the unemployment but it is an essential step in this emergency."

The administration of the act is by a director of emergency conservation work, acting for the President. The Department of Labor is enrolling the men for work. The men are being housed in temporary assembly camps by the army and furnished with food, shoes, clothing, necessary medical attention and transportation to place of work in the forests.

A first contingent of 25,000 men from 16 cities already is being enrolled by the Department of Labor in co-operation with Federal and state employment services and with welfare agencies in the cities selected.

The Departments of Interior and Agriculture will supervise the work of the organized crews in the national forests, the national parks, the forests on Indian reservations, and on other federally owned lands.

Much of the work will be done on the national forests, under the jurisdiction of the forest service of the Department of Agriculture. The national forests, with a total area of more than 161,000,000 acres in 30 states, offer unlimited opportunities for useful work.

Invitation to Governors.

The act of Congress which authorized the forest work plan provided also for extension of the work to state-owned and private forest lands under co-operative agreements. The Governors of the 48 states were invited by the Department of Agriculture to send representatives to a conference in Washington for the purpose of making plans for the execution of the program on state and private lands.

Work under this program on privately-owned lands will involve only such types of projects as are primarily of public benefit, rather than chiefly of benefit to the owner of the land. This includes such kinds of work as the prevention and control of forest fires, the eradication of insect pests and tree diseases, the control of floods and checking of soil erosion, all of which work is of direct public interest, and the value of which extends far beyond the boundaries of a given tract of land. The Federal Government is already authorized by Congress to co-operate with the states and private land owners in carrying on work of this kind.

In general, four kinds of jobs need doing. One involves protecting forests against fire. Another is the unending fight against the insects and diseases that attack trees and cause gigantic loss. A third job involves flood control and the prevention of soil erosion. The fourth job has to do with making our forests more productive.

As the forests have grown without interference from man, the young trees on hundreds of thousands of acres have formed thickets so dense that the competition for moisture and sunlight has seriously retarded growth. Undernourished and defective trees have

Germany's Drift to Fascism Analyzed by Emil Ludwig

Says Republic Failed Because Leaders Based Government on Spirit of Right, Disregarding Spirit of Power in Nation Accustomed to Be Ruled—Mussolini's Task More Difficult Than Hitler's Because of Critical Attitude of Italian Mind.

By EMIL LUDWIG.
Noted Historian and Biographer.

ASCONA, Switzerland, April 22.

BETWEEN democracy and dictatorship the individualist can choose only the lesser evil, for his instincts are opposed to both.

Democracy attracts him by its freedom of movement and freedom of expression. But the dominance of about 500 mediocrities, of which most of the parliaments are composed, repels him.

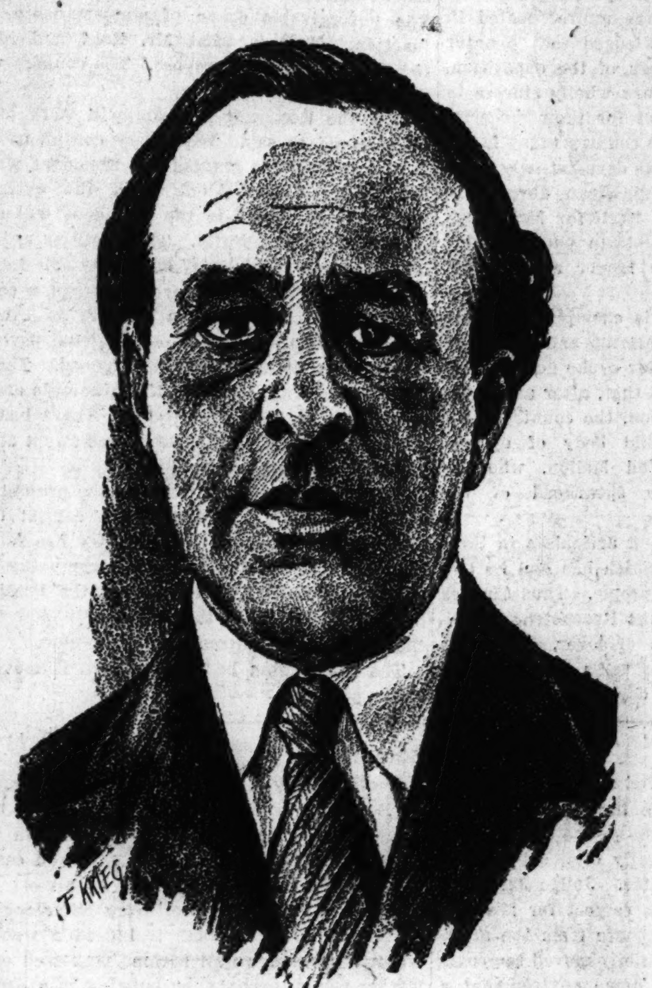
Dictatorship attracts him because of a single personality who attained power through his own talents. But here the lack of freedom is greater, for it spells compulsory measures, censorship, exaltation of the state.

The thinker, with no party affiliation, cannot unreservedly therefore align himself for or against any type of Government. He who has been a student of history recognizes that there has been no ideal state; but that at certain periods certain nations want to be treated differently.

While my general and national viewpoint is opposed to any form of dictatorship, I cannot permit myself to expect an ideal democracy from nations which, under given conditions, do not want it.

Because I have lived as long among Germans as among Italians, I shall attempt to compare the reasons for, and the effect of Fascism in both countries.

Fascism's rise in Italy was much more difficult than in Germany. First of all, the Italians were accustomed, through centuries to eternal warfare among themselves and against the church, to a division of power and violent changes, and had, thereby, become critical, independent and politically minded.



EMIL LUDWIG

The Germans, on the other hand, had carried on civil wars only in the dynastic interests of their Princes, and thus remained dependent, uncritical and were not politically minded.

The Italian history is a long record of political revolts, while the history of Germany contains only one revolution—the reformation.

The Italians love freedom; the Germans love order.

When once I remarked to Mussolini that Fascism would be much more suitable for Germans, but since we had been obeying for 300 years we could not use it, he replied: "That is right. The Italians, on the contrary, have become too critical, and again need a strong hand."

Revolution in Italy Free Choice in Germany.

Therefore Il Duce had to impose Fascism on his people by the violent seizure of the capital, while the Germans chose it of their own free will. Although this choice was accompanied by many suggestive methods, the fact remains that half of the German nation chose this authority, whereas Mussolini in 1922 had only a few deputies with him. Without the march on Rome, votes alone would have gained him little, and therefore he had to forsake legal means for revolutionary.

Thus it was much easier for Hitler to bring the Germans back to a worship of authority. Accustomed to being ruled, the Germans in 1918 when the rusty chains of monarchy fell away, found themselves baffled by their newly gained freedom, with no man prepared to undertake the task of ruling.

The men of Germany today, however, have had time to learn during the last 14 years, by the errors of the Socialists and confronted with Italian and Russian example, to adopt suitable methods. All the outer evidences they have taken directly from the Italians.

Secondly, it is easier to convert Germans into Fascists because they are the best organized people in the world, with the army above and the trades unions below. They have hundreds of organizations, groups and vereins, in which they are happy, for everyone wishes to see a superior and subordinates—necessary for self-expression.

Whereas Mussolini has had to reorganize a country that is three-fourths agricultural, Adolf Hitler found in the ranks of the old imperial German Army and in the trades unions organs which function wonderfully.

Thinks Socialism May Be Goal of Hitler and Mussolini.

The masses are the same everywhere, and since the new party calls itself National Socialist, the so-called masses hope that a new slogan and a new flag will realize their desires. It is also quite possible that Hitler is heading for Socialism, the same as Mussolini.

For this reason the development of a party dictatorship in Germany will be similar to that in Russia, whereas in reality Italy is ruled today by one man, a manner in which as the history shows again and again she has been ruled in the past.

The German has always been proud of being the subject of a king and a member of a religious hierarchy. Hitler personally will never attain the power wielded by Mussolini, but his party may become as powerful as that of the Communists in Russia.

Thirdly, it was easier for Hitler to reach the masses because the Germans suffered from the results of a great defeat—for which neither Jews nor Communists, but the supremacy of the enemy, was responsible.

A conquered people, made wretched by a world crisis, is more prone to heed the promises of a subtle leader than a victorious country which at the time has had to cope with unrest, but not to face catastrophe.

Speaks in Praise of Mussolini's Statesmanship.

Mussolini could reproach his predecessors only with the loss of Fiume, since they had acquired two large provinces. Hitler could dwell on the lost territories and impress a self-conscious people with the conviction that these could be easily regained.

Mussolini, in addition, not wishing to find himself in a vacuum, retained the formal authority for the king, while Hitler had to find an ersatz (economic substitute) for the loss in 1918 of an authority vested in an overlord.

Il Duce had to create for Italy a new position in the world to counteract the position of an Italy badly treated by the Allies at Paris.

Hitler, on the other hand, carries on a structure which for 14 long years had been painfully builded by Stresemann and other national leaders who struggled for Germany. Hitler seized the rudder at the hour when three of the chief points of the Versailles treaty had been abrogated by the statesmanship of his predecessors, and equally by the lapse of time. Whereas Rathenau was faced in his time by an unfriendly Europe, Hitler confronted a Europe friendly to the Reich.

A confirmed opponent of Fascism, therefore, cannot help but admire the statesmanship of Mussolini, who for 10 long years has known how to rule so critical a people. Hitler deals with a people of whom half is happy to be ruled, no longer having to think, choose or take sides. Mussolini in the early days ran the danger of a counter-revolt, whereas Hitler could lose his power only in a struggle with his allies.

Then, too, there is the militaristic spirit of the nation.

The German is not in himself more militaristic than other people; he likes the discipline only because he thinks and lives in an atmosphere of giving or receiving orders.

Some Reasons for Failure Of the German Republic.

Had the German republic functioned with flags and parades, with storm troops, maneuvers and torch light processions, it would have won the allegiance of millions, whereas the attempt to build on a higher level, without all the old visible form and show, made the majority of Germans doubt the life force of their Government.

The German Government of the last 14 years, based on the spirit of right and disregarding entirely the spirit of power, discredited itself in the eyes of a people raised to worship power since the days of Bismarck and even earlier.

This change was best symbolized by the fact that in 1919 no enthusiasm was stirred in Weimar, because the "City of the Constitution" was for Germans the home of the poet Goethe. But now the coup in Potsdam made all hearts beat faster, for it was the residence of their soldier kings.

In Germany, therefore, the danger is greater. Should Hitler develop Mussolini's talent, which is that of avoiding war, it is doubtful that he will be able to keep peace when the people are armed with the weapons he is now forging for them. William II, who delivered as fiery speeches, who always feared war and never wanted it, was finally overruled by his generals.

Difficulty of Averting War In a Defeated Nation.

It is also more difficult to restrain from war a beaten Germany because revenge is alive, and has all the appearance of being just, whereas Italy had no spirit of revenge to cope with. Italy, in addition, is burdened by the expense of heavy armaments, while Germany would by the creation of armaments take care of 1,000,000 unemployed, thereby causing the securities of the heavy industries to soar on the exchanges, and thus giving within a year the appearance of prosperity.

In this manner, the Germans will soon forget their "bad conscience" which always accompanies a loss of freedom. For it is not because they had no leaders that the attempt to turn into Democrats failed. It was because the leaders they did have, operated under a form of Government foreign to German character.

That the Germans have not restored the monarchy is not the fault of the people, who would welcome their Princes gladly; it is due to the refusal of the new wielders of power, who have no desire to share the people's mandate with reactionary royalists.

Mussolini did not have the benefit of popular instincts favorable to the establishment of a dictatorship. He surprised Italy by insisting on order and discipline, and began by training Italians to obey authority. He said: "I want to school Italy, not according to the exact mold of old Prussia, but to something similar."

This confession, which is to be found in my book "Conversations," shows clearly how much more easily he considers Fascism can be imposed on Germany.

The position of the intellectuals in the two countries also differs.

Mussolini has built his ideology on the dramas, poems and speeches of his contemporary, the great Italian poet D'Annunzio, and has taken ideas from Nietzsche. Thus Mussolini honored Italy's greatest poet and also made Croce, her leading philosopher—by no

Success of London Economic Conference Depends on Results Of Conversations at Washington

—Lloyd George.

Roosevelt Has Shown the Way for a Straight-From-the-Shoulder Discussion of Problems Confronting the World.

(Former Prime Minister of Great Britain.)
(Copyright, 1933.)

LONDON, April 22.

THE delegates stealing across the Atlantic to meet President Roosevelt in economic conferences must have received an electric shock when they read the wireless messages about America's decision to go off the gold standard.

What will happen now? The poor pilgrims have arrived at their destination stunned and dazed. They started in order to discuss one situation. By the time they have arrived, they are confronted by a totally different problem. Had they known what was awaiting them, they would not have been in such a hurry to start. But they are there, and must deal with things as they find them. That makes the Washington talk a momentous event.

Many cities have at one time or another been boosted by their citizens or acknowledged by outside opinion as "The Hub of the Universe." At the present moment that proud title may be justly accorded Washington, which is playing the part of the hub round which the whole economic prospects of the world are revolving.

After the gold decision of America, things will spin in a different direction from that anticipated a week ago.

Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Japan, China, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico and Canada—eleven of the leading countries of the world—are sending personal representatives, either their Prime Minister or someone whose official and personal position make him an authoritative exponent of his country's opinions, to visit the United States President at Washington and consult with him about the world's economic future.

At Washington the 12 apostles of economic peace will foregather. That President Roosevelt should have displayed the magnetism to draw them across oceans to visit him is a tribute, not only to the depth of world distress but to the admiration and hope which he has kindled throughout the world.

Inspiring Courage.

For, although in the course of of the last three or four years the United States has experienced a more dramatic and tragic collapse than any other country, from the height of unexampled prosperity to the depth of adversity, its new President has already, in the short time he has spent in office, shown a resolution and courage that are inspiring, not only to his own countrymen but the other nations of the world.

He has proved himself to possess that rare and invaluable combination of qualities in a statesman, a clear vision of the national need, readiness to shoulder responsibility, and, having done so, courage to act and to carry through, when in power, plans he had thought out beforehand.

Too many politicians are full of schemes and suggestions when out of office, but become stricken by ineptitude as soon as they are put in charge of affairs. For some men responsibility is a stimulus, for others it is a palsy.

The Merit of Vigor.

Whether or not the measures which President Roosevelt has put into force in America to check the slump and pave the way for return of prosperity prove to be as effectual as everyone hopes they will, they have beyond all question the merit of vigor and considered boldness.

He has already struck a match that has lit a beacon of hope for nations shrouded in gloom. Leaders of other countries, with hands pressed to their aching brows and thoughts whirling in aimless confusion, are inevitably attracted by such clear-cut decision and are heading hopefully for Washington in search of light and guidance.

Ahead of them all looms the prospect of the world economic conference which takes place in London in June. That is no academic convention, a meeting to voice pleasant platitudes and reaffirm accepted economic views. The world is in a desperate mess and, unless statesmanship can find a way out, every country will be faced with deepening poverty, unemployment, and disorder, leading, it may be in some cases, to chaos and a breakdown of government. But success depends more on the Washington talks than on the London duma.

All Up to Washington.

Washington will be a direct face-to-face talk on all economic problems that worry nations and it will take place between persons who will have the final say in recommending the tentative decisions arrived at, first of all to the cabinet, and then to the world conference.

The talk must be in private where harangues are out of place and business alone is tolerable.

The London conference, on the other hand, will, like all conferences, be more of a mass meeting. The chairman will repeat the now classic oration he delivers on all those occasions and the rest of the distinguished delegates will deliver speeches to their own respective public. If the London conference is to be a success, it will be because it ratifies and registers the settlement already practically reached at Washington.

Unless Washington conventions settle the main outlines of agreement what prospects are there of decisions being reached at London?

A Man of Action.

Each of the countries that will be called upon to take a determining part in the discussions there has been waiting at home, hoping for the best, thinking what it could ask its neighbors to sacrifice for the common good, and doing nothing to insure that any agreement would be reached or any clear, constructive program brought forward at the outset.

The preparatory commission of experts, it is true, had drawn up an agenda for the conference containing a series of suggestions. But, if everyone waits until the conference opens before exploring how far any sort of an agreement can be achieved between important countries in regard to any of these suggestions, experiences show that the outcome will be an immense amount of wasted time, fruitless talk, and the reference of all vital matters to sub-committees of expert advisers who will split hairs until further orders.

In view of this, President Roosevelt has once again shown himself a man of action and practical directness. He has invited the heads of 11 countries to come and talk things over with him in advance, so that when the conference opens there may be laid before it clear, concise proposals which had been found in these preliminary discussions to have some chance of being carried into effect.

Getting Things Done.

He is not concerned to "make gestures," or to "manifest goodwill." He wants to get things done. There will be plenty of gesticulation at the conference. At Washington there will, I hope, be a serious attempt to get down to real business. If that attempt is successful, then we may hope for progress in London in June.

The difficulty is not so much to know what ought to be done

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

For Russian Recognition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NO doubt a great deal of pressure will be exerted upon the Roosevelt administration to deny recognition to Russia. Those who are opposed to such a mere formality are too childishly prejudiced against Communism to be able to judge the facts impartially. Grant that the United States extends recognition to Russia. Grant that the Soviets would engage in all the nefarious plots to overthrow our Government. What is to prevent the United States from breaking off relations again? Nothing would be lost in trying the experiment.

More than likely, Russia would not jeopardize our hard-won recognition (which she values above that of any other nation) by engaging in Communistic propaganda. She would be on good behavior. Her hysteria would be allayed by the sobering, stabilizing influence of American recognition. She would gradually change from a vivid red to a pale pink.

The plain fact is that the interests of Russia, to a striking extent, run parallel with those of America. Most important of all, both are opposed to the present Japanese policy of Asiatic domination. If the foundations of the governments of England, France, Germany, Italy and Japan have not been destroyed by their relations with Russia, why, in the name of common sense, should our 100 per centers be against recognition? Their argument is usually a lot of hackneyed Fourth of July platitudes about our free institutions, sacred individual rights, etc., all of which is all right in its place, but is certainly not facing a situation realistically.

Communism is simply a passing phase in Russia's transition from medievalism to modernity. So long as she has reason to consider herself the victim of an imperialistic and capitalistic plot, Russia will be a disturbing influence in the world. Let our Government not be influenced by the traditional and bitter anti-Russianism of the British, who, nonetheless, maintain diplomatic relations with the Slavic nation. Is there really any good reason for America's withholding recognition to a state which the greatest Powers in the world have already recognized?

HENRY TUHOLSKE.

A Tribute to Mr. Dickmann.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE new deal is on. Mayor Dickmann has begun his administration in a manner most pleasing. Appointing men of the ability and character of Edward E. Wall, Ralph W. Coale, Charles M. Hay and Baxter L. Brown is most commendable and speaks well for the future of our city.

No doubt, Mr. Dickmann meant all he said in his campaign speeches. This being the case, all who favored him with their votes on April 4 will find themselves entitled to be proud of the action they took. Edgar Guest, in one of his poems, asks for "the truer type of man." In Barney Dickmann, St. Louis has found that man.

MIKE MURPHY.

Prediction.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I PREDICT that the 30-hour bill will not pass the House of Representatives, and that if it does by some miracle, Chief Justice Hughes will cast the deciding vote in the Supreme Court to declare the law unconstitutional.

What, by the way, has become of the investigation of Wall Street? Did Messrs. Whitney and Morgan stop it? And the bank investigation—did Mr. Morgan stop that, too, or did John Davis merely arrange for enough time so that Morgan can prepare a bona-fide case and be completely whitewashed?

You must have had your fingers crossed when you appealed editorially to East St. Louis corporations to help prosecute the man whom they corrupted in order that they might evade just taxes. Are not these corporations at least equally guilty with that poor official, who was merely trying to do on a small scale what these same corporations are doing on a large scale? Surely you are not so naive as not to know that it takes an extremely honest and upright man to withstand all temptations for graft put in his way by our high and mighty corporations, and such men as a rule do not run for office.

Remember that not until corporations and officials of corporations have the fear of some effective laws against bribery of public officers will we have clean and incorruptible public officials.

COMMONER.

Why the Waste Occurred.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTICED on your editorial page a good one on Mr. Brisbane, about the height and weight of the Pope as compared with a certain prize fighter named Carnera.

A month or so ago, Mr. Brisbane spoke of the waste in army equipment of some 4,000,000 pairs of chocolate-colored shoes "because the men did not like this color."

The real reason for that waste was that the general orders said that we were to do away with those chocolate-colored shoes and put on hobnails only. Hence we had to like hobs or go barefooted.

E. F. BEGUELIN.

America Drifts No More

All the so-called extraordinary powers President Roosevelt has previously asked for are eclipsed by those embodied in the currency bill. The Republican statement of general opposition to the pending measure, specifying one particular, declares "it is unthinkable that there should be vested in any individual the arbitrary power to alter the value of money." . . .

In any situation other than that confronting the country and the world, it probably would be unthinkable. But it certainly is thinkable now, it has been proposed, and, according to the news from Washington, it will be promptly granted.

The Democratic majority in Senate and House is solidly behind the President, apparently, and determined to go through with the program. It cannot otherwise discharge its responsibility to a nation which elected it for the purpose of leading it out of the wilderness.

More important, perhaps, than the attitude of the Congress is the support of public opinion which Mr. Roosevelt commands, in a degree unprecedented in our history. Let it be acknowledged that Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, spokesman of the opposition, and his Republican associates, are wholly sincere in their position. With all respect for their sincerity and their recognized ability, the country today is not listening to them. The point was devastatingly made by the Springfield (Mass.) Republican during the campaign when, in announcing itself for Mr. Roosevelt, it declared that the Republican party, having lost public confidence, was no longer a competent agency of government.

The truth of that assertion is exemplified in the present instance. Republican alarms and fears and predictions of failure and disaster evoke no response. To the counsel of negation, and that, after all, is the substance of Republican objection, the country turns a deaf ear. There is no solid body of opinion behind Messrs. Reed, Mills and Mellon, who are understood to constitute the spearhead of the opposition.

Even Republicans are becoming articulate in their opposition to a negative view which has had its test and lost the confidence of the people. Thus Charles A. Miller, former president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation under Mr. Hoover, expresses "amazement at President Roosevelt's grasp of the very complex causes of our depression" and calls upon the country to support him. Says Mr. Miller:

> Even the impending inflation, which seems to be necessary rather than voluntary, may turn out to be a good thing, in spite of our old and conservative economic notions.
> If the new radical school of economic thought can get us into a worse scrape than the old-fashioned conservative did, I shall be surprised. Our economic future is in our own hands. . . . A courageous leader can do more for us than all the wisdom of the economists, and we seem to have one.
> It is our duty to give him loyal backing and not to expect miracles from him. He may make mistakes, but still we must back him up. The only way to be sure of avoiding mistakes in this crisis is to do nothing, which would be the greatest mistake of all.

Under Republican leadership the country drifted slowly but steadily towards the rocks. The efforts and manuevers of the Hoover administration may have retarded the drift, but they did not stop it, and, assuredly, they did not turn the current in the other direction. The hour has struck for action. The unforgivable crime of statesmanship today is inaction. That is what Mr. Reed and his fellow Republican objectors propose. The country will have no more of it.

How the Roosevelt program will work out we do not pretend to say. What may confidently be said is that the powers granted the President will not be inadvisedly used. Along with the extraordinary powers to be vested in the President will go a proportionate responsibility. The qualities exhibited by Mr. Roosevelt in his brief but really epic incumbency of the presidential office are a courage, a confidence, a buoyancy of decision, a mastery of events, that have already transformed our national psychology.

Action is the Roosevelt watchword. There is no fear, no timidity, in him. His proposals and actions thus far have been electrifying. There has been an air of inspiring gallantry as he has swept along from emergency to emergency.

Emergency is not the word for the present moment. This is a crisis. It demands a capital operation. The surgeon is ready. The country has faith in his skill and resolution. It has no sympathy with the outcries of those who insist that the President and his party will "ruin the country." That is always the alarm of an intrenched status quo.

The Civilized Man

What civilization seems to need above all else just now is the civilized man. We have such men, of course, but they are rare. Recently, the country had the good fortune to meet a really civilized man in the retrial of the Scottsboro case. Judge James E. Horton, by his poise, tolerance, respect for law and devotion to justice, evoked a tribute from the attorney for the defense which profoundly moved the country. Unknown outside of his home environment a few weeks ago, he is today a national asset. If procedure permitted, public opinion would, we believe, gladly leave the decision of the case to Judge Horton, serenely sure that justice would be done.

Another truly civilized man will soon be with us—M. Herriot, who is to represent France at the White House conference. No one doubts that in his hands the interests of France are in safe and capable custody, but in the same degree, or almost the same degree, are the interests of every other country.

The quality of fairness is indeed a wonderful attribute. Should we all become possessed of it, civilization would, perhaps, be budding into Utopia. That realization is not imminent. At present, civilization is anxiously concerned with the pressing need of saving itself. If it is to do so, it must seek, find and enlist in its service the civilized man.

How Foreign Bondholders Learn

One of the war's results was to make America financier to the world; but that career, so confidently entered upon, now has a gloomy aspect. Foreign bonds (exclusive of war loans) held in this country are estimated to total $7,835,000,000, of which $6,125,000,000 are Government issues or guaranteed by Governments. Of these, $1,486,047,000 worth, or more than one-sixth, are wholly or partially in default. The defaulters include nine European countries, seven South American and two Central American. Many other issues, not in default, have shrunken in value.

It is a sorry situation, and there is natural bitterness over the way these foreign debtors have made away with our good American dollars. Yet America is only learning the lesson that dear experience has taught other countries—that financing the world is a proud position, but a risky one. England, whose position as major money lender we have usurped, learned the lesson years ago, and eight of our Southern states were among the teachers.

The repudiated loans of these states total about $72,574,000, as nearly as can now be determined, and accrued interest is estimated at about $300,000,000 more. These were not war loans, for money lent to the Confederacy was frankly a gamble. The creditors wrote off such loans when the South was vanquished, and the Federal Constitution was amended to disavow all debts "in aid of insurrection or rebellion." The loans in questions were for financial and industrial enterprises, both before and after the Civil War, and the repudiations totaled as follows:

Alabama	$12,574,000	Mississippi....	7,000,000
Arkansas	8,700,000	North Carolina	12,600,000
Florida	7,000,000	South Carolina	6,000,000
Georgia	12,700,000
Louisiana	6,000,000		$72,574,000

The original investments proceeded from conditions similar to those that inspired our own loans abroad. These Southern states were ambitious for development and had high hopes of the future. They founded state banks, helped build railroads, levees, barge lines and canals. Capital was scarce at home, but London had plenty of funds. So bonds were marketed there, and in 1838 there were bonfires, illuminations and salutes by great guns at Jackson, Miss., to greet the arrival of $5,000,000 in British gold and specie. Little of it ever went back.

All seemed promising for a time in the South, but then the boom collapsed. Banks began to fail, railroads to default on interest payments. There followed efforts at refunding, charges that some of the bond issues were illegal, long litigation and finally repudiation. The cycle was repeated on a smaller scale in Reconstruction days, a duplicate of Europe's post-war era, and with equally disastrous results.

The case of Mississippi is cited by the British Foreign Bondholders' Corporation as "the worst on record and perfectly inexcusable." A mismanaged bank, for which the State had supplied capital, suspended, and the Legislature denied liability. The matter was a campaign issue in 1852, and the people voted, by a majority of 4000, to repudiate the bonds of this and another bank which also had failed in the meantime. Not content with this, repudiation was written into the new Constitution adopted by Mississippi in 1875, naming the two banks and forbidding payment. One other State, Georgia, also wrote a repudiation clause into its Constitution, in the year 1877.

Our holders of foreign bonds will agree in principle with what the London Times said of American state issues: "A bond does not die, and, in the case of a state, the stigma of a repudiation is perpetuated during the existence of a dishonored issue which bears the seal of sovereignty."

This all-but-forgotten British chapter in international finance has been repeated in our own experience. Our lenders abroad are learning what Barron's Weekly says such an investor must be—"a skeptical realist rather than a credulous optimist."

The Plight of Farm Prices

The purpose of the administration's farm bill, as set forth in its text, is to "re-establish prices to farmers at a level that will give agricultural commodities a purchasing power, with respect to articles that farmers buy, equivalent to the purchasing power of agricultural commodities in the pre-war period, August, 1909, to July, 1914." That some such readjustment is necessary is self-evident, if the millions of dwellers on farms are to be restored to their proper place in the national economy. The magnitude of what the administration promises, however, becomes apparent when prices for 1909-14 and the present are compared. Cash figures on representative commodities are as follows:

	Wheat.	Cotton.	Corn.	Oats.	Beef.	Hogs.	Eggs.	Butter.	Wool.
Feb. av., '09-'14.	89.2c	12.3c	60.1c	39.8c	$5.11	$7.12	23.7c	26.6c	18.5c
Feb., '33.	32.3c	5.5c	19.4c	13.3c	$3.31	$2.94	11c	18.4c	8.8c

These prodigious price drops tell only half the story, however. The terrific deflation in farm prices had been preceded by an equally violent and ultimately damaging boom in farm prices. Average figures for 1920 show what a fantastic range of quotations has been suffered by agriculture. Among the figures for 1920 are: wheat, $2.45 to $2.56; cotton, 33 cents; corn, $1.39 to $1.41; oats, 79.6 cents; beef cattle, $14.48; hogs, $14.71; eggs, 51.6 to 56.9 cents; wool, 97.1 cents. A brief glance back at the 1933 figures will show graphically how the farmer has been catapulted from prosperity to depression.

Price quotations for farm products alone, however, are not an accurate gauge of the farmers' plight. The farm bill makes it clear that the basis is to be the relation of the goods sold by farmers to the goods they buy. The Department of Agriculture has prepared figures showing these facts. It uses the figure 100 as the index number for prices received by farmers in 1909-14, and also for the prices of goods they bought. By last month, the latter figure had risen to 104; the former, representing farm income, had fallen to 49. Thus, it is apparent that if the farmers' economic parity is to be restored, the prices of agricultural products will have to be more than doubled if other prices remain the same.

The farmer's plight thus is caused only in part by the sharp reduction in the commodities from which he derives his income. It originates chiefly in the higher price range maintained for the goods he must buy. While farm prices fell about 50 per cent in the period from 1909-14 to date, taxes paid by farmers rose 115 per cent. The prices of textile products, fuel, building materials, implements, house furnishings, etc., have fallen comparatively little since the pre-war period. These price inequalities make the farm problem the most difficult domestic question facing the new administration, but a pledge that the present farm bill will correct them is, as Walter Lippmann says, "a promise to do something which it may be quite impossible to do."

The Empty Hand

WILL THEY PAY? A PRIMER OF THE WAR DEBTS. By Dorsey Richardson. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

IN a recently published book entitled "Coolidge Wit and Wisdom," there is a supposedly pithy saying of the late Sage of Northampton on the subject of the war debts. This extremely simple contribution to the vexed question was made in 1925 for the benefit of the late Myron T. Herrick, then our Ambassador to France. Herrick had been urging leniency with our debtors, carefully analyzing the problem involved. At the conclusion of the Ambassador's argument, the President of the United States, foregoing briefly the great negative virtue of his habitual silence, remarked dryly: "Well, they hired the money, didn't they?"

Apparently "A Primer of the War Debts" was needed in the White House eight years and more ago, and it seems that we still have with us statesmen who might spell out such a primer with profit. How much greater, then, must be the need of the rest of us for elementary instruction!

As will be noted, Dorsey Richardson tags his primer with a question, "Will They Pay?" He does not answer "Yes" or "No." He states the problem clearly in a most unstatesmanlike manner, realizing that any problem clearly stated is at least half solved, and often wholly so. The answer is here implicit in the statement, and it is the same now as when the wise men of the world were spider-weaving at Versailles their fatal net of woe for helpless millions.

There had been a four-year fury of destruction, and it was clear to the putative victors that they should be reimbursed for their tremendous outlays and their losses. Had it occurred to them that a clear statement of the whole human problem involved was the fundamental necessity, the undesirability, not to mention the impossibility, of reimbursement might have become obvious. But those were shrewd practical men of affairs, bringing to the consideration of their problem the same hopeless intellectual blindness that had created the problem. They believed that their enemy was Germany defeated. They could not see what was clear to many then, and is becoming clearer every day, that their real enemy was also Germany's enemy, the whole world's enemy; and that by virtue of their blindness to the fact, that enemy was the victor and it was the human race that was defeated.

For the enemy was an economic scheme that had and has a fatal joker in it; and that joker had been offering the infatuate world a relatively mild initial object lesson. Had the lesson been studied and learned, even practical men might have come to the obvious conclusion that what had been destroyed had been destroyed; that the cost of greed and folly was the cost; and that no amount of writing upon paper, or agreements made to pay, could do better, at the best, than to postpone the hell potential in the fact for other men to suffer.

There were a few really quite respectable economists, not to mention "wild-eyed radicals," who knew the answer to Dorsey Richardson's question then, and gave it. They pointed out not only why the proposition involved an absurdity, but why, if payment were possible, the effect upon the creditors' internal economy would be the opposite of that anticipated.

But the "practical" mentality was still in the ascendant, much as in the case of the chimpanzee and the coconut trap. There was a hole in the coconut shell and there was rice inside. Having grasped the rice within, the hand could not be withdrawn; and it is not written in the book of simian wisdom that there may be virtue in an empty hand.

The parable may be extended to cover the whole complex social muddle of our time without loss of pertinence.

"HE" of the title was a reporter on a daily newspaper, and at the age of 29 he found himself quite fed up on the repetitious story of men's petty doings. So, with $600 saved, he decided to take a leave of absence for a year and live a hermit's life in a shack on the shore of the Pacific. Nothing at all happened out there—that is to say, nothing that a city editor could properly call news—but there were great moments of sudden return to the primal wonder, and there was much rudimentary philosophizing about the mystery of man's place in the universe, always with the old result of saddening perplexity. The book ends with the hermit's musing, in a mood mildly tinged with a cynical despair, upon his inevitable return to that from which he had fled.

It is a likable and very human little book, well suited to serve as a channel for the diversion of the reader's world-weariness and disgust in a harmless direction. The blurb alleges that "He" returned "as from a pilgrimage, refreshed," but the final chapter scarcely supports the statement.

THIS translation of "The Divine Comedy" by one of the foremost Dante scholars first appeared in an expensive edition two years ago, and was received with high praise by other leading Dante scholars. It is now reissued at a popular price.

According to the consensus of authoritative opinion, it would seem to be the most satisfactory English version yet published. Prof. Fletcher has preserved the effect of the original terza-rima, as he points out in his preface, although omitting the rhyme which in the original binds the three-line stanzas together, thus avoiding monotony. Certainly the poem reads easily in Prof. Fletcher's version, and experts have vouched for the faithfulness of the rendering, both in letter and spirit.

Without venturing to question the essential greatness of the poem as a work of literary art, a lay reader may be forgiven if it should occur to him that the mythology of "The Divine Comedy" seems about as ugly and inhumane as any that man has invented. Also, there are passages that certainly seem to reveal a meanness of spirit not easily associated with the idea of a great poet in his moments of creative vision.

One of the most puzzling examples of such meanness is to be found in Canto VII of "Hell," when Dante gloats over the torture of Filippo Argenti, whom he had hated in life. The quotation will serve as well give the reader a glance at the translator verse structure. Dante is speaking to Virgil, his guide through the infernal regions:

"Master," said I, "it were a very boon
To see him once well soused here in this broth
Before we take our leave of this lagoon."
And he to me: "Before the farther side Show itself clearly thou shalt have thy will;
'Tis fitting such a wish be gratified."
And soon I saw that rabble of the mud
All set upon him with such savagery
That still I render praise and thanks to God.

The lay reader's puzzlement over passage so pettily personal in a great poem is not lessened by the thought that the poem is allegedly Christian.

LET THE HURRICANE ROAR. By Rose Wilder Lane. (Longmans Green & Co., New York City.)

DURING the years when the social body raved in the delirium of that high fever which, under the name of Progress, was mistaken for the potent glow of a new and miraculous social health, there grew up in our literature a school of so-called "realistic" rural fiction which was hailed with enthusiasm. It was the purpose of the writers of such fiction to reveal at last how unspeakably sordid, mean and ugly farm life was and always had been.

This view of farm life was generally accepted, and no doubt still is, as an indication that our literature had at last grown up and become civilized. Unsophisticated people might still fall for the old "hokum" about the joys and satisfactions of life close to the earth, but you couldn't kid the "modern" mind.

Critics should have known, but apparently did not, that the fashion for such deprecation of rural life indicated nothing more than that the urban view of life was in the ascendant and that the economic and social drift was cityward. The fashion was merely a minor manifestation of the fever. We are still deathly sick, having reached the stage of subnormal temperature and sinking spells; so we are by no means ready yet to reconsider the foolish pronouncements of delirium. But it is a certainty that social health will always be based upon a profound sense of man's relation to the soil and of the essential beauty and goodness of that relation.

Those who have experienced farm life in the humble, grateful, loving mood which it normally inspires when society is sane, will be grateful to Rose Wilder Lane for her pioneering idyll, "Let the Hurricane Roar." It is a simple, unsophisticated story of a young newly married couple who go West and take up a claim on the prairies. The author does not overlook the hardships and deprivations of such a life. On the contrary, these furnish the physical body of the story, and surely no writer has given in so little space a more vivid account of unyielding toil and heart-breaking disappointments. But if hardships are the body of the story, there is a spirit within that glorifies the body. It is the spirit that matters most in genuine realism, and it is precisely the spirit that escapes the so-called "realistic" fictioneer.

This is a lovable little book, and, in the only sense that matters in the long run, really true.

WANTS TO OPEN CITY AUDITORIUM WITH GRAND OPERA

Guy Golterman Would Have Annual Season With Local Chorus, Ballet and Orchestra.

A brief season of grand opera to dedicate the Municipal Auditorium when it is completed early next year is planned by Guy Golterman, operatic producer. He would make the grand opera season an annual event at the auditorium.

Golterman has outlined to city officials and civic leaders a plan to produce the operas with a chorus and ballet of St. Louisans, music to be supplied by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The leading roles would be sung by outstanding stars to be brought to St. Louis, and the technical staff would also be brought here from outside.

He proposes for the first season eight evening performances and two matinees, opening with Verdi's "Aida." Two of the more popular works of Wagner, Puccini and Mascagni would be played, with Bizet's "Carmen" as a possibility.

The time is past, Golterman said, when a few wealthy patrons will underwrite the expense of bringing large opera companies to their city.

"Our symphony orchestra can play operatic music as eloquently as any orchestra in New York," Golterman said. "A chorus of 100 voices can be formed and trained locally. No city has better ballet material than can be found in the dancing schools of St. Louis. This system provides opera of the highest artistic standard at admission prices the people can afford to pay."

Golterman produced "Aida" for the dedication of the Municipal Theater in Forest Park in 1917. Last summer he presented six nights of grand opera at the dedication of the new municipal stadium in Cleveland.

In support of his proposal Golterman made public statements of indorsement received from Mayor Dickmann, former Mayor Kiel, President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, City Counselor Hay, Daniel G. Taylor, Edward A. Faust, L. W. Baldwin, Edwin A. Lemp, Louis LaBeaume, Marion C. Early, Charles H. Stix, Charles F. Hatfield, Guy Thompson, Jacob M. Lashly and Ralf Toensfeldt.

Germany's Drift To Fascism as Viewed by Ludwig means friendly to his admistration —a Senator.

On the other hand, in Germany there is not a single name known outside her borders that has associated itself with the Fascist movement. Those Germans best known to the world are in opposition and suffer persecution.

In Italy, for example, Jews are chancellors of universities, Generals and high state officials, while in Germany they are being systematically dismissed.

The separation of state and intellectuals which has characterized Germany's history for 500 years has again come to the forefront.

Rome and Florence were from time immemorial centers of power and culture. Although there are today many Italian intellectuals opposed to their rulership, a separation in Italy such as exists between Potsdam and Weimar would be unthinkable.

Two Germanys Drifting Farther and Farther Apart.

Germany is distinguished by the lack of harmony between the history of the state and the history of her culture. Here, too, lies the decided difference between the German and the French spirit. The German is in matters of intellect personally self-willed, without schooling, vague; but in matters of state organized and decided — the Frenchman is in matters of government an individualist and difficult to train, but in thought he is organized, steady and decided. A logical people is contrasted with a musical people.

Because in Germany a government has been established which may endure and which, as in the Kaiser's time, has separated itself from its finest minds, the number of Germany's intellectuals emigrating will be larger than that of Italy.

Thus the world will again have to become accustomed to differentiate between the two Germanys which for a moment seemed on the point of blending, but which today are drifting farther and farther apart. This is not so much the spirit of Frederick the Great in contrast to the spirit of Goethe; it is rather the ideal of a drill sergeant working counter to the ideal of the thinking civilian.

Not being a pupil of Hegel, I do not believe in his dictum that everything that is is reasonable. But it is a tragic truth that Fascism is suitable for the Germans, a truth against which one can only arm himself by utilizing in his work the correctives of past centuries.

By separating himself from Fascism, the German intellectual assumes no responsibility for the events that are shaping themselves.

VAN DYKE WILL NAMES 3 LITERARY EXECUTORS

They Will Handle Unpublished Manuscripts of Writer and Theologian.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., April 22.—Unpublished manuscripts of the late Dr. Henry Van Dyke, writer, theologian and war-time Minister to the Netherlands, are placed in the hands of three literary executors, under a provision in his will admitted to probate today. Dr. Van Dyke died April 10 in his Princeton home.

The appointees are Dr. John H. Finley, editor and educator of New York; Maxwell Struthers Burt, Princeton, author and the Rev. Tertuis Van Dyke, a son, of Washington, Conn. They are given full authority ot make such use of the manuscripts, correspondence, and literary papers as they deem advisable.

Princeton University is to receive his collection of first editions of Tennyson and Stevenson. The remainder of Dr. Van Dyke's library is to be divided by the son, Tertius, so that "well-cherished friends" shall receive souvenirs, as well as the testator's four daughters, sons-in-law and brother, Dr. Paul Van Dyke, professor emeritus, of history at Princeton University.

The author of "Fisherman's Luck" remembered his two Canadian guides, Iside and Henri Gravelle, of Sainte Maguerite, Saguenay, Quebec, with $250 in cash each. His secretary, Agnes Rix Downes, is bequeathed $2000 in bonds. Other employes also received bequests.

Other legacies are: Board of pensions of Presbyterian Church in United States of America, $5000 for service pension fund; Princeton Hospital, $1000, and Maine Sea Coast Mission, $1000.

His widow is given life time use of "Avalon," the Princeton home, and "Sylvanora," a property at Seal Harbor, Me., after which the son, Tertius, is given their use. The latter is also named to inherit the copyrights of all published books and articles, together with royalties.

The value of the estate has not been determined. The residue is placed in trust for the life time use of Mrs. Van Dyke. After her death, Dr. Van Dyke's son and four daughters will share equally in the income, with the testator's grandchildren and their surviving issue eventually to inherit shares of the principal as they become 25 years of age.

VENICE'S NEW BRIDGE LETS AUTOS ENTER FOR FIRST TIME

VENICE, Italy, April 22.—Venice's dream of generations will be realized Tuesday with the dedication of the $4,500,000 bridge connecting the city of the lagoons with the mainland, two and a half miles away. Some of the older residents who have never been outside the city will see an automobile for the first time in their lives.

The automobile will not banish the gondola, or the chauffeur, the gondolier. The farthest the motor car can penetrate into the "most serene republic" is a broad space at the point of Venice proper, near the railroad station, bounded by the Santa Chiara canal, the San Andrea Canal and the Papadopoli Gardens.

Here an enormous automobile hotel has been constructed with present capacity for 1000 automobiles, future capacity 2000, and with a parking space for 1000 more cars around it.

Secretary Wallace Discusses Roosevelt's Forestry Program

One job, then, is to thin out the undesirable trees, and in various other ways to provide the conditions necessary if the forest is to mature a valuable crop of timber, permit recreation and remain a great national resource.

One of the most urgent jobs is to protect the forests from fire. We cannot prevent all forest fires, but we can prevent some of them. Those that do start, can, by wise use of the forester's art, be kept down to a mimimum of damage. We can get rid of the dead standing trees and the inflammable debris that presents a constant fire hazard. We can build new roads and trails, which will enable our forest fire-fighters to fight fires more successfully. We can install new fire-guard stations, new look out posts on high ridges, necessary telephone lines and emergency landing fields for airplanes.

Yeoman service can be done in waging battle on the costly insects and diseases that damage forest trees. There is the gypsy moth to fight in New England's forests, and the Western pine beetle to battle the Western pine bettle to battle out West. By routing out some of these plant enemies entirely, by checking the spread and the damage of others, we shall preserve intact our investment in the forests.

Finally, there is work to be done to prevent soil erosion and to forestall, if possible, disastrous floods. On the watersheds of many of our rivers serious soil erosion has been caused by the removal of the protective forest cover, the invaluable vegetative sponge.

Heavy rains, unchecked, have gouged ugly gullies, have taken down to the rivers countless tons of fertile soil, have left both a soil and a flood problem in their wake. Check dams can be built in the deeply eroded gullies, and bare hillsides planted with brush and trees to hold the soil in place. Elsewhere, the job will be to plant trees to replace those that have been cut or lost by fire, and to plant trees on lands which nature always intended for the growing of trees.

This program presents a magnificent opportunity. Here are millions of acres needing the labor of men. And throughout the land are millions of men looking for the chance to work. The forests need the men, and the men need the work the forests offer. It is one of the curious and contradictory features of modern life that only when we are poor do we have a chance to do things like this. When we are prosperous we cannot spare the time.

as to screw statesmanship up to a pitch of being ready to do it, regardless of howls of alarm which will be raised by vested interests which may fear injury from measures taken to serve the unvested interests of the people at large.

A fortnight ago the International Chamber of Commerce drew up at its Paris meeting a program for submission to the London conference. This program, which represents the views of industry, finance and transport in 47 countries, is a summary in 14 points dealing with such matters as restoration of political peace and confidence, settlement of inter-governmental debts, restoration of the international monetary standard, stabilization of exchange rates and national currencies, balancing of budgets, raising of prices on primary commodities, removal of restrictions on exchange transactions, reduction of tariffs and their stabilization at a much lower level, all-around checking of over-production by international agreement, and removal of barriers to traffic by sea and air.

Nothing New in Findings.

It is a program which shows that in 47 countries there are leading citizens with common sense and a grasp of the realities of the position. But there is nothing new in that. Six years ago the World Economic Conference at Geneva came to conclusions very similar on a number of points to those put forward by the International Chamber of Commerce.

Since then all over the world tariff barriers have gone up, restrictions have multiplied, currencies have grown more unstable, commerce has suffered shipwreck, and the world has sunken deeper into the pit of depression.

The root and cause of all of this has been repeatedly diagnosed as "economic nationalism"—the totally false theory that it is good for a country, even at considerable sacrifice, to cut itself as far as possible adrift from its neighbors and become self-contained and self-dependent.

This is politics of the cave man. It is all right for the man who once animated the Piltdown skeleton, and his contemporaries, but in the world of today, linked with swift transport by land, sea and air, speaking by radio from shore to shore, it is a hopeless anachronism.

It has been given a fair trial in the last few years and by no country more thoroughly than by America; and no country could have seemed better qualified by its wealth and industrial efficiency and its richness of natural resources to make the experiment successful. None has suffered under it more bitterly.

As Cordell Hull, American Secretary of State, declared a fortnight ago in an interview with the press, the United States has been one of the nations chiefly responsible for the disastrous tariff race and also one of the hardest hit. He said:

"The chief aim of the United States in forthcoming economic discussions will be to lead the world out of the morass of economic nationalism."

SAYS SOVIET POLICE HYPNOTIZED BRITON

Correspondent Tells of Statement by Allan Monkhouse of Being Under Spell.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 22. — A charge that hypotism was used by Russian secret police in examining Allan Monkhouse, one of the six British engineers whose recent trial brought about retaliatory embargo proclamations by Great Britain and Russia, was made today in a dispatch from the Polish border by a correspondent for the London Daily Sketch.

Meanwhile, despite Russia's sudden prohibition of all trade with England, the British government remained firm in its intention to institute an 80 per cent anti-Soviet embargo next Wednesday unless W. L. MacDonald and L. C. Thornton, two of the British engineers, are released from prison.

"When I was examined by the Ogpu (secret police) for 17 hours," the correspondent of the Sketch quoted Monkhouse as saying, "there was all the time a weird sense of being hypotized—eyes, eyes, nothing but eyes."

"I am convinced that Monkhouse was hypnotized," the correspondent added. "In no other way can I explain his curious conduct."

While yesterday's announcement of the Soviet anti-British embargo came as a surprise to the public, it was not unexpected by the British government. The announced complete suspension of trade and restrictive measures against British Commerce and shipping were viewed here as much more serious than the British embargo against Russia.

Reports were circulating, however, that the Englishmen imprisoned in Moscow would be released shortly.

The government's conviction that the trial, at which the British were charged with sabotage and espionage in the Soviet Union, was a frame-cp, caused it to rush the provisions for the embargo on Russian goods. Since the controversy developed, Moscow has summoned home the heads of its trade delegation here.

British exports to Russia in 1932 were less than half the Russian exports to Great Britain, being valued at about £9,000,000 (about $35,100,000) against £19,000,000 (about $74,100,000).

Jobless Shoemaker Writes An Opera About Pirates

Coloman Katona, Who Composed Veiled Prophet March, Turns Out New Piece in Six Weeks

Coloman Katona, jobless shoemaker, who wrote a march for the 1932 Veiled Prophet ball, has written an opera.

Working at high speed for six weeks, he has turned out 20 marches, love songs, dirges, waltzes and descriptive airs for a book which deals with the swashbuckling adventures of the brothers Lafitte. The buccaneering of that pair, Jean and Pierre, terrorized shippers on the gulf and lower Mississippi until they went to the aid of Andrew Jackson in the battle of New Orleans.

The opera has not yet found a producer, but has a receptive hearing promised. Paul Beisman, manager of the Municipal Opera Association, will go over the book and music this week.

Collaborator with Katona in writing the opera was Leon Harrison Epstein, 23-year-old recent graduate of the University of Illinois who wrote the book and lyrics. They met some months ago through a critic who knew of their parallel ambitions.

It was a happy combination. Epstein, who knows enough about music to have written book and music for another unproduced opera, is delighted with the music Katona has written for Lafitte. Katona thinks Epstein's book falls not a whit short of perfection.

Looks to Municipal Opera.

With that amazing resiliency which has kept Katona from surrendering his musical hopes through years of adversity, the 46-year-old composer envisions his opera as one of this year's Municipal Theater productions. Authoratively assured that would be impossible, even though the work is held suitable, he still refuses to admit it.

A torrent of "noes" is his response to the suggestion." But it is here that it must be," he said. "It is in St. Louis that I have suffered, that I have washed dishes, that I have worked on shoes. Not in New York, not in Cincinnati, not any place but St. Louis. And, ah, it will be beautiful. . . ."

Words failing, he lapsed into music, humming the strains of "The Song of Death," to be sung as Pierre dies in the arms of his brother. "And then the fortissimo," Katona resumed, going through the motions of a conductor bringing out the full volume of the orchestra, and, oblivious to curious glances, roaring out the tune.

So with "Hidden Things," the love song of the prima donna, with "I Dreamed of a Pirate City," and the other airs. Katona, with his mind on the opera, can manage but a few words of narrative before he breaks into song.

How He Does Composing.

He wrote the opera music, as he wrote the Veiled Prophet march, without the aid of any musical instrument, simply setting the notes on paper as the melody came to his mind. Sometimes on a street car a few bars would occur to him and he would jot them down on an envelope. Or, waking at night, a phrase would suddenly come to him. He would write it down on whatever was handy and work it out the next day.

"Have you ever heard this music played?" he was asked. "In my dreams," he responded soberly. Actually, it was not until after the whole thing had been composed and was played for Epstein that Katona did hear it.

Katona, before he came to St. Louis 10 years ago, was a composer and music teacher in Budapest. In St. Louis, finding himself unable to make a living at music, he went to work in a shoe factory. He lives at 6439 Idaho avenue.

Epstein is employed by an advertising agency and lives at 4615 Lindell boulevard. Besides the two operas, he has written an unpublished novel and during his years in school he was a frequent contributor to campus literary publications.

NEW SHELTER OPENED FOR WANDERING BOYS

Wandering boys, accustomed to a meal and a night's lodging before being turned out to shift for themselves, have a new shelter in St. Louis, where they may stay until some plan for permanently solving their problem is worked out.

Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment has established this shelter in a building at Sixteenth and Pine streets, above the cafeteria operated by the Bureau for Homeless Men.

There were 38 boys there last week, ranging in age from 16 to 20, some of whom had come from places as remote as Vermont and Hawaii. During their stay here, they are kept separate from adults being helped by the bureau and are under the supervision of a former Y. M. C. A. secretary, George Pierson. Two weeks, it is expected, will be about the average stay at the shelter.

Within that time the bureau will seek to communicate with their friends or relatives so that they may end their wanderings. If arrangements cannot be made for them to return to their homes, some other plan will be adopted.

The boys are expected to arise at 6:30 a. m. and it is planned to keep their time occupied up to 10 p. m. when the rules call for lights out. Facilities of the Y. M. C. A. have been offered for part of the day, books are to be obtained from the Public Library, and sight-seeing trips around the city are planned.

The shelter has been equipped with cots and blankets, and part of the second floor has been partitioned off as a lounge room, where the boys may read or listen to the radio. A ping-pong table and other recreation facilities are to be installed.

In the rear of the big hall are shower baths and equipment for washing clothes. G. Myron Gwinner, secretary of the bureau, said it was planned to make the boys comfortable, but not so comfortable that they would be unwilling to return to their homes.

"I NEVER THOUGHT I'D Rave ABOUT A KITCHEN SINK"

© S. S. Mfg. Co. 1933

"I'd been looking at our dim old sink for years. It finally got on my nerves, until I never thought a sink could be anything but ugly. Then I visited a plumbing showroom—and before I knew it—I was raving about the lovely new "Standard" kitchen sinks I saw. Glowing white surfaces, gleaming chromard fittings—a wonderful selection and priced so low. They're beautiful—you must see them!

"I called in our Plumber and ordered one from him. He started installing it one morning right after breakfast and it was ready to use that evening. Come into my kitchen and see how lovely it looks."

JUDGE J. H. COTTERAL DIES IN WICHITA, KAN.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., April 22.—Forced from the bench by a heavy cold early this week, Judge John H. Cotteral, 68 years old, of the Tenth District United States Circuit Court of Appeals died in a hospital here late today. Physicians said pneumonia and uremic poisoning developed. Judge Cotteral came to Wichita two weeks ago from his home in Guthrie, Ok., to sit in the session of the Appeals Court.

Judge Cotteral's appointment to the Federal bench was announced by President Theodore Roosevelt Nov. 16, 1907, simultaneously with the admission of Oklahoma to statehood. His name was presented after the President became irritated over a political squabble between two factions of Republicans and had requested the submission of new candidates.

Judge Cotteral's insistence on absolute impartiality earned him a reputation. He would not even exchange greetings with attorneys who had litigation pending in his court and once he disqualified himself in a civil suit on learning that he had sold a tract of land to one of the litigants years before. On another occasion, he declined an invitation to take part in a duck hunt because the host had large land interests and Judge Cotteral thought the interests might become involved in court proceedings, as they later did.

He served as chairman of the Oklahoma delegation to the Republican national convention of 1904. Judge Cotteral was born at Middleton, Ind., attended the University of Michigan and began the practice of law at Garden City, Kan., removing to Guthrie in 1889.

Many important cases were tried before Judge Cotteral, one that attracted wide attention being that of William K. Hale, wealthy Osage country cattleman, and John Ramsey, charged with murder. They were accused by the government of being leaders of a ring that killed rich Osage Indians for their property.

ST. LOUIS SEA SCOUTS GETTING FLEET READY

Groups of St. Louis Sea Scouts have been going to Creve Coeur Lake for several recent week-ends to scrape and caulk the five boats which they received last winter from the navy. The boats will be ready for the water in about a month.

Included in the shipment, which were received under a special act of Congress which permits giving away of retired naval equipment, are a 31-foot racing cutter, a 24-foot whale boat, two 24-foot dinghies, and one 16-foot dinghy. They were brought here from the naval bases at Mare Island and Puget Sound.

The five boats are all the equipment which the eight sea Scout ships have left at their Creve Coeur Lake base. A 16 by 20-foot shack which they built last autumn, was destroyed by fire early this spring.

Three of the eight Sea Scout crews are building their own snipe sailing boats and will have them ready for summer sailing. The boats are 15½ feet long by 6 feet wide and are manned by two men in a race. Races will be a feature of the week-end outings during the summer.

SCOUTS MAKE MAYOR HONORARY TENDERFOOT

Eleventh Annual Circus at Arena Closes—St. Louis Council Has 8002 Members.

The eleventh annual Boy Scout circus came to a close at the Arena last night with the second of two performances. An attendance of almost 25,000 was drawn for the two nights.

Mayor Dickmann became an "honorary tenderfoot" in the investiture ceremony last night. After taking the scout oath he awarded to 111 troops gold streamers which they had won by qualifying for the 1932 Hoover Achievement Award. The streamers were given as the first step in a national 10-year program which has as its aim the enrollment in the scouts of one out of every four boys who will come of voting age in 1942.

On Friday night 1612 new scouts were invested with membership, bringing the total number of scouts in the St. Louis Council to 8002, the highest number ever reached. With them are enrolled 1429 Cubs and more than 2000 volunteer workers.

The first circus of the season, Hagenbeck-Wallace, will open a four-day engagement May 4 at Grand boulevard and Laclede avenue, with performances at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. daily.

This year the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus offers an augmented menagerie among the largest on tour. Among the animal performers are five herds of trained elephants, 200 horses and other wild and domestic animals.

Features include the Poodles Hanneford equestrians, the Billetti troupe of high wire performers, Bombay, "the man from India"; the Flying Hills and Clarkonians, the Royal Pucchianis, Sharab's Arabs, Agnes Doss, aerial gymnast, and the Canestrelly troupe. The opening display will present "Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt."

Animal performances, featured by this circus more than any other in this country, will be handled by trainers famous under the "big top." Wild animal acts will be presented by Jules Jacot, John Helliot and Billie Manning, and domestic animal acts by Rudy Rudenoff, Gordon Orton, Roland Hebeler, Dewey Butler and Cheerful Gardner.

Only three major circuses are taking the road this year—Ringling in the East, Hagenbeck-Wallace in the Midwest and Al G. Barnes on the Coast. Farewell to Arms--and Legs

So-called Road Show Season Ends Tonight With Final Performance of Frank Fay and Barbara Stanwyck in "Tattle Tales" at American—Casey to Carry On for Three More Weeks at the Shubert—Municipal Opera, With Many New Shows, to Open June 5.

THE more or less desultory theatrical road season comes to an end at the American Theater tonight with the final performance of the exceedingly entertaining musical revue, "Tattle Tales", which boasts Frank Fay and Barbara Stanwyck as its stars. Out at the Shubert this evening Arthur Casey's stock company enters upon the final three weeks of its present career here with a second and last week of Leo Carrillo in "The Bad Man", which will be followed by two weeks of Owen Davis Jr. and the Casey Players in Rachel Crothers' newest comedy, "When Ladies Meet."

When the Casey company closes on May 13 things will come to a full stop, except for the cinemas, until the Municipal Opera swings into action, some weeks later, on June 5, and whether or not the Forest Park brand of delightful entertainment is depression proof will be determined this summer. The directors appear to think it is and with three world premieres and only three revivals in its repertory, Municipal Opera is undertaking a season of greater artistic significance than it has ever yet launched—a season which comes to its climax with the first production on any stage of "Where the Lark Sings," a new Viennese operetta by Franz Lehar, the composer of "The Merry Widow" and many other international successes.

THAT gesture of faith upon the part of the 45 St. Louisans who comprise the board of directors of the Municipal Theater Association is the marvel of the entertainment world. Everywhere throughout the country entertainment business is from 50 to 100 per cent off. But Municipal Opera, when it opens its season Monday, June 5, will be prepared not only to produce three world premieres among nine works altogether new to its repertory, but to produce all its season's offerings upon a scale more lavish in costume and setting and with finer casts than it has ever yet presented.

It sounds like idealism gone rampant. But the financial, business and civic leaders who compose the board of directors of the Municipal Theater Association have developed that policy for Municipal Opera's fifteenth season from a study of cold figures and hard facts.

The first fact to be noted is that, while theatrical business was 25 to 50 per cent off last year, Municipal Opera's total attendance showed a decline of only 1 per cent. The falling off in the number of actual cash patrons was only 5 per cent.

Three times previously among the 14 years of the opera's history the opera had showed a decline in attendance. In 1924 there was a falling off in the total attendance of 7 per cent; in 1927, 6 per cent; in 1929, 7 per cent.

In 1925 it entered into elaborate plans for chorus training; it assembled a more remarkable cast than it had ever offered; it enlarged its repertory. Attendance that year jumped up 15 per cent over the previous season.

IN 1928 it celebrated its tenth anniversary year, assembled casts including internationally famed stars, again enlarged its repertory, and entered into a co-operative plan through which the railroads and bus lines centering in St. Louis focussed attention upon the opera. That season showed an increase of more than 5 per cent in paid attendance.

Faced with a falling off of 7 per cent in total attendance in 1929—the year that American inflation had reached its greatest height—Municipal Opera completely changed its production plans for the following season, brought on a Broadway productions staff, secured a group of widely known artists, abandoned the stock company plan, installed a revolving stage to speed up productions and, for all that the depression had engulfed the country the previous November, showed an increase of 47 per cent in total attendance for the season.

Every time Municipal Opera has met the challenge of a falling off in attendance with an advance in its artistic ideals and its standards of production—and every time there has been a falling off it has boldly followed that policy—the people of St. Louis and their friends have responded by increased patronage. It has neither angel nor subsidy, and is organized as a private corporation, but on a non-profit basis and for civic purposes. It has paid its own way through 14 seasons and out of current surpluses has created the most beautiful and technically the most complete out-of-doors theater anywhere, and never since it was organized has one of its sponsors lost a dollar by underwriting Municipal Opera against financial loss.

ORGANIZED in such a manner as to forever bar private profit in its operations—its charter provides that surpluses must be used in improvements to the theater or in improved productions in succeeding years—it has become the foremost organization for the production of lighter lyric entertainment in the world.

And now, in 1933, with the world premieres of Lehar's "Where the Lark Sings"; of the Robert Planquette-Edgar Smith operetta based on Washington Irving's classic tale of "Rip Van Winkle"; and of Harry Tierney's musical version of Clyde Fitch's great play "Beau Brummell," its productions are planned to take on an international significance in the world of lighter opera and operetta.

Abendmusik Club In a French-Polish Concert Wednesday

The Abendmusik Club will present its third public concert at Sheldon Memorial next Wednesday, at 8:30 p. m. The following 12 members will present solos for organ, piano, voice, violin, as well as piano ensemble numbers, all by French or Polish composers: Antonia Kotthoff, president; Mildred Begole, Ruth Cowgill, Dorothea Eberley, Mary Eimer, Agnes Kirchmer, Viola Milne, Dora Minkin, Fannie Romansky, Pearl Studt, Esther Witte and Florence Timmerhoff.

The principal feature of this program will be the second performance in St. Louis of the Chausson Trio, for piano, violin and violoncello, which will be presented by Mrs. Frank Habig, Louis Druzinsky and Igor Geffen, guest artists.

The public is invited.

Highlands to Open New Season May 7

Forest Park Highlands will begin its thirty-seventh consecutive season Sunday, May 7, with all departments in operation except the open-air swimming pool, which will be opened several weeks later, or as soon as the weather becomes stabilized. A variety of new attractions will include the "Crystal Cave" and mechanical saddle horses.

The policy of free entertainment every afternoon and evening will be continued and the stage band, with local song and dance talent, which proved so popular last season, will be followed to provide employment to local entertainers. The dance-floor policy, with a flat admission, instead of the "nickel-a-dance" plan, again will be in effect.

Marlene Back at Work.

Recovered from injuries and shock sustained when she was thrown from a horse during a scene being filmed on location a week ago, Marlene Dietrich has returned to work on her current picture, "The Song of Songs."

Aquinas Club Play.

The Aquinas Club will present "Spooks," a mystery comedy, at their new auditorium, 4021 Iowa avenue, this evening. Edward L. Butler has charge of the production.

Randall and Newberry To Dance in England

Carl Randall and Barbara Newberry, who were among the favorites in the Municipal Opera cast in Forest Park last summer, are to sail for England next week to dance in a new musical comedy to be produced in May in London. They will also stage the dances for the American musical, "Gay Divorce," which is to be presented in the British capital early in the summer.

Setting Music to Eisenstein's Film

The task of creating musical support for Sergei Eisenstein's film depiction of Mexico from the dawn of modern history on down has been entrusted to Hugo Riesenfeld, New York composer and director.

The film is one of the most ambitious ever attempted away from the aids and conveniences of Hollywood studios and without benefit of its acting talent.

Eisenstein and a small party went into Mexico almost without definite plans, and none too much money. They obtained the aid of a wealthy young Mexican ranch owner with a yearning for histrionics. In him they got a good actor as well as a host.

Riesenfeld will require about four weeks to complete the music. In about five weeks the film will be given a premiere showing in Mexico City.

De Molay Alumni Play.

"Cappy Ricks," a three-act comedy-drama adapted from the book by Peter B. Kyne, will be presented on Saturday night, April 29, at the Lambskin Temple, Kingshighway boulevard and Oakland avenue, by a cast drawn from the Greater St. Louis Chapter, De Molay Alumni.

St. Louis U. Players In Middlemass Play

The next production of the Playhouse Club, the drama organization of St. Louis University, will be a presentation of "The Old Overhead," a three-act comedy by Robert Middlemass, on May 8, 9 and 10. Mr. Middlemass was a recent visitor to St. Louis, having played opposite Florence Reed in the Arthur Casey production of "Criminal at Large."

Pilgrim Players' Revue.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

MOST every one knows about "Cavalcade" by this time and we, you may recall, are already committed to the statement that it is one of the finest pictures ever made for the screen. Getting down to its popular price field this film of an English family in the years from the dawn of the twentieth century until the present time "Cavalcade" is now at the Fox.

Mary Is a Grand Old Dame.

A LOT of time is covered, too, in Mary Pickford's new screenic, "Secrets," at Loew's for Mary and Leslie Howard begin a romance back in the high bicycle days, continue their love making in a covered wagon and wind up, still sweethearts, in a 1933, silver plated, automobile. Leslie fell from grace once or twice along about the end of the story after he had been elected Governor of California. Some of the Spanish type dames of the Gold Coast sorter got to him, but good old Mary was ready to forgive and forget so that the picture can end as happily as it begins. At the start the sweethearts are a couple of youngsters in New England who run away to the wide open spaces when Mary's father is set upon her marrying a title. Out in the wilds the pair battle cattle thieves, raise a family and gradually climb to the United States Senate after the Governor's chair has been filled successfully and the other women tossed to one side. Both grow old very gracefully and if the story is not very smoothly written it will, all the same, appeal to Miss Pickford's admirers, especially young women who enjoy a good cry.

Chicago, Chicago.

YOU can't get away from the youth-to-old-age thing at the Missouri this week either for "Sweepings" begins with the Chicago fire, when Lionel Barrymore was a struggling young storekeeper, and winds up with his death after he has become a merchant prince. He raises a family, too, and hopes to see his three sons take over the business and his daughter happily married but he never gets his hope. One of the boys is rather simple-minded and the other two find that spending money is a lot more fun than making it. The daughter tries matrimony several times but doesn't get anywhere with it and when the old man dies it looks as though his vast business interests would fall into the hands of his faithful, and somewhat misused general manager, although the youngest, and wildest, son says he is going to shake the primroses from his feet and start up the straight and narrow path. As a character sketch "Sweepings" is a perfect vehicle for Mr. Barrymore but, as drama, it gets nowhere in particular and Gregory Ratoff does something more, as the old retainer, than just share the acting honors with the star. The fault in the story lies, mostly, in the manner in which the Ratoff character is carried along to the heights and then pushed off the top by his life long friend and employer. Among the younger members of the cast Eric Linden stands out as the son who kept the Chicago night clubs on the gold standard.

The Grand Hotel Influence.

A MUCH shorter period of life is dealt with in "From Hell to Heaven" at the Grand Central. Most of the scenes are laid, during the course of a couple of days, in a big Saratoga hotel with one dash to the track to depict the lives and loves and killings of race horse people, gamblers, embezzlers, honest jockies, Negro bell boys and things like that. The plot gets a little complicated at times but the picture has some good kicks here and there and is just about what the Grand avenue fans demand in the way of entertainment. Jack Oakie gets a lot of fun out of being a radio announcer and Carole Lombard looks the part she plays—a girl who loves a bookmaker.

Flying High.

STUNT flying, love in the air and all those sort of things abound in "Central Airport," at the Ambassador, with Richard Barthelmess, getting a little plump for aviation, winning most of the sky honors floating around but losing the only thing he wants, Sally Eilers. Sally marries Dick's younger brother although she really loves Dick and if the picture had not stopped when it did an airplane crack-up might have thrown her into his arms after all but the film winds up with Barthelmess flying away pretty disconsolate, and no one seems perfectly satisfied.

Bach Organ Concert.

Daniel R. Phillipi will give an organ recital under the sponsorship of the American Guild of Organists at Christ Church Cathedral tomorrow evening. His program will be devoted entirely to the works of Johann Sebastian Bach.

Skourases Are Headin' Back

Pretty Well-Founded Rumor Says They Will Be in Charge of Their Old Theaters Here in Very Short Time — Once Famous Screen Artist Now Playing Bits in Films — How Trick Photography Was Worked to Produce "King Kong."

By H. H. NIEMEYER

AS POINTED out in these columns several times the Skouras boys have been looking over their old stamping ground and negotiations have reached a point now where the return of these enterprising showmen to the St. Louis field is but a question of weeks according to pretty reliable information. All hands involved deny the reports but Spyros Skouras, accompanied by a Chicago banker, was in town last week and rumor has it that he and Charley and George and Reeves Espy will be back in their old offices in the Ambassador Theater building soon after May 1.

The Skourases are said to be preparing to take the Ambassador back from the receivers who have not had any great amount of luck in operating it, and to assume command out at the Missouri and Grand Central. It was in the latter house, the first de luxe cinema palace, so called, that the three brothers got their real start to fame and fortune. RKO is operating the Missouri under a lease of the house from Paramount but would be glad to get out from under and Paramount does not want to take the place back.

It is understood that Skouras endeavored to get the Fox Theater receivers to come in some sort of a deal so that they might control the entire first run field in the city with the exception of Loew's. The Fox thing is cold, however, and the Skourases will reenter the field with opposition down town and also on Grand avenue.

WITH MORE free lance and former "big names" available than at any time in the history of Hollywood, the trend these days in all the major studios is to cast even the minor roles and "bits" of pictures with seasoned screen personalities.

Actors and actresses who once would not consider roles unless they were given "run of picture" contracts, guaranteed preferred billing and assured of other prerogatives, today accept small parts, often little more than glorified bits, for a few days' work. They are employed on a daily salary basis, and work in many pictures on the major and independent lots.

Studios themselves find it more satisfactory to entrust minor roles, important to the story as a whole but of short duration on the screen, to experienced players. Warner Brothers-First National, Paramount, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Fox and others have been following this practice recently, with executives and directors pointing to better-balanced productions as a result. Sometimes the characters are not even mentioned in screen credits.

Mary Pickford used several former outstanding screen and stage personalities in "Secrets," which is now at Loew's. They include Ethel Clayton and Bessie Barriscale, who were rated among the most glamorous stars of the early silent picture era drawing weekly salaries running well into four figures; also Theodore Von Eltz and Huntley Gordon, leading men who have enjoyed international popularity, worked by the day in one sequence.

Doing bits and extra work in "Secrets" and other pictures which were in production on the United Artists lot at the same time were King Baggot, one-time star and director, Francis Ford and Paul Panzer, the "serial kings" of a decade or so ago. Also Florence Lawrence, one of the greatest stars in the early days of the industry, when Miss Pickford was just a member of the cast.

ROBERT C. BRUCE, pioneer scenic producer, whose pictures of outdoor subjects have established him in a class by himself, announced from New York recently that he is now planning to pioneer in a new field—that of "Transparencies," which are used as background in process shots through which long, expensive jaunts to locations are rapidly being eliminated.

Under the new process, Bruce explained, a cameraman schooled in the art of making outdoor subjects is sent to the locale the director desires to depict, no matter where it may be situated, and shoots all the film required to make up the background of the picture. Upon his return to Hollywood, it is developed and cut to fit the continuity, and then projected from the back upon a ground-glass screen of huge proportions. The actors go through their parts in front of this moving background, and the whole thing is photographed by the regular camera, giving the impression that the players actually worked in the location shown on the ground-glass screen. Because of the translucent quality of the ground-glass screen, this process is called the "transparency" method, and represents the newest and most effective advancement in trick photography.

IT WAS trick photography of this sort which made the recent film "King Kong" possible. The giant ape, Kong, was played by an ordinary sized man. He was photographed doing all the things needed for the action of the picture and then this movie of him was thrown on the ground glass screen in front of which the other members of the cast played. The picture of Kong was thrown up several times in size to make him appear as a giant.

There was no mechanical figure of an ape as many film customers imagined. In the shots where Kong held a helpless woman in his huge paw he really held a rag doll. Occasionally the woman moved and squirmed and at those times the only mechanical effect was brought into play. A large arm and hand, built to the scale of the rephotographed Kong, was constructed and a clever combination of camera shots made it appear that the arm was really part of the giant ape—but it wasn't.

The storm was staged on the First National lot in North Hollywood where there is a lake 600 feet long by 350 wide and ranging from two to three feet in depth. Inasmuch as it was necessary to show Tom Brown, with several passengers on a foundering plane, and Richard Barthelmess on another rescuing plane of the tri-motor variety, which require a considerable depth of water to float, the center of the lake for a space of about sixty feet square was scooped out to a depth of thirty feet.

After the airplanes had been placed in the water, it was necessary to show them being rocked and buffeted by high waves and a terrific wind, accompanied by rain and lightning. Waves were produced by several wooden cradles with paddles which were worked up and down by a crew of men, while the wind was supplied by airplanes stationed on the shore with their propellers whirling at top speed.

Rain was provided by a score of spraying jets while artificial lightning was produced by electric torches. Cloud effects also had to be produced with smoke, and the entire scene lighted with arc lights and a special twelve-foot tower lighting machine to give the effect of a weirdly lit sky during a lightning storm.

Ford "V-8" Averages 82.64 Miles Per Hour On Two 10-Mile Runs

Does 85.227 for Second 10 Miles, and "Hits 89.1 M. P. H. Clip" for 19th Mile.

An average sustained speed of 80.07 miles per hour for 10 miles in one direction, and 85.227 miles per hour for 10 miles in the opposite direction, was made by a new Ford V-8 tudor sedan over an accurately measured course Wednesday forenoon.

Both runs were timed by stop watch—for the 10 miles, the 20 miles and for each individual mile.

Speed at no time dropped below 80 miles per hour. The speed of the car as shown on the speedometer checked within a mile per hour with that indicated by the stop watch.

The car had been driven 3100 miles when the test run was started. After the test, it ran as smoothly and fast as during the run, showing no evidence of strain.

Two newspaper men rode with the driver at all times during the tests. The driver was Roland R. Andrews, of the Ford St. Louis branch.

The Ford was "warmed up" only on the drive from St. Louis. The first 10 miles were driven, as told above, at an average of 80.07 miles per hour. The car was swung around and driven back over the 10-mile course, and averaged 85.227 miles per hour.

The car was one of the new 1933 Ford V-8, powered with the aluminum-head "V" eight-cylinder engine.

It ran steadily better and faster throughout the 20 miles, the highest speed being made, as noted, on the nineteenth mile.

The speed of the car, its general performance and operating smoothness were in accord with those of the same car and another tested by newspaper men on previous days, when on one run the speedometer showed speed up to 65 miles per hour in second gear.

New Headlights Make Speed Driving At Night Much Safer

High speed driving in the country at night has been made virtually as safe as in the day time, and with as little strain on the driver, through a new type automobile head lamp. It was first introduced on the Packard 12.

The new lamps illuminate the whole road for a long distance ahead of the car. In passing another car they give the driver sense of security by providing a powerful beam which travels beyond the approaching driver without blinding him, clearly illuminating the right-hand edge of the pavement, the road shoulder and ditch. At the same time it shows up any obstacle, road sign or pedestrian along the edge of the highway.

The results are accomplished by parabolic reflectors, special bulbs and lenses. Each lamp has three 32-candle power filaments. The left-hand lamp, from driver's seat, has a lens much like that of the conventional head lamp. The bulb is located as in other lamps. In the right-hand lamp, however, the bulb is rotated so that the filaments are at right angles with those in the left-hand lamp. There also is a special lens which produces a concentrated beam.

In passing another car, the left-hand light is tilted down away from the eyes of the approaching driver. The right-hand beam is turned to the right and lowered somewhat. In effect, it becomes a searchlight which illuminates the side of the road and the course ahead of the car for a long distance, but is so directed away from the driver of the approaching car that it in no way blinds him.

Drivers Increasing in France.

In France, 510,554 new driving licenses were issued last year. In the last eight years, including 1932, the Motor Commission has granted 3,522,975 licenses, which brought into the national treasury $7,500,000.

Autos at Last on Islesboro.

Islesboro, Me., last place on the Atlantic coast from which automobiles were barred, is to cater to the "gas buggies." The island community, a dozen miles in length lying in Penobscot Bay, has about 40 miles of roads.

Motorists can help themselves in driving safely by more closely scrutinizing the drivers of other cars, especially those going in the same direction, said W. T. Palmer, expert student of the traffic accident situation and an official of the company making Rusco brake linings, in a lecture last week.

"We don't pay half enough attention to the drivers who share the roads with us," he said. "Yet no study will produce greater dividends in safety and in knowledge of the types of drivers and driving to avoid. We should not, of course, keep our eyes on other cars sufficiently to interfere with our own driving, but a little practice will enable us to size up other motorists quickly and advantageously.

"The following types of drivers are a menace and in a week or so you'll be able to spot them and give them a wide berth:

"The weaver—the real road hog—who will not hold his place in line no matter how fast traffic is moving, but must show how smart he is by weaving in and out and causing countless accidents by passing other cars regardless of the danger to himself and others.

"The driver who loafs along until you try to pass him, then speeds up. He usually does this on hills or curves. Watch him.

"Avoid all drivers with untidy looking cars. The roads are infested with thousands of ramshackle vehicles with dangerously worn brake linings, steering gears and tires, and with countless comparatively new cars with brakes in need of adjustment. Most of such cars can't be stopped within a city block in an emergency and are daily bringing misery and expense through the accidents they cause. Detour around all shabby vehicles.

"The drunk. He's hard to recognize until after he's done the damage, especially at night.

"The woman who gives no thought to those behind her, wabbles all over the road, makes sudden unorthodox turns, tangles up all traffic in her train and goes blithely on her way. In spite of widely quoted statements that women are better drivers than men, it isn't true, and this lady is one of the proofs.

"The slow-poke in the middle of the road. He is a throwback to a more leisurely and less efficient age. Pass him when it's entirely safe and leave him to the profanity of others behind him.

"The petter with his arm around a girl. He can't give proper attention to his driving and to his amatory problems at the same time, and is not intelligent enough to be either a safe motorist or a satisfactory husband."

All Parts Ducoed Now on Cadillac and La Salle Cars

The Cadillac Motor Car Co. has just installed a complete conveyor system duco department so that all parts of Cadillac and LaSalle cars will be finished in duco.

While the bodies of motor cars have been finished in duco for years, it has been customary to finish fenders, running board moldings, tire carriers, running boards and dozens of other parts in enamel because of the expense of applying duco.

This has been pretty much a universal rule, except for sports bodies all in one color, and in these cases, fenders and other exterior parts were finished in duco.

It is said that this department is the first and most complete of its kind for the ducoing of all parts, apart from the body of the car. Not only are the fenders, splash shield, front and rear bumpers and other visible parts finished in duco, but likewise many parts that are not visible.

Dreystadt, works manager, says that 38 parts in all are ducoed on each car, including connecting conduits, battery box, bracings and other "under-the-hood" parts, and that each part so ducoed is first bonderized. This treatment deposits a fine-grained cyrstalline coating which not only makes a more effective bond between the metal and the duco, but also retards the formation of rust should an accident break the surface of the finish.

Reports of Tire Price Rise Soon Current

A note to dealers from the Goodrich Rubber Co. says that rumors of an impending tire price have been persistent.

Leaders in the tire industry are said to have met in Chicago recently and to have been in session in New York Thursday. The upward adjustment was likely to be around 9 per cent, it was said.

Paris Curbs Horn Honking.

In an effort to make Paris, France, a "noiseless city" more than 6600 motorists were prosecuted within the past six months. Exactly 1188 persons werd arrested for honking their automobile horns too assiduously during the daytime, and 1460 at night. For first offenders, mild fines or a reprimand are the only punishment, but if they persists the fines increase in size.

Costly to British Hospitals.

The expense of traffic accidents falls with special severity on hospitals in England. Figures for 18 hospitals for 1932 show that the cost of treating 2692 patients was $120,000, of which only $30,000 had been recovered from insurance companies.

A City of Gas Pumps.

Much Difference In Mileage From Front and Rear Tires

Studying the relative average tire mileage obtained on front and rear wheels, the United States Rubber Co. has established that rear tires usually give 45 to 60 per cent of the mileage delivered by front tires.

Owing to variation depending on the habits of a driver, the type of service to which the car is put, and the relative braking effect on front and rear wheels, it is difficult to arrive at a definite figure.

Taxes Hit Small Truck Owners in Alabama.

Owners of small motor trucks in Montgomery, Ala., pay a tax amounting to $496 a year. The tax bill is made up as follows: Tag and property tax, $23; city license fee, $35; permit, $10; required insurance, $100; gasoline and incidental taxes, $328. If he operated three miles outside the city he would pay an additional tax of one-half cent a mile.

Terraplane Cars Add Three Records to 27 Previously Broken

Last week closed on the setting of 27 new hill-climb and other official records shrunk by the Essex Terraplane. Today the number of new records made by the two Terraplane Challengers has mounted to 30, the last having been made on Townhill Mountain, Cumberland, Md., and Avalon and Quaker Hills, near Baltimore, Md. The new records were all made under A. A. A. supervision.

At Cumberland the official A. A. A. Townhill Mountain record of 1 minute 52.4 seconds was broken twice—one by a Terraplane six, driven by Al Miller, in 1 minute 43.54 seconds, and then by a Terraplane eight, piloted by Chet Miller, which, averaging 67 miles an hour, whizzed up the gradient in 1 minute 30:53 seconds.

From Cumberland the Terraplanes proceeded to Baltimore. The record of Avalon Hill, 23 seconds, was first cut to 22.8 seconds by the Terraplane six, after which the still lower new record of 22.1 seconds was made by the Terraplane eight.

On Quaker Hill, near Baltimore, the record was 55.2 seconds for the seven-mile grade with three bad turns. The time for the Terraplane six was 48.8 seconds and for the Terraplane eight 46 seconds flat.

Good Sense to Buy New Cars at Today's Prices, Says Chrysler

"No man with an honest product to sell need be afraid of the future. And no man with a hard-earned dollar to spend should be afraid to spend it," Walter P. Chrysler said in a statement at Detroit, following the announcement of the new de luxe Plymouth six and standard Plymouth lines.

"There is no patent remedy that will bring prosperity back to America," Chrysler said. "The one way that business can most quickly regain its normal stride is by the introduction of products of such outstanding value that the public will buy in increased numbers, thus placing money in circulation and clearing the clogged channels of trade.

"Throughout the difficulties of the past few years Chrysler Motors has forged steadily ahead. Last November, we said that we did not believe in waiting around ourselves, nor in asking anyone to wait around for us; that the way to get things started was to start. Even in the recent bank crisis not a day passed that shipments did not leave our factories.

"It's up to us as manufacturers —it is up to our dealers—to show the public how much good sense there is in buying today. And it's up to buyers to look into what the dollar will buy today. When the two get together—when sellers in any line make clear how much they are really offering—when buyers realize how much more they can get out of money that's working—we are going to see this country on its feet once more."

American Spark Plugs in Plane That Flew at 432 M. P. H.

When Francesco Agello, of the Italian Navy, broke the world's speed record by flying his "Red Bullet" monoplane at 432 miles per hour over Lake Garda, more than seven miles a minute, recently, there were American-made Champion spark plugs in the plane's two Fiat motors, it was revealed by Otto C. Rohde, chief engineer of the Champion Spark Plug Co.

"We practically designed the plugs for that job by cable," Rohde said. "The Italian Government and Fiat had been putting forth every effort to recapture the world's speed record from the British. When it came to choosing spark plugs for their new speed planes they followed the custom of winning racers for more than a decade and chose Champions.

"Their speedplanes are all powered with two Fiat 12-cylinder motors, coupled in tandem and producing more than 2800 horsepower. Two propellors are used mounted one behind the other and turning in opposite directions. By this means they get around the problem of offsetting the tremendous torque developed by a single 'prop,' a problem which has baffled many previous designers of light weight seaplanes.

"They have been perfecting these tremendous powerplants for some time using our spark plugs and as their motors grew hotter and hotter we were so informed by cable and as a result made our plugs colder and colder."

Downtown Sales Office for Waxolite

J. D. Weakley, of the Waxolite Co., states that the firm will open a sales office at 207 North Seventh street to handle Waxolite, a new polish being introduced in the St. Louis market. This polish, it is claimed, washes, cleans, polishes and waxes in one operation.

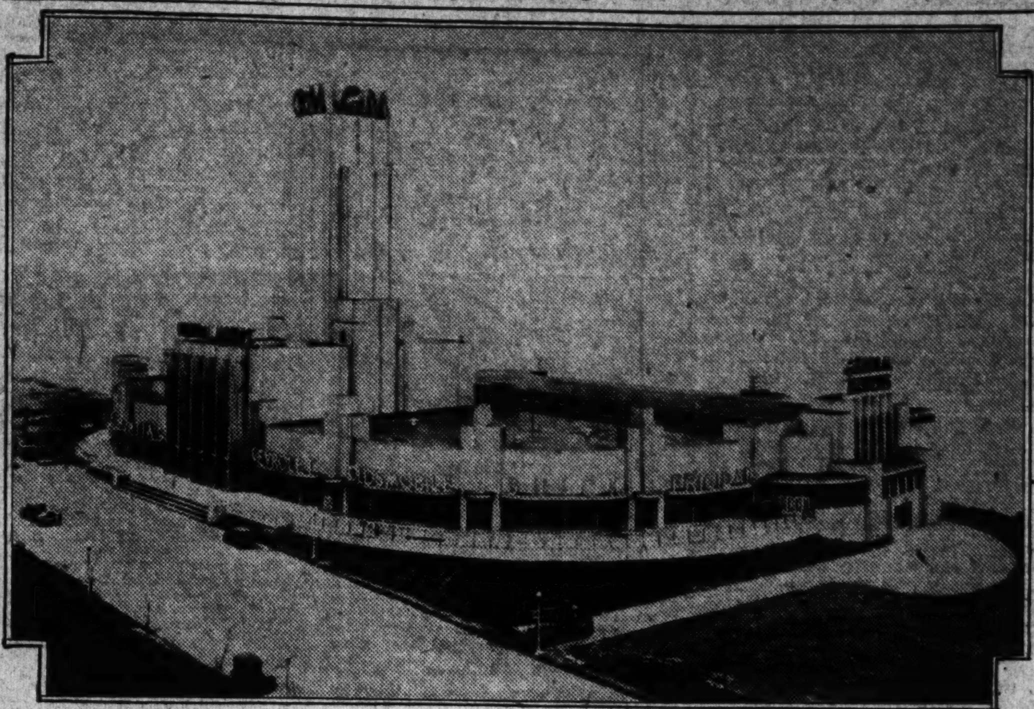
It will be manufactured at 2214 Washington avenue under the direction of Weakley. The polish has been thoroughly tried out by large concerns in St. Louis, he says.

How Sudden Braking Damages Tire Proved

How much damage that sudden application of brakes can cause to a tire was shown in a recent test made by the United States Rubber Co., using a new car equipped with new tires.

The testers locked one wheel of the car by sudden application of the brakes at 80 miles an hour. The wheel was kept locked until the car stopped. Inspecting the tire, which had left a long black streak of particles of rubber, the testers found it worn completely through to the breaker section which had been in contact with the road.

General Motors Building for World's Fair



Chevrolet Builds Assembly Line on World's Fair Grounds

Installation of equipment for the assembly of automobiles at the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago has been started by the Chevrolet Motor Co., W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announces.

Complete installation will be effected well in advance of the scheduled opening of the 1933 World's Fair around June 1, Knudsen said, assuring visitors that they will be able to see an automobile built from the bare frame to the completed car.

A balcony seven feet above the assembly line, erected in circular form so that visitors may walk completely around the line and watch every operation in the building of a modern automobile, has been provided.

Machinery is identical with that used in Chevrolet's eight other assembly plants except that the conventional overhead conveyors will be replaced by floor type conveyors to bring parts to the desired place along the line. Machines will be finished in silver with green trim, and will be manned by about 150 workers in white uniforms.

Production of 25 or 30 cars a day is planned. Two body types—coaches and sedans—will be built on the Master Chevrolet wheelbase. Regular inspection posts will check every operation along the line, and the cars will be driven out under their own power, tested, put through final inspection and may be purchased on the spot and driven home by their new owner.

Chevrolet is the only company which will operate an automobile assembly line at the Fair, Knudsen said.

Nash Worm Drive Improves With Use

Nash worm drive used in Ambassador and advanced eight models is silent in operation. It is long lived and improves with use. Its underslung design permits the lowering of the car's center of gravity without decreasing headroom or passenger comfort.

Because the worm is underslung, lubrication of the axle is positive and constant. The ground clearance of underslung worm drive is equal to that of conventional bevel-gear axles.

The new windshield control lever on cars of the Nash standard 8 and big 6 series locks the windshield in place in both open and closed positions and is easily operated from the driver's seat.

Brakes Should Work Smoothly As Accelerator

Ideal action of an automobile braking system should be as smooth and progressive as that of the accelerator, says John G. Wood, chief engineer of the Olds Motor Works.

That is to say, Wood explains, there must be perfect gradation of breaking power corresponding to the movement of the brake pedal. Also, there must be a direct proportion between the effort required to move the brake pedal and the stopping ability of the car, with no tendency of the brakes to "wind up."

These important essential brake requirements have been accomplished in the 1933 Oldsmobile sixes and eights by a simplified, straight line, rigid brake hook-up, and by properly proportioning the braking effort between front and rear wheel brakes. At the same time a maximum amount of braking power is available for emergency use.

Fewer Auto Sales in Germany.

General Motors Exhibit Building For Fair Completed

Will House Products of 75 Companies for Exposition at Chicago.

Construction of the building that will house the General Motors exhibit at the Century of Progress fair in Chicago has been completed. Decoration and the installation of some of the heavier exhibits has been started. The exhibit will be ready well in advance of the opening date, June 1.

The General Motors building is the tallest in the exposition, its 177-foot tower being surpassed only by the piers of one of the amusement devices. The structure also is the largest erected by a private exhibitor.

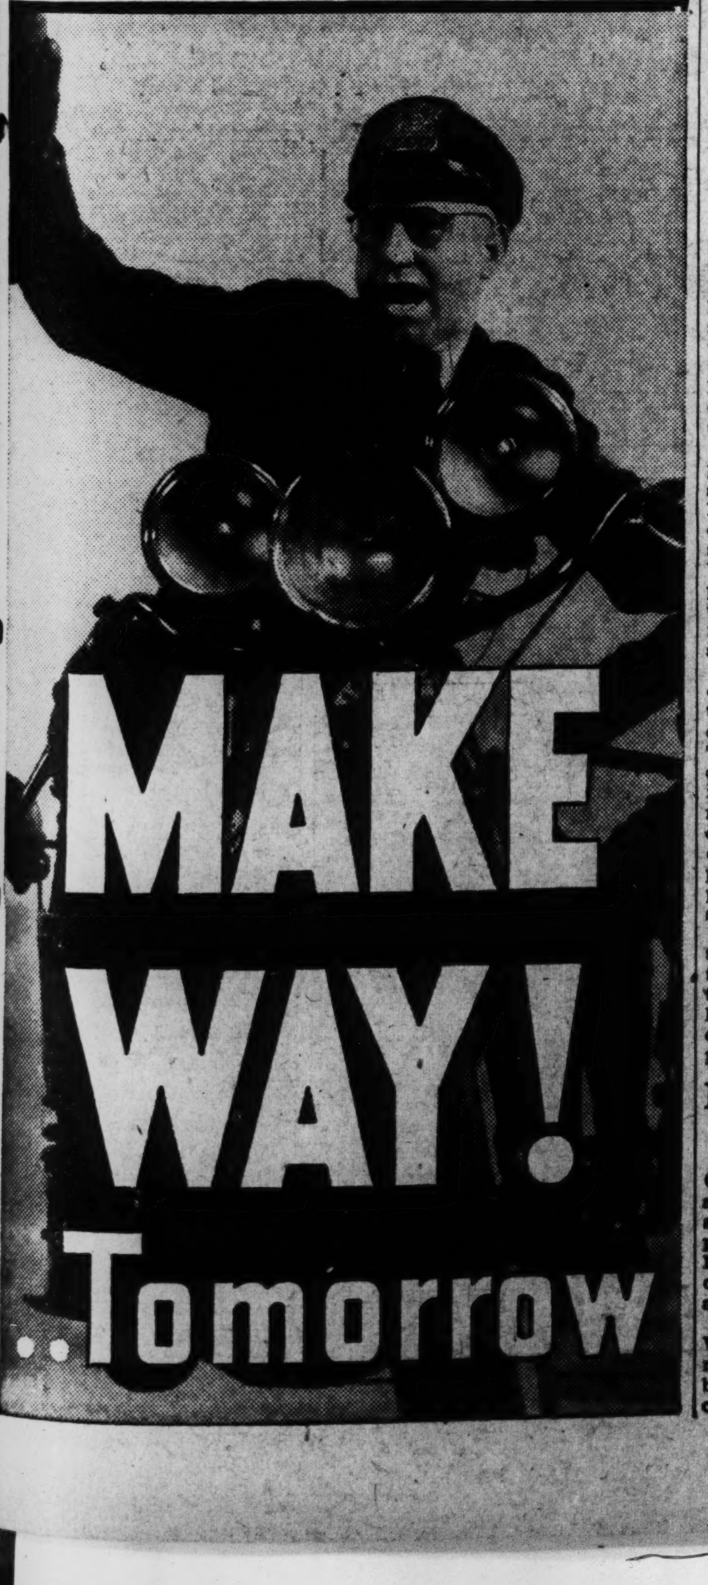
Albert Kahn of Detroit, whose Fisher Building in his home city and other works have attracted attention, was the architect. It was necessary to provide for the utilitarian housing of a complete Chevrolet assembly plant, a little theater, a gallery of industrial art, research laboratory equipment and display space for products ranging from automobiles and huge Diesel engines to the tiniest of ball bearings, and at the same time present an external appearance in keeping with the striking new type of architecture specified for all buildings by the exposition management.

The building is in the shape of a rectangle, with front corners broadly rounded. It is 454 feet long by 306 feet deep.

More than 1000 pilings were driven into the "made land" of the Exposition grounds to provide a safe foundation for the mass of steel, concrete, glass and armor ply. The outer walls are almost completely glass.

The interior is divided into seven main rooms upon varying levels, dictated by the terrain which slopes down to the lake. The rooms include the large entrance salon where paintings, sculpture and other works of artists of international note will be housed, the Chevrolet assembly plant, two enormous automobile show rooms, the accessory display room, the truck display room and a little theater.

Hundreds of exhibits will portray General Motors' 25 years of contribution to progress in industry, science and art. Products of the numerous automotive, household appliance, farm and other machinery manufacturing units among the 75 companies that make up General Motors will be represented.



"But, Grandpa, Mother used to say your legs were too long for the back seat."

"In the other car, Jimmy—not in your daddy's new Terraplane."

Steel-tape measurements prove that the Essex Terraplane has more leg-room, head-room and hip-room than any other low-priced car.

But inch-superiority does not measure the true comfort of Terraplane seating arrangements.

Cushions are thicker and are shaped to fit the figure, springs are more resilient. The driver's seat may be pushed backwards or forwards several inches to accommodate both long "Lincoln-legs" and short "Napoleon-legs." The steering-post, with five adjustments, can be raised or lowered to the most comfortable position. This means a car almost individually tailored to fit you.

These comfort-provisions, added to thermostatically-controlled, two-way shock-absorbers, airwheel tires, long splayed springs and lowest center of gravity, make Terraplane-riding as comfortable as arm-chair-sitting.

"600 MILES A DAY IN OUR TERRAPLANE WITHOUT FATIGUE"

After they have discovered the remarkable performance of the Essex Terraplane on hills and in traffic, the next feature that seems to impress Terraplane owners about their cars is comfort.

"1850 Miles in 3 days"

"Our return from Washington, D. C. to San Antonio, a distance of 1850 miles, was completed in 3 days and a few hours. The thing that struck my fancy most was that we could drive 600 miles a day, enjoy a night's rest, and continue next day without fatigue that usually accompanies such a drive."—R. E. W., San Antonio, Tex.

"1318 Miles in 2 days"

"I have never driven any car that can cover the road with as little effort as the Terraplane. We left Hackettstown at 6 a. m. and arrived at Sumpter next morning at 7 o'clock, and arrived at West Palm Beach, Fla., at 7 p. m., 617 miles—a total of 1318 miles in two days."—W.G.V., Hackettstown, N. J.

"705 miles in 14¼ hours"

"We left Palatki, Fla., at 6:30 a. m., arriving at a little town south of Petersburg, Va., at 8:45—a distance of 705 miles in a trifle over 14 hours."—H.W.D., West Newton, Pa.

"My 8th car"

"My Terraplane is my eighth passenger car. I never knew what real joy in driving could be until I bought it. I have paid nearly four times as much for a car before, but I never received one-fourth the value in genuine automobile satisfaction—it excels anything else I have ever driven."—J.L.H., Jr., Henderson, Texas.

Looking the Cars Over

Have you noticed those ivory finish control knobs which are standard on cars which bear the Chrysler name? They surely do give a decidedly distinctive flavor to the driving compartment.

Hupmobile certainly makes good on its claim to a rear seat that will carry five passengers with comfort. Its extra width is due partly to a rear tread that is nearly 61 inches.

There is more power in this year's largest Pierce-Arrow 12-cylinder engine. It turns up a maximum of 175.

Rockne is another user of rubber mounting for the muffler and exhaust; insulating them from the chassis by this effective means.

Pontiac not only retains the cross-flow radiator, a feature which sets it apart, but increases its effectiveness by creating a turbulence effect around the cooling fins.

As in the V-16, Cadillac's V-12 engine is fed by two carburetors.

That special oil-cooling radiator which was a feature of last year's Oldsmobiles is not to be found on the newest models. However, the engine suffers no diminished efficiency as a result. A different bearing material disposes of the necessity of cooling the engine lubricant.

MORE MORE MORE—pi Reo's radiators slope less than they formerly did. It creates an effect of greater length.

That different appearance in the rear of many car bodies at the moment is being imparted by full-length bumpers. After years of bumperettes, the style has a refreshingly new note. Packard is a case in point.

One of the reasons for the improved performance of the Nash standard eight is lighter weight. The car has an excellent power-to-weight ratio.

A reecnt change has added still more width to the rear seat of the Essex Terraplane six. Bigger and better.

One of the most interesting aspects of today's motor car buying is the revival of interest in the coach model. After three years of declining popularity, it is on its way to the top. The economy model, as it were.

Continental simplifies the problem of lubrication by arranging for the front universal joint to receive fluid grease from the transmission. They just can't hide virtues from The Observer.

It's continental—meaning European, not the passenger car—this trick of alternating wide and narrow pleats in the upholstery of the Dodge eight.

Going-to-the-Sun Highway Name of Glacier Park Road

Fifty-Mile Scenic Motoring Route to Be Opened in July.

The scenic motor road through Logan Pass in Glacier National Park will be named Going-to-the-Sun highway, according to a statement by Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior.

This action, the Secretary said, is in accordance with the policy adopted by the late Stephen T. Mather in 1916, the year the National Park Service was established, when three Blackfeet chieftains, Curly Bear, Wolf Plume and Bird Rattlers, visited him in Washington to request on behalf of their tribe that wherever possible only Indian names be given to features of Glacier National Park.

The new highway, which runs for 50 miles to connect the east and west sides of this great alpine region, will be thrown open to travel about the middle of July. Lack of funds has held up the surfacing of a 16-mile stretch of the highway between Logan Pass and St. Mary Lake, but the grading has been completed and the National Park Service will keep this section in the best condition possible. The remainder of the road is first-class highway.

The road skirts the flanks of numerous mountain peaks, and reveals panoramas of a scenic region. One of the road's features is a tunnel in the face of Mount Piegan. From a window in this tunnel, a motorist looks out over a world of glacier-clad mountains, alpine lakes gemlike in the distance, and valleys.

At the eastern park boundary, the Going-to-the-Sun Highway joins the Blackfeet Highway through the Indian Reservation, thus making a direct connection to Canada on the north and the Glacier Park railroad station about 35 miles to the south.

The Going-to-the-Sun Highway skirts the great peak 9596 feet high which long ago was given the same name by the Blackfeet Indians in memory of Sour Spirit, one of their legendary gods. According to the myth, Sour Spirit left his lodge in the sun to teach the Blackfeet braves how to shoot straight with bow and arrow, to build tepees, and to be successful in the buffalo hunt. Before he returned to his home in the sun, the likeness of his face was wrought on the crest of the mountain as a perpetual source of inspiration to the Indians.

"Going-to-the-Sun" is a contraction of the original Indian designation. The full Blackfeet name is "The Face-of-Sour-Spirit-Who-Went-Back - to - the-Sun-After-His-Work-Was-Done Mountain."

Connecting Rods Balanced in Pontiac For Center of Gravity

An exclusive manufacturing process by which Pontiac connecting rods this year are balanced not only for total weight, but also for center of gravity, contributes toward the smoothness of the new straight eight motor.

Engineers long had known that identical centers of gravity in all connecting rods would make for smoothness to a motor. But they had failed to devise a method of achieving this balance rapidly and economically enough for factory production conditions.

In the Pontiac plant the operation is largely automatic. It is done by cutting metal from weight bosses or knobs forged on the connecting rod. Two weight bosses, forged on opposite sides of the rod just above the connecting rod bearing, control the total weight. Another, forged at the bottom of the rod below the bearing controls the center of gravity.

When the rods are ready for balancing, they are placed in a scale device which indicates the exact weight of metal that must be removed from the lower boss to establish center of gravity at the upper bosses. Next a scale indicator is set at that figure on an automatic milling machine which cuts away the lower boss until the metal chips falling into a small pan, equal the indicated weight of metal that must be removed. The chips depress the pan, operating a mercury cut-off switch which instantly stops the machine.

Then, with center of gravity established at the upper bosses, a similar routine is followed to bring all rods to an equal over-all weight. This is done by removing metal from the two upper bosses. Since this metal is cut equally from above and below the previously established center of gravity in the middle of the two bosses, the operation leaves the center of gravity undisturbed.

America Can't Boast of This Record

The United States is a leader among nations in motor vehicle fatalities. The death rate is just about 50 per cent above the nearest competitor. It is almost double that of Canada, four times that of Germany and about eight times that of Norway.

COMMUNISTS HOLD PROTEST MEETING AT CITY HALL

About 100 persons, mostly Negroes, gathered in front of City Hall yesterday noon at a meeting arranged by the local Communist organization and the International Labor Defense group to protest against the conviction of Haywood Patterson, one of the nine Scottsboro Negroes, convicted of criminal assault recently at Decatur, Ala.

A half-dozen speakers, Negro and white, harangued the crowd for an hour and a half, while 15 or 20 plain clothes and uniformed policemen stood by, prepared for, but not anticipating, disorder. Collection boxes to aid in a "Scottsboro defense fund" were passed. After the long meeting the small band of Negroes, carrying banners with various inscriptions, introduced in most instances by the world—"We Demand"—paraded north on Twelfth boulevard toward Communist headquarters at 1243 North Garrison avenue.

JAPANESE TROOPS ADVANCE DESPITE TOKIO DISCLAIMER

Three-Day Battle in Progress, Though War Office Says Invasion South of Wall Is Ended.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 22.—The War Office announced today that the Japanese offensive in North China had been halted, but soon after the announcement was made a news dispatch from the front told of a sanguinary battle which has been in progress since Friday morning south of the Great Wall.

Major-General Tadashi Kawahara attacked the Chinese southwest of Kupeikow, one of the passes in the Great Wall north Peiping, a Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch said.

Friday morning, the Rengo correspondent reported, the Chinese attemptted to take the positions held by Gen. Kawahara's brigade, and today he launched an offensive to push them back in the direction of Miyun, which is about 35 miles northeast of Peiping.

The Japanese said there were five Chinese divisions in the Miyun area and that among them were some of the regulars of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese Generalissimo.

The Japanese account admitted there were numerous Japanese casualties but said the Chinese losses were heavy. The invaders claimed some progress despite stubborn resistance.

The War Office announcement that the offensive had been halted was based on the assertion that all objectives south of the Great Wall had been gained.

A War Office spokesman said all Chinese troops had been expelled from the district east of the Lwan River and from a zone extending an average of 10 miles below the Wall west of the Lwan as far as the Miyun area.

It was explained that the army intended to maintain a neutral zone in the regions that have been cleared of Chinese troops, without seeking any agreement with the Chinese.

Any Chinese units attempting to re-enter this zone will be bombed by Japanese military planes and if that method fails to oust them, infantry operations will be renewed. It is the opinion of the Japanese command that no major attempt at reoccupation is likely because of the defeats and casualties the Chinese have suffered since April 10, when the latest campaign was started.

The War Office spokesman said that the Japanese are anxious, because of a revival of banditry and insurrection in Manchukuo, to move part of their troops which have participated in the Jehol and North China campaigns back to their old stations in Manchuria.

It was asserted that the Japanese Government had no intention of assisting in the extension of the authority of the Manchukuo Government south of the Great Wall.

CONVICTION OF SUGAR FIRM IN LIQUOR PLOT UPHELD

U. S. Court of Appeals Affirms $10,000 Fine Against Keokuk Concern.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—The United State Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld the conviction of Frank Zito, alleged leader of a liquor ring at Springfield, Ill., and seven others, including a corporation, on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

The corporation, the Hubinger Co. of Keokuk, Ia., was fined $10,000 by Federal Judge FitzHenry.

Zito and the other individual defendants were sentenced to serve terms ranging from a few months in the Springfield jail to two years in the Federal penitentiary.

The defendants include Jasper Blanda, Vincent Salvo, Carl Giganti, Joe Pumilia, Ernest Dinord and Braggio Callesbrusco.

The Hubinger Co. was charged with furnishing large quantities of corn sugar used by the defendants' stills near Springfield.

Pleas of guilty to violation of the prohibition act were entered before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward today by the Maiden Lane Drug Co. and its president and secretary, William H. Slack, and Samuel C. Zeientz of New York. Each was fined $1000. They were among 186 defendants indicted in February, 1930, for conspiring in a $10,000,000 alcohol diversion syndicate headed by a Bulgarian chemist, Anastassoff Srebren.

Here and There on the Air

Public Discussions On the Air Today.

A TALK by Louis Bromfield, novelist and short story writer, on "The New America," will be broadcast from Paris over KWK at 1:15 today.

A talk by Newton D. Baker is scheduled at 5 o'clock on the CBS chain. Listeners might try WGN (720 kc), WHAS (820), WCCO (810), KMBC (950), WABC (860).

The usual Community Forum program is set for 5:30 on KSD. Frank Bruno, director of the School of Social Work, Washington University, will discuss character building.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain will speak over KSD at 8:30 Wednesday night.

James Roosevelt, son of the President, will talk on "MacDonald, Herriot—Their Visit and American Prosperity," Thursday night on the CBS network.

Senator Louis Murphy of Iowa will speak on the farm relief situation at 6:15 tomorrow evening on WMAQ, WOC and other WEAF chain stations.

An address by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, will be broadcast over the WEAF chain at 12:15 noon Thursday. He will discuss the general newspaper situation.

Program Changes On the Networks.

"MOONSHINE AND HONEYSUCKLE," which comes at 1:30 Sundays on KSD, will close a 132-week network run after next Sunday. Its place will be taken by a "Folks From Dixie" series written by Carleton Moss and centering around Jennie Jackson, Negro "mammy," who inherits a fortune. . . . The Roses and Drums playlets on KMOX and the CBS chain will be broadcast at a different time, beginning today, when they will be shifted from 4 o'clock to 5:30. The series will continue until June 18, when it will be discontinued for the summer, resuming Sept. 17. . . . Zona Gale's "Neighbors" sketches, the small-town serial which has been featured on KSD Saturday nights, will change to the 8:30-9 o'clock period Monday nights, beginning tomorrow. . . . The program commemorating Shakespeare's birthday anniversary and billing Jane Cowl, Rollo Reters and Otis Skinner will be broadcast by the CBS network at 4 o'clock this afternoon instead of 5:30, as originally announced. . . . The Vic and Sade sketches, which have been broadcast recently at night, will go back to 8:30 in the morning, starting tomorrow. . . . Irma Glenn's return to WENR for her organ recitals has been delayed until tomorrow.

Network News, Program Gossip.

IRENE BORDONI will be back on the WJZ chain with Emil Coleman's orchestra for a twice-a-week series, beginning Tuesday. . . . "Tom Dooley and Danny Burke," featured on WGY, Schenectady, will go on the WEAF chain and KSD at 6:15 Sundays, starting today. They are supposed to be country store types—Dooley the kindly, "horse sense" philosopher, Burke the hot head, given to snap judgment. . . . Will Rogers' new 8 o'clock Sunday night series is to start April 30. . . . The Charlie Chan detective playlets will continue on WJZ chain stations despite the death of Earl Derr Biggers, who created the Chinese detective. Biggers wrote six novels in which Chan solved murder mysteries, so there is plenty of material on which to base the radio plays. . . . Ed Wynn will begin his second year of chain broadcasting at 8:30 next Tuesday night. . . . Woods Miller, who takes Frank Parker's place in the new Parisian programs at 8:30 Monday nights on the CBS net, is a Chicagoan. He began stage work while a student at Illinois and Chicago universities. He started as a "song plugger" for a Chicago music house, then toured the country as a singer. . . . Hendrik Van Loon, the historian, will continue his "Story of Food" programs on KWK at 6 o'clock Friday evenings through April 28.

Goodman Orchestra Signed for Cobb Series.

MARGALO GILMORE, who has played "leads" in a number of Broadway plays, will head the cast for the Pages of Romance performance over KWK at 4:30 today. . . . Al Goodman's orchestra has been engaged for the Irvin S. Cobb programs on the CBS chain that will begin Wednesday night, May 3. . . . After a change of name to the "Goofliers," the "Doodlesockers" were broadcast once over an NBC chain, then were withdrawn because, it is said, of objections by WLW, which carried the "Doodlesockers" for four years as a local program. . . . The Maple City Four will be the new quartet on the Minstrels program at 8 p. m. tomorrow on KWK. . . . "The Voice of Experience," a WOR feature, will go on the CBS chain tomorrow. "'The Voice,' a very sincere person, by the way, has built up a large audience because he hasn't been afraid to talk about subjects that heretofore have never even been hinted at on the air," says Peter Dixon.

Morse Program Thursday Night.

EPISODES in the life of Samuel Morse, inventor of the telegraph, will be dramatized over the CBS chain at 7:15 Thursday night. A message from Mrs. Leila Morse Rummel, 82 years old, Morse's only surviving child, who is in Paris, will be part of the broadcast.

The Mystery Tenor may be heard at 1 o'clock on KWK; James Melton, tenor, at 6 o'clock on KSD; the Gauchos and Tito Guizar, tenor, at 3 p. m. on KMOX; Frank Munn, tenor, and Elizabeth Lenox, contralto, at 8:30 on KSD.

NEXT Sunday the CBS chain will carry a concert by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, led by Raymond Paige, from 2:30 to 4 o'clock. The program will include Haydn's "Militaire" symphony, the 'Der Freischuetz" overture of Von Weber and the Tschaikowsky concerto, with Olga Steeb, pianist, as soloist. . . . The Y. M. C. A. Male Chorus of Chicago will sing over the WJZ net at 10:30 tomorrow night. . . . The Spring Pan-American Union concert in Washington will be broadcast from 8 to 10 o'clock Wednesday night by the short-wave stations, W2XAF (31.48 meters) and W8XK (25 meters and 48 meters). The last half hour of the concert will be carried by the WJZ chain. Clarita Sanchez, Mexican soprano, and Rodolfo Ducal, Argentine tenor, will be the soloists with the United Service Orchestra. . . . The final radio concert of the season by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra is set for 1:30 next Friday on KMOX. The Rollickers quartet will return to the air on a double schedule this week, broadcasting over the WEAF net at 10:15 Monday mornings and at 4 o'clock Fridays. . . . Eight professional authorities on fashions will discuss styles during the KSD women's review programs on Thursday afternoons, beginning May 2.

NBC PLANS for broadcasting from the Chicago world's fair include placing microphones at some 100 points on the grounds and in exhibition buildings. The opening ceremonies on June 1, will be broadcast, and there will be daily fair programs for five months, including sports events. Broadcasting of every happening of major importance at the fair is contemplated.

Broadcasting Court Trials Condemned

BECAUSE the Judge permitted an El Paso station to install microphones and broadcast a murder trial recently, the bar association of the city has passed a resolution condemning the broadcasting of trials. Neither prosecution nor defense objected. But the association's action is in accordance with a resolution adopted by the American Bar Association after a sensational trial in Los Angeles. Soviet stations broadcast the proceedings at the trial of the British engineers accused of sabotage.

Network Program Time Change April 30.

NEXT Sunday, with New York changing to daylight saving time, all net work programs will be heard over St. Louis stations an hour earlier than at present.

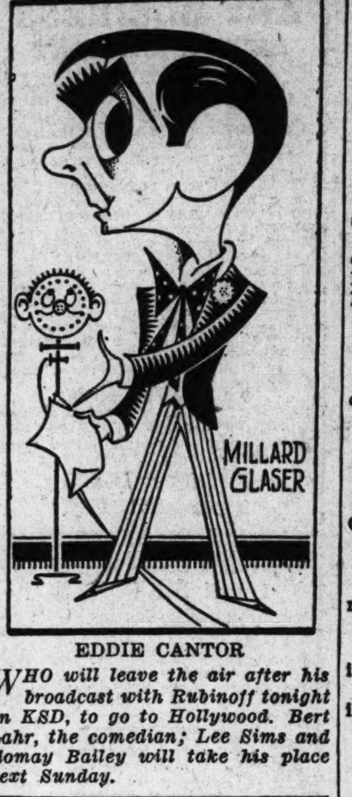
Facing the severest let down in commercial sponsorship of programs in several years, the net works during the summer will seek new talent and do some experimenting with new program ideas. Despite seriously reduced revenues, they assure fans that there will be no lessening of quality during the warm months.

The CBS chain announces that it will experiment with dramatic presentations, especially comedies, drawing upon the Broadway stage. Several new programs of one-hour duration, largely musical, are being introduced—a significant departure from the 15 and 30 minute features that have predominated on the net works in recent years. NBC recently started a two-hour variety show, but not all of its member stations have been taking the full performance. More symphony orchestra programs are being scheduled, to the delight of lovers of better music.

Cantor's Last Night On Air Till Fall



EDDIE CANTOR

WHO will leave the air after his broadcast with Rubinoff tonight on KSD, to go to Hollywood. Bert Lahr, the comedian; Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey will take his place next Sunday.

In The Studios

By Peter Dixon

FIRST signs of approaching summer are the annual announcements prepared by the network publicity departments that a lot of thought and effort is about to be devoted to the improvement of radio drama. And when any September morning rolls around again, radio drama is just about the same. Pulse weak. Respiration labored. However, there comes this year from Columbia an announcement that may be taken seriously. It happens to be credited to Marion Parsonnet, the CBS dramatic director. Parsonnet has very definite ideas about drama on the air, and they are good ideas, and he is pretty dissatisfied with what has passed for radio drama during the past few years. Parsonnet is also that rare person in the net work offices, an executive who believes writers outside the net work payrolls are well worth encouraging. Here's luck to Parsonnet in his announced plan really to try to develop a radio drama form.

AT THE same time, we think it is time to ask when the net works are going to offer a worth while incentive for this radio drama about which they write so much and do so little. It may be a radical theory, but we feel that the posting of an award of, say 1000 good dollars would do more to stimulate the interest of competent writers in creation of radio material than all the high-sounding phrases put in the mouths of the radio executives. Latest reports from the net works indicate $15 is considered a fair price for a 15-minute sketch and it is a known fact that only two writers are paid more than $100 each for quarter hour episodes. These fees, of course, are for sustaining programs. The amounts paid writers of sponsored dramatic programs run higher in some instances, though the radio writer today is, on an average, the poorest paid of all scribblers when one considers the size and importance of the audience his material is supposed to reach.

UNDER a decision by the Federal Radio Commission, KFWF, operated by the St. Louis Truth Center, is ordered off the air. The decision gives KFWF's time to WIL, which will have full use of the 1200 kilocycle channel. KFWF has been using 10 to 11 hours a week air time. L. A. Benson, president of the company operating WIL, said that KFWF will be allowed 20 days in which to wind up its programs, although the order of the Commission was made effective when it was handed down Friday.

Broadcast From Germany Monastery.

UNLESS static over the Atlantic Ocean prevents, the WJZ chain and KWK will carry a program from the Beuron Monastery, in lower Germany, at 12:30 noon today. Dom. William M. Ducey of Washington, D. C., who is doing research work in Europe, will introduce the Arch-Abbot of the monastery, the Rt. Rev. Raphael Walzer, who will speak briefly. Then the monastery bells will ring and the Beuron monk's choir, famed in Europe, will sing ancient liturgical chants. The monastery was founded 934 years ago.

Prince of Orange Memorial Broadcast.

CEREMONIES commemorating the 400th anniversary of the birth of William the Silent, the great Prince of Orange, will be broadcast at 1:30 tomorrow over KSD and the WEAF chain. Speakers will include Dr. J. H. Van Royiken, Minister from Holland; William Phillips, Under Secretary of State and formerly Minister to Holland; Judge Edward F. Fitch of New York, and Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, president emeritus of Rutgers College.

Report Favors Giving Henderson's Air Time to WWL.

By MARTIN CODEL.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—"Hel World" Henderson, the operator o KWKH, Shreveport, La., is i difficulties with the Federal authorities again. Holding that th financial and public service qualifications of Henderson's station d not warrant continuance of its operation, Chief Examiner Yost ha recommended to the Federal Radi Commission that it turn ove KWKH's hour on the air to WWL Loyola University, New Orlean The two stations share time o 850 kilocycles.

From the record of the recen hearing on the application of WW for KWKH's time, Yost quoted excerpts to show that Henderson ha used his station largely as a p sonal mouthpiece in matters of p tics, economic and persona grievance. Henderson was alleged to have accused WWL, owne by a Catholic institution, of making a "whispering fight" agains him. Yost also quoted Henderso as attacking Senator Huey Long A feud has long been in progres between Henderson and Louisiana's Kingfish.

Like the previous quarrels in which Henderson was engaged fore the Radio Commission, out o which he managed to retain his radio license, the present one is involved with Louisiana politics. In his anti-chain store and other radio crusades, Henderson had strong political support. But now he is expected to meet a bitter opponent in Senator Long.

The commission must pass o the recommendations of its chief examiner, which are based on his finding that WWL is in superior hands for public service, and that the assignment of full time on the clear channel to the Catholic University station would improve radio service in and around New Orleans without detracting from service to Shreveport.

PART FOUR. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, APRIL 23, 1933. PAGES 1—12D

BIG FOOD MARKET FOR UNIVERSITY CITY

A half block on the east side of North Ninth street, extending from St. Louis avenue to Wright street, has been acquired by W. W. Stroop, president of the Great Western Paper Box Co. The amount was not disclosed. Negotiations were handled by Martin & Breitt.

The improvements consist of one and two-story buildings, comprising 46,000 square feet of available floor space. The site has a frontage of 240 feet on Ninth and 145 feet on both St. Louis avenue and Wright street. The buildings will be remodeled and equipped for the Great Western Paper Box Co., which plans to take possession soon. The concern now occupies quarters on Fourteenth street, north of Franklin avenue.

The premises were formerly occupied by the Bendersheid Manufacturing Co.

Deals in University City.

The week was featured by negotiations for long leases involving new business ventures on Delmar boulevard in University City.

A corporation is being formed by clients of the Henry R. Weisels Co. to conduct a co-operative food market in the building at 6320 Delmar boulevard, formerly occupied by the McCarthy Automobile Co. and owned by Walter Hays, attorney.

A long lease is being negotiated on the building, and also on the parking lot, 100 by 110 feet, on the east, owned by the Delit Realty Co., for parking facilities for customers of the proposed market.

The building, situated just east of the Tivoli Theater, has a frontage of 100 feet on Delmar, with a depth of 110 feet. The project contemplates a new plate glass front on Delmar and along the east wall of the building, together with a large entrance front on Delmar and on the east line.

The new market will rival the largest in the retail food line in or near St. Louis, comprising more than 12,000 square feet of floor space, according to Weisels.

The Shell Oil Co. has renewed its lease on the corner of Delmar and Limit, 75 by 110 feet.

Other Negotiations.

A large grocery chain is negotiating with the Weisels Company for the old engine house on the former city hall grounds on Delmar boulevard in University City, and for adjoining ground.

The former University City Hall block, including the engine house, is owned by the Nathan Frank estate. It was acquired in a trade by Mr. Frank just before his death for what is known as the Magazine Building, a six-story octagonal structure at the head of Delmar, which now serves as the City Hall. The engine company now occupies quarters in this building.

University City assumed a deed of trust of $75,000 on the Magazine Building. Frank got the former City Hall block, which has an extensive frontage on Delmar, clear of incumbrance. The Henry R. Weisels Co. handled negotiations on behalf of Mr. Frank. Frank had acquired the Magazine Building several years previously, at an attractive price, according to real estate men.

Negotiations were pending with the Weisels Company just before the depression started for this block, on behalf of a national chain concern for a department store, with building plans on a large scale. This block is situated in the heart of the business section of University City and has a potential value predicated on the growth of University City far beyond its present assessed value, real estate men declare.

MARCH BUILDING AWARDS SHOW GAIN OVER FEBRUARY'S

NEW YORK, April 22.—The F. W. Dodge Corporation says:

Considering the widespread slowing down in business occasioned by the banking holiday the March results in the construction field must be considered encouraging. Normally March shows seasonal expansion in new construction awards; in spite of the banking holiday some seasonal expansion over February occurred. The March contract total of $59,958,500 covering all classes of construction compared with $52,712,300 for February and $112,234,500 for March, 1932.

Of larger present significance, however, is the fact that residential awards during March expanded about 36 per cent as compared with February; the March total for this class of work was $16,021,000, as against $11,805,300 for February and $33,208,600 for March of last year. Of the March, 1933, residential total practically 80 per cent represented awards for one and two family houses; this is of significance in that it is in the small house field that conditions of improvement usually occur first.

For the first quarter of 1933 residential building contracts totaled $39,777,200, as against $85,130,200 for the corresponding quarter of 1932. Of the 1933 quarterly total 75 per cent was for one and two family houses while the remainder was for apartment buildings and hotels. Of the 1932 quarterly total 78 per cent went into small houses and 22 per cent into apartment houses and hotels.

The first quarter's contract record for all classes of construction totaled $196,026,800 as contrasted with $286,078,700 for the corresponding quarter of 1932. Non-residential building awards during the quarter totaled $78,761,100 as against $118,757,800 in the same quarter of 1932; public works totaled $62,288,900 as against $57,161,800 in the first quarter of 1932; while awards for public utilities totaled $15,199,600 as contrasted with $25,028,900 in the first quarter a year ago.

March construction contracts showed gains over February in all major districts except the Upstate New York, Middle Atlantic, Southeast and Texas territories. All districts showed losses from March, 1932; relatively, however, the best showing was made in the Metropolitan New York, Southeast, St. Louis and New Orleans territories.

For the first quarter of 1933 gains over the same period of 1932 were reported in Upstate New York and the New Orleans district; declines were shown in the remaining districts.

Contemplated new construction of all descriptions reported during March in 37 states as a whole totaled $144,768,200 as compared with $114,185,900 reported during February and $182,690,400 for March, 1932. Gains in contemplated construction over February were reported in the New England, Metropolitan New York, Upstate New York, Middle Atlantic, Chicago, Central Northwest, Southern Michigan and Texas territories; declines were reported for the Pittsburgh, Southeastern, St. Louis, Kansas City and New Orleans districts.

REPAID RUNS OUT OF MONEY IN FIELD OF DERBY HOPES

By the Associated Press.
HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 22.—Swivel, queen of the two-year-old fillies last year and winner of the Pimlico Futurity, soundly trounced six other eligibles for the $50,000 Kentucky Derby today to share honors at Havre De Grace with C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, which signalized his return to the races with a smashing victory in the $7,500 Philadelphia Handicap.

The daughter of Swift and Sure, making her three-year-old debut, carried the silks of Adolphe Pons to an easy three-length victory over a mile and 70 yards, defeating, among others, the highly regarded Repaid from James F. Johnson's Quincy Stable, the second choice in the pre-race betting to win the Derby.

Swivel Gets Up From Last.

Running the distance in 1:43 4-5 under the guidance of Alfred Robertson, Swivel came from last position to beat Willian Ziegler, Jr.'s Keep Out, a long shot, by three lengths. Samuel Riddle's War Glory, a son of Man o' War, was a length back in third place and was followed by Projectile, a stablemate of the winner, and the badly-beaten Repaid. Although the favorite, Repaid never figured in the running, being far back at all times.

Swivel ran a race that should boost her stock in both the Derby and the Preakness. Robertson did not rush the bay beauty, letting her trail the field as the leaders swung into the back stretch. Midway through the back stretch, however, she began her mighty drive. She passed on the inside of Repaid and then took around the leaders on the bend. She entered the stretch ho on the trail of War Glory and bounded to the front at the furlong pole. From then on she coasted me.

Repaid, backed by sensation trials at Aqueduct, was the choic of the majority of the capacit crowd of 15,000, but there was plenty of support for Swivel and h running mate. The entry pai $6.80 for $2.

Equipoise in Fine Form.

Equipoise was in great form he sped over the one and one-si teenth miles in 1:44 3-5, just a se d slower than the track recor to earn $6,375 and boost his tot winnings to $273,585.

Carrying the crushing impost 128 pounds and giving plenty weight to his seven rivals, the so of Pennant swept to the front the head of the stretch and cross the finish line a length and a ha in front of S. W. Labrot's Tr Avon. W. R. Coe's Osculator w third.

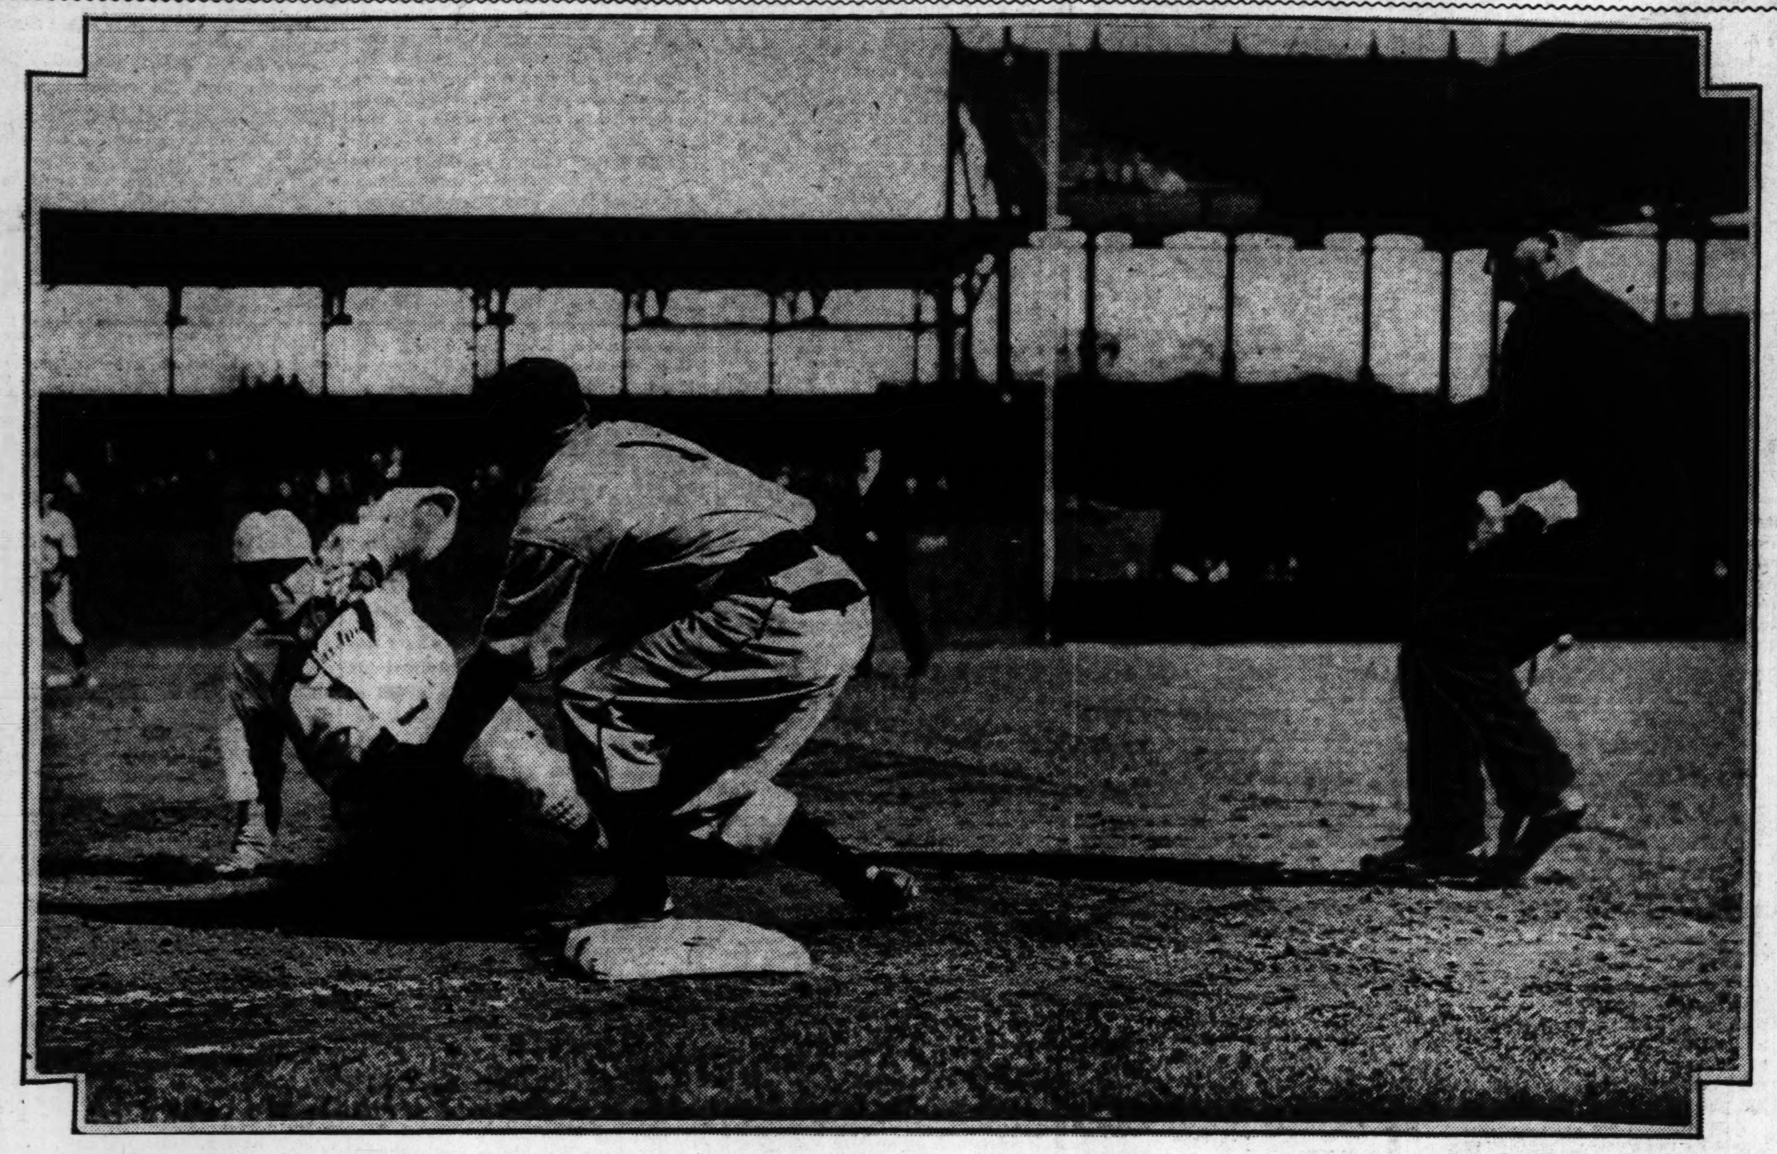
Making the Runs in Second Consecutive Shutout for Redbirds



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Joe Medwick sliding into third base in the fourth inning, when the Cardinals made the only two runs scored in yesterday's victory over the Cubs at Sportsman's Park. Jimmy Collins opened with a single and Medwick followed with a one-bagger to right, long enough to send Ripper to third. Babe Herman fumbled, Collins continued home and Medwick got all the way to the far corner and scored a minute later on an infield out.

"Flying Dutchman."

FANS at Sportsman's Park today will observe a white-headed, broad-backed, bandy-legged, granite-jawed, eagle-beaked man in a Pittsburgh uniform, coaching at first or third base.

WAGNER.

Look again and then remember that you are beholding a man who 29 years ago was as great as or greater than Babe Ruth today—John Peter ("Hans") Wagner, the "Flying Dutchman" of the baseball world, 25 or 30 years ago.

Take a GOOD look at this fellow. It is very unlikely you will ever see his like again. When they built Hans they made a player who was practically perfect, for baseball purposes, from the standpoint of the fans, the manager and the club owner.

Never was his equal. Even though he flourished almost a generation ago, his playing is still talked of.

The "greatest shortstop of all time" is just one of the titles conceded to him. Probably the "most valuable man to his team, of all time" would be another.

Projectile finished strongly on the outside. Repaid, kept under urging throughout, was unable to respond at any stage. Caesar's Ghost had no mishap. Garden Message was not abused when he tired.

STANFORD, WITH EASTMAN OUT, DOWNS U. S. C.

PALO ALTO, Cal., April 22.—Without the aid of their super-star, Big Ben Eastman, Stanford's Indians ended the track and field dominance of Southern California's Trojans today by defeating the National Champions of the last three years, 67 to 64, in the West's annual dual meet classic.

Eastman, world record holder in the quarter mile, languished on the side lines, recovering from a pulled muscle, but the certain points he would have scored in the 440 and half mile events were not needed. His teammates, some of them rising to brilliant and unexpected heights, completed the job thoroughly and in convincing fashion.

Most of the 8000 fans in the stands had come here prepared to see Stanford beaten for the fourth consecutive year.

Upset piled over upset to thrill the throng. The unlooked for happenings began when Les "Abe" Hables, Stanford's sprint star, ran off with the 100-yard dash in 9.7 seconds. He had been figured to run second to Charles Parsons, the Trojan entry. Parsons was a poor third while his teammate, Leslie Ball, hit the tape a foot behind Hables.

Hables also got a first place in the 220, being clocked at 21.6 seconds, and won individual point scoring honors as the only double winner.

The high jump result was the blow that beat the Trojans.

An unknown Stanford entry, Lloyd Schween, took the measure of Southern California's 1932 Olympic high jump champion, Duncan McNaughton, and his equally agile teammate, Bob Van Osdel. Schween cleared 6 feet 4⅝ inches, the best of his brief competitive career, while the two Trojans tied at 6 feet 3 inches.

With Eastman out of competition, Ed Ablowich of the Trojans had things his own way in the quarter mile. He won rather easily in the ordinary time of 48.9 seconds.

The teams will meet again at Los Angeles May 6.

LOUISVILLE, KY., April 22.
By the Associated Press.

KNOCKAWAY, imported Irish gelding, which already has worked himself into the position of the "dark horse" of the Kentucky Derby, turned in one of the most impressive workouts of the season at Churchill Downs today.

The gelding, which was brought to this country as a yearling and has yet to face the barrier in a race, went the full Derby mile and a quarter in 2:11 flat, going handily throughout. Turfmen considered it certain his owner, W. E. Smith, chairman of the Kentucky Racing Commission, would start Knockaway in the classic here two weeks from today.

He covered the quarter in :24 2-5, half in :49 1-5, three-quarters in 1:16 4-5, and the mile in 1:43 2-5 with Jockey William Kern up.

SHIELDS WINS TITLE, BEATING MANGIN IN FINAL

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 22.—Frank Shields, lanky New Yorker who yesterday played a prominent role in the downfall of three members of the Davis Cup team, today swept aside the remaining opposition in the Mason and Dixon tennis championship, winning the singles title and pairing with Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles to capture the doubles crown.

With his powerful service working effectively, Shields blasted his way to a four-set victory over Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., national indoor champion, to win the singles, 10—8, 4—6, 6—0, 6—2, together with Stoefen, he turned back Mangin and Berkeley Bell of New York in the doubles, 6—3, 11—9.

Mrs. John Van Ryn of Philadelphia managed to keep a share of the honors in the family when she defeated Baroness Maud Levi of New York, in the final match of women's singles. The score was 6—4, 5—7, 6—4. It was Mrs. Van Ryn's second straight title on the spring circuit. She won the North-South championship at Pinehurst last week.

Seven New Records Are Established in Kansas Relay Meet

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 22.—Glenn Cunningham upheld his prestige as king of American milers today at the eleventh annual Kansas Relays Carnival and broke one of the seven records erased in the first major test of the Midwestern outdoor track and field season.

The Kansas middle distance ace, defending the 1500-meter run championship, decisively shattered his own mark and, on a heavy track, was only 2.1 seconds slower than the American record in defeating Glen Dawson of the Tulsa Athletic Association.

Cunningham was timed at 3:53.3. The mark he established at the first running of the "Olympic mile" here last year was 4:02.5.

Childress Wins Decathlon.

The only other open event, the Decathlon, was won by Charles Childress 22-year-old senior in the Central Missouri State Teachers' College at Warrensburg, who conquered Wilson (Buster) Charles, Oneida Indian, who was national all-around champion in 1930 and fourth-place winner in the last Olympic Decathlon.

All three mile-relay records were broken.

Indian Leads in Victories.

Field event records remained intact. The entrants were handicapped by a sodden infield resulting from rains which also left the cinders spongy. A crowd of 5000 turned out for the carnival.

The University of Indiana made off with championships in the 4-mile relays, third in the medley, second in the discus throw and fourth in the broad jump.

Close behind was the University of Illinois, with the first in the half-mile relay, second in both the quarter mile and 4-mile baton events, first in the shot-put and two tied for first in the pole vault, dominated by Captain Estil Lenington and Seely of the Illini. Kansas State College was first in the medley, second in the 2-mile relay and second in the shuttle hurdles.

With Bill Newblock, defending high jump champion, taking first again in the high-jump, the University of Oklahoma won one championship, three second places, and three thirds.

Nebraska took first in the broad jump, second in the medley, third in the half-mile relay, third in the 100-yard dash and fourth in the high hurdles.

By J. Roy Stockton.

James Otto Carleton, the slender young righthander from Texas, pitched the Cardinals to their second successive shutout victory over the Cubs yesterday afternoon, beating Charley Root, the veteran righthander in a brilliant mound duel, 2 to 0.

Carleton was as effective with his right-handed curves, his change of pace and his cross-fire delivery as Bill Hallahan was on Friday but the Texan had to work hard for his triumph and in going right down to the wire he showed his courage.

With two out in the ninth Mark Koenig, who helped to win the 1932 pennant for the Cubs only to be treated in a fashion that the Yankees called not generous, batted for Root and singled to center. Billy Herman then shot a grounder toward third and it looked like the end of the ball game, but Martin missed the ball and it rolled out into left field, Koenig reaching third and Herman second on the error.

Carleton Keeps Poise.

That brought Woody English to the plate and the spectators stopped shivering from the cold and began to worry over the ball game. But Carleton didn't lose his poise. Three curves he shot over the outside corner of the plate, three times did English offer viciously at the ball and the three strikes ended the ball game and saved the victory for Carleton and the Redbirds.

Root was almost as good as his young opponent. He too hurled five-hit baseball and he too doled out the hits one at a time except in one inning. That was in the fourth inning when the Cardinals scored their two runs.

Babe Herman's Error Helps.

Jimmy Collins opened the productive attack with a single to right and Medwick followed with a one-bagger that skipped just out of Charley Grimm's reach. The blow sent Collins to third and when Babe Herman's throw bounced past English, Collins continued home and Medwick reached third. Medwick scored the second run of the inning while Jurges was throwing out Martin.

With perfect support for Root, the game might have gone on and on far into the evening. One run was scored on the wild heave and Medwick would not have scored, had it not been for a momentary fumble by Jurges before he threw out Martin.

Martin handled five chances cleanly at third and made two errors. One was on Billy Herman's hot grounder in the ninth inning and the other was a fumble of Jurges' grounder in the second.

In victory the Cardinals looked good, of course, but not as good as when they were lambasting Guy Bush and Richmond for 14 hits in Friday's game.

However, the Redbirds have won their first series of the year, taking two out of three from the league champions and as Gabby Street said between smiles last evening, "just try to laught that off."

RED BIRD NOTES

THE Cardinal boys' band, which made its bow at yesterday's game, marching to center field for flag raising ceremonies, will be on hand again this afternoon. The band includes 133 pieces and will be expanded until it is 150 strong.

Dazzy Vance and Bill Walker, each making his debut as a Cardinal, will be the starting pitchers in this afternoon's doubleheader, with the Pirates. The first game will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Branch Rickey, back from what he described as a tour of the United States, said yesterday afternoon that he expected changes soon in the Cardinal squad, but declined to amplify the statement, except to say that he, Manager Street and Owner Sam Breadon were not satisfied thoroughly with the reserve strength.

Pepper Martin knocked down Billy Herman's hot smash in the second inning and leaped to tag Jurges, who was going to third. Jurges was knocked sprawling, with Pepper on top of him.

Frisch, the smartest second baseman in the business, played on the bag for Babe Herman in the sixth and the Babe hit straight to him and was thrown out, complaining. A ballplayer doesn't like to be retired by a fielder playing out of his normal position.

With nobody on in the eighth Jimmy Wilson suspected Babe Herman was going to bunt. Jim left his position and ran out to field the expected bunt, but the ball was wide, almost hit Umpire McGrew and the crowd laughed, some of the spectators not knowing what it was all about.

Carleton ran into Umpire Moran after being thrown out by Jurges in the eighth and Cholly thought Tex was attacking him in protest at the decision, which was close. Moran pointed the thumb to the shower, but Carleton quickly explained that it was just an unavoidable collision so Cholly relented and patted Tex on the shoulders. No hard feelings.

By James M. Gould.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

DETROIT, April 22.—It may or may not be some sort of a record but it is nevertheless a fact that the Browns, thus far this season, have lost six games and that one pitcher, to wit viz and i. e. Lloyd Brown, has been charged with four of the six defeats.

Brown, always considered a great spring pitcher, lost his fourth in a row here today when the Tigers slapped him for 13 hits and took the first of the series from Bill Killefer's team by a score of 5 to 1. The game was played in cold weather and witnessed by only about 2000 persons.

Fred Marberry, a former teammate of Brown's at Washington, was the winner and thoroughly deserved the victory. He was reached for three hits and a run by the Browns in the first, but thereafter was almost unhittable, scattering three hits over eight innings.

Marberry was helped by some hard and timely hitting by his mates, his chief helper being Bill Rogell, once of the Red Sox, who had three singles and a double for a perfect day at bat.

Browns' Only Score in First.

There was some firing in the first with each club making a single run. For the Browns, West singled with one down and went to third when Reynolds did likewise. Burns' fly to Fox admitted West but after Gullic singled, Ferrell flied to Fox. The Tigers soon tied it up. Fox singled and Owen flied out. Stone hit to Melillo, whose throw to second was late, Stone also beating Levey's relay to first. Gehringer then singled Fox home but was doubled stealing when Greenberg struck out.

The first two Tigers in the second, Walker and Rogell, doubled for a run. Reiber lined low to center and West made a startling catch. Sammy followed with a throw to Melillo for a double play on Rogell.

After two were out in the Brown's fourth, Ferrell walked and Melillo hit safely to right but Levey struck out and that was that. Greenberg walked and Walker singled with one out in the Tiger half and Rogell also singled, West's quick return holding Greenberg on third. With the bases thus filled, Recruit Catcher Reiber hit through the box to score Greenberg and Walker. Brown then hurt matters, already bad, with a wild pitch which advanced both Rogell and Reiber but recovered his poise and retired Marberry and Fox.

Marberry Strong at Finish.

Marberry appeared to improve as the game wore on through the wintry afternoon. The Browns failed to get a man on in the fifth even though the head of the batting order was up. Owen doubled to start the Tiger half and, after one was out, Gehringer walked but Brown shut down and there was no scoring.

Rogell's third successive hit opened the Detroit sixt but he tried to steal and was nailed. It didn't matter, as Reiber hit to Levey what would have been a sure double-play ball and Marberry also rolled out. With the Browns continuing helpless, the Tigers bit into Brown for a triple and two singles in the seventh but only got one run out of the mess.

That was the last of the scoring. Brown retired after the seventh and Lena Stiles finised up.

Brownie Notes.

IF his arm isn't frozen up after today's exposure to Detroit's spring weather, Wally Hebert may get a chance to start against the Tigers in the second game of the series tomorrow. Bridges is a likely Tiger pitching candidate.

They haven't even the benefit of beer in Detroit. The Legislature, expected to act favorably so Michiganders might have their brew for the week-end, became peeved at something and adjourned until Monday, leaving Detroiters with their thirst and with only about 1000 places where they can slake it.

Only four players were left in their original starting positions in the batting order when Killefer ordered wholesale alterations. Scharein, West and Reynolds, with the pitcher, kept theirs; the rest moved, some up, some down.

When the Browns left Chicago last night, Jack Powell, the old Brownie pitcher, even portlier now than he was in his pitching days, saw the boys off. He threatens to visit the old haunts one of these days. Few fans remember, but Bill Killefer for a short time was Jack's citcher.

No Men Allowed— On This Trout Stream, Which Has a Woman Warden

When the Connecticut State trout season opened last week, it ushered in something unusual —special privileges for women anglers. The Branford River has been set aside for the use of women exclusively, and the first woman game warden in the history of the State has been assigned to the job of keeping the men away. The picture shows Warden Edith M. Stoper (with the shield) watching Miss Helen Wakefield (left) and Miss Edith Matteson, school teachers, with the first catch of spreckled beauties to be taken from this exclusive stream.

THREE BILLIKEN FOOTBALL MEN SUFFER INJURIES

The second heavy scrimmage for the St. Louis University spring football squad, held yesterday afternoon on the Stadium practice field, had results that were both good and bad. It appears that Coach Chile Walsh will have one of the most versatile collections of linemen and backfield aces in many a season, but considerable time must be occupied during the remaining spring drills in adding the finished touch to the prospects for next fall.

While the ball carriers, when they clicked, gave indications of a great scoring machine, the Billiken coach interrupted the scrimmage at various times to point out mistakes. Likewise, Line Coach Joe Maxwell, satisfied with the many changes made in the Billiken forward wall, inserted his pointers in their proper place, adding finesse to one of the heaviest lines in year.

Injuries contributed toward slowing up the spring training process, three of the Billikens seeing little or no action. Manuel (Fat) Rapp, husky backfield ace, pulled a muscle in his left leg, and left the field after turning in a creditable performance. Although he scored no touchdowns, Rapp executed several long runs which paved the way toward four markers made by the heavy varsity eleven over the lighter combination.

Joe Bassett, veteran quarterback, was under trainer's care with a broken thumb and wrenched shoulder from Friday's workout. Jack Turk, freshman halfback, also was out of commission with an infection.

Starting the scrimmage with one heavy team against a lighter one, Coach Walsh interchanged his freshmen and varsity candidates and brought the strength of both squads very near to par before the practice closed. The heavier eleven opened play with two touchdowns in quick succession, one by Kane following a long run by Fat Rapp, and the other by Bud Feldman, quarterback, who ran back a punt 50 yards for a score. Big Arnold Arenz, at his regular fullback post, ploughed his way down the field easily for the third touchdown, and the fourth was made by Kane on a wide left-end run.

With Philpot, Kersens, Axtell, Montgomery, Conlon, Nisbet, Minkey, Meinhardt, Bockrath, Spehr and Beck as a veteran line in front of them, backfields composed of Arnold Arenz, Tom Howland, Tom Hurley, Carl Kane, Fat Rapp and Bud Feldman had little trouble at the outset in producing spectacular runs and scores.

Glad News for Hunters

HUNTERS and fishermen already are beginning to take notice, since the new State Game and Fish Commissioner Wilbur Buford was appointed.

Extension of native fish hatching facilities, especial attention to the propagation of wild turkey, deer and other game and the larger use of State parks for propagation of wild life, are some of the planks in his platform.

BUFORD.

"There is no question that there is room for improvement in game and fish conditions in Missouri, but I feel what progress has been made should not be summarily junked.

"Revenue from hunting and fishing licenses has fallen off and some phases of the work may have to be curtailed; but, so far as possible, the fish and game propagation program will go full tilt ahead.

"Missouri's laws require that 25 per cent of the revenue received from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses must be used for the purchase and maintenance of State parks. Many sportsmen object to this, but there will be nothing for us to do but follow the law. However, we can, as has been done in the past, use the parks as bases for game and fish propagation.

Room for Wild Turkey

"Among the game birds to be given special attention is the wild turkey. Missouri has more than 14 millions of acres where the wild turkey and deer will thrive, but so far only a small part of this area has been stocked by the State Department. Much of the success to be had with this bird will come from providing suitable feed and cover for the native stock and adding more brood stock from year to year. Deer, too, should continue to increase under this policy. Work started with bobwhite quail research and propagation, I think, should be continued, especially in restocking of shot out areas.

"While Missouri has many advantages as a game country it is her fishing facilities which are most famous and which should be given every possible consideration by the State Game and Fish Department. Fish production is a slow and tedious process, but should not be ignored because of these difficulties. Extension of the native fish hatchery facilities will be urged."

Trout Reproduction.

G. M. Kerby, chief of hatcheries for the Missouri Game and Fish Department, is the author of more than a score of bulletins relative to fish of Missouri. His latest bulletin, issued this week, is "Propagation of the Rainbow Trout."

"The subject of reproduction of trout in the natural way in Midwest streams is of little or no consequence," Kirby says. "Small claim has as yet been made that natural reproduction in our streams has ever been observed. A few people, most of them without fish cultural experience, claim to have observed some results of natural reproduction.

"It is my opinion that, without continuous application of human effort toward the artificial breeding and rearing, trout would practically disappear from Missouri waters within 10 years. Furthermore, 20 years would in a measure bring a similar condition throughout the United States."

The Bagnell Hatchery.

The 11-pond hatchery which the Union Electric Light and Power Co. constructed last year at Zebra, Mo., on the Lake of the Oazrks for the State Game and Fish Department is now being stocked with brood game fish.

Six of the 11 hatchery ponds are now filled with water and it is in these that the brood stock is being placed. Bass, crappie and blue gill sunfish will be produced in the ponds and distributed around the lake.

More than 20 large bass were placed in one spawning pond by hatchery officials.

The hatchery was constructed under a law passed by the Legislature two years ago requiring power companies to construct and maintain hatcheries when practical fish ladders were not constructed in hydro-electric dams. No ladder was built in the dam at Bagnell.

Capitalizing Big Spring.

Donald Bales, son of Senator D. L. Bales, of Eminence, had obtained the lease on concession rights at Big Spring State Park in Carter County. This concession is considered the most profitable in the entire State Park group as the place is visited annually by thousands of persons.

Bales also is operator of float trips on Jacks Fork and Current River and will establish a float trip outfitting point at the park. He established a branch outfitting point last year at Van Buren, four miles from the park.

State Shoot Program.

The sixth annual Missouri State shoot, held under the auspices of the Federation of Missouri Trapshooters, will be conducted at the Jefferson City Gun Club May 5, 6 and 7. More than $800 in cash and 11 trophies will be awarded winners of the shoot. The program:

First day, May 5—Zone team championship, Missouri doubles championship for the A. T. A. trophy.

Second day, May 6 — Missouri singles championship for the Elliott Cup, Missouri State championship shoot for expenses to Grand American Handicap, ladies' championship shoot for the A. T. A. trophy, all around championship for the A. T. A. trophy, all singles championship (450 single targets) for the Jefferson City Chamber of Commerce trophy. Dinner at Sleepy Eye Lodge and annual meeting.

Third day, May 7—Classification championship for the Jefferson City Gun Club trophies, Missouri handicap for the A. T. A. and the Joplin Chamber of Commerce trophies.

COMBS' TRIPLE BEATS RED SOX, GIVING YANKEES SEVEN IN ROW

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 22.—Earl Combs slashed a triple against right center field wall in the eighth inning and broke up a neat pitching duel to give the Yankees a 2-1 victory over the Red Sox today, their seventh in succession.

Combs scored after Joe Sewell flied out, with the run that enabled George Pipgras to outpoint Gordon "Dusty" Rhodes on the mound. Pipgras gave three hits and Rhodes five.

Goslin Hits Homer as Senators Trim Macks.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Overcoming an early lead of 4—0, the Washington Senators won a slugfest from the Philadelphia Athletics today and halted their losing streak of four straight. The Griffmen triumphed by 10 runs to 7, lashing out 16 hits.

Goose Goslin led the bombardment of five Mack pitchers with two doubles, a single and a home run in six times up. Buddy Myer, Joe Cronin and Fred Schulte each hammered three blows.

About 10,000 persons braved the cold weather to see the game.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., April 22.—The University of Illinois opened the Big Ten baseball season here today by slugging out a 14-to-10 victory over University of Michigan in a free-hitting contest.

Joe Wrobke, starting on the mound for Illinois, was wild, and was followed by Smith and Tewell, after which he resumed the box again, after a spel lat second. All this yielded Michigan 10 hits, while the Illini were gathering 15 from the offerings of Wistert, Patchin, Manuel and Tillotson. The game lasted three hours and a quarter.

Childress, Winner of Only Two Firsts, Noses Out Charles in Decathlon

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 22.—Charles Childress of Archie, Mo., a senior in the Central Missouri State Teachers' College at Warrensburg, won the Missouri Valley, A. A. U., decathlon championship at the eleventh annual Kansas relays carnival today, nosing onut Wilson (Buster) Charles, former national champion and Olympic competitor with a strong finish in the last five events.

Childress, 22-year-old 170-pounder, who placed second to James A. Bausch, Olympic record-holder in the all-round test here last year, amassed a point total of 7454.04, far below Bausch's record.

Charles, an Oneida Indian, was National A. A. U. and Kansas Relays decathlon champion in 1930. Childress, a protege of Coach Tad Reid, who developed Vernon Kennedy as a national decathlon champion several years ago, scored only two firsts in the 10 events—in the pole vault with a good mark of 12 feet, 9¼ inches, and in the javelin.

Childress was second in the shotput, high jump and 110-meter high hurdles; third in the broad jump and fourth in the 100 and 400-meter sprints, discus throw and 1500-meter run.

Charles took first in the 100-meter, broad jump, shotput, high jump, hurdles and 1500-meter; second in the 400-meter and discus; third in the javelin and fourth in the pole vault. His point total was 7432.12.

Scores of the other contenders: Don Eagleman, Haskell Indian Institute, Lawrence, 6289.53; Russell Pearson, Childress' teammate, 6183.52; George W. Grammer of Junction City, Kan., a freshman in Kansas State College, 6029.17; William Frazey, Iowa Wesleyan College, 5812.22; Eric Classen, Newton, Kan., formerly of Kansas State College, 3878.55.

Five of the events were run off yesterday and the remaining five today. The summaries today:

Ellinwood of W. M. A. Sets His Eighth Record

Western Military Academy trounced Staunton's track team yesterday afternoon by a score of 86½ to 35½, Irv. Loesche of Western pacing the scorers with a total of 22¼ points.

The feature event was the mile run in which Ray Ellinwood of Western broke the Alton school record for the mile, running it in four minutes 38.6 seconds. The old record was 5 minutes 2¼ seconds, set by Robertson in 1913.

This makes the eighth record held by Ellinwood. He holds three Western school records: the 440, 880 and now the mile runs. He also holds two A. B. C. records in the 440 and 880 yard runs, two Maplewood Relay records, 440 and 880 yard runs, and the Preparatory League record for the 880-yard run.

Charley of Staunton was high point man for his school, winning the pole vault and placing second in the high hurdles and javelin, for a total of 11 points.

NEW YORK, April 22.—With chance to give St. Louis its first n tional soccer championship sinc 1922, when the Scullins defeated th Todds, 3 goals to 2, the Stix, Baer Fuller eleven, Western champion will oppose the New York Ame cans in the second match of the S. F. A. grand final at Starlig Park here tomorrow afternoon.

The Stix, winners of the fir match played in the West, by a 1-t 0 margin, will put St. Louis ba on top in the soccer world with victory, while a decision for th Americans will force a third co test. The site for the third matc if necessary, will be decided by t Cup Committee immediately aft the contest here.

In the opening game a week ag there was little to choose betwe the two elevens. The Stix ma good on one of their opportuniti Willie McLean, outside left, bo ing the only point. However, t Americans were dangerous up to t final whistle and, playing on the home field, are expected to put just as thrilling a fight as in th opener.

Two Different Styles.

If there was one fault in th Americans' attack last week it w in the fact that the forwards r fused to take chances. Rather th take advantage of what appear an open shot, they would pass t ball, thus giving the St. Louisa a chance to tighten up their fense. This was especially true Moritz Hausler, inside right, w in the second half, had numer chances, but always passed Manager Erno Schwarcz, on wing. The Americans employ style used by the Central Europ clubs, that of short passes and effort to dribble past the "goal rather than make a long shot. T Westerners are a "shooting" clu

The Americans are apt to ha one advantage over the Stix in second game. That comes beca the St. Louisans will be playing a smaller field than they have b accustomed to. In fact, the f at Starlight Park does not co up to regulations for cup conte according to Alec McNab and oth Stix athletes who have played it. Thus the short passing styl attack of the Americans is suited, while the Stix will have pull their punches" to avoid ing their long crosses go out throw-ins.

"We are going to be in fo tough fight, and it may not be best of soccer, because of the playing field," said Coach Alec Nab of the Stix. "There will no chance for our players to themselves to look for an ope after trapping a ball. It will just a case of bang away, as defenders will be right on top o at all times. The fans will be next to the playing field and I pect many interruptions to clea the turf so that play can tinue. This will be especially on corner kicks."

However, despite these appa handicaps, the Stix are confi they will win and thus bring national championship back t Louis.

For a time, it was feared Charley La Barge, veteran "go of the St. Louisans, would be able to play as a result of an jury, but he has recovered and start in the contest. Howeve anything goes wrong, Fra Vaughan will be on hand to over the duties between the rights. All the other Stix athl who started in the series op will be in the lineup, while ager Schwarcz of the Ameri will again trot out his 11 regu

NEW YORK, April 22.—With a chance to give St. Louis its first national soccer championship since 1922, when the Scullins defeated the Todds, 3 goals to 2, the Stix, Baer & Fuller eleven, Western champions, will oppose the New York Americans in the second match of the U. S. F. A. grand final at Starlight Park here tomorrow afternoon.

The Stix, winners of the first match played in the West, by a 1-to-0 margin, will put St. Louis back on top in the soccer world with a victory, while a decision for the Americans will force a third contest. The site for the third match, if necessary, will be decided by the Cup Committee immediately after the contest here.

In the opening game a week ago, there was little to choose between the two elevens. The Stix made good on one of their opportunities, Willie McLean, outside left, booting the only point. However, the Americans were dangerous up to the final whistle and, playing on their home field, are expected to put up just as thrilling a fight as in the opener.

Two Different Styles.

If there was one fault in the Americans' attack last week it was in the fact that the forwards refused to take chances. Rather than take advantage of what appeared an open shot, they would pass the ball thus giving the St. Louisans a chance to tighten up their defense. This was especially true of Moritz Hausler, inside right, who, in the second half, had numerous chances, but always passed to Manager Erno Schwarcz, on the wing. The Americans employ the style used by the Central European clubs, that of short passes and an effort to dribble past the "goalie" rather than make a long shot. The Westerners are a "shooting" club.

The Americans are apt to have one advantage over the Stix in the second game. That comes because the St. Louisans will be playing on a smaller field than they have been accustomed to. In fact, the field at Starlight Park does not come up to regulations for cup contests, according to Alec McNab and other Stix athletes who have played on it. Thus the short passing style of attack of the Americans is well suited, while the Stix will have "to pull their punches" to avoid having their long crosses go out for throw-ins.

"We are going to be in for a tough fight, and it may not be the best of soccer, because of the small playing field," said Coach Alec McNab of the Stix. "There will be no chance for our players to set themselves to look for an opening after trapping a ball. It will be just a case of bang away, as the defenders will be right on top of us at all times. The fans will be right next to the playing field and I expect many interruptions to clear off the turf so that play can continue. This will be especially true on corner kicks."

However, despite these apparent handicaps, the Stix are confident they will win and thus bring the national championship back to St. Louis.

For a time, it was feared that Charley La Barge, veteran "goalie" of the St. Louisans, would be unable to play as a result of an injury, but he has recovered and will start in the contest. However, if anything goes wrong, Frankie Vaughan will be on hand to take over the duties between the uprights. All the other Stix athletes who started in the series opener will be in the lineup, while Manager Schwarcz of the Americans will again trot out his 11 regulars.

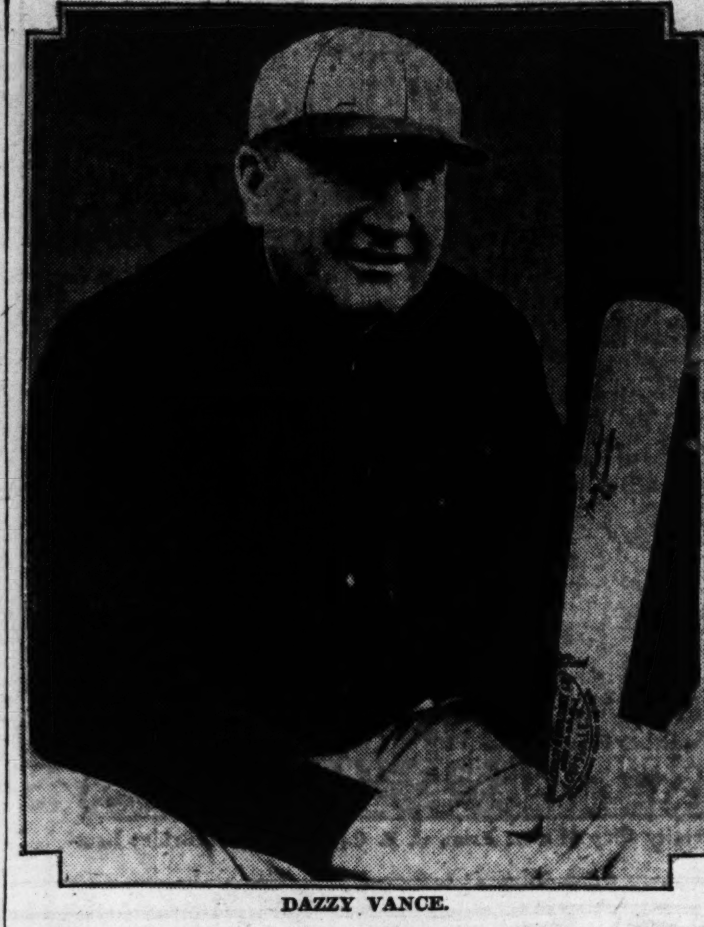
Dazzy Vance, Wise Cracker From Brooklyn, Makes Cardinal Debut Today

Obtained With Another Trade in View, Veteran Pitcher Has Won Place With Work and Humor.

By J. Roy Stockton.



DAZZY VANCE.

Arthur C. "Dazzy" Vance is scheduled to pitch a ball game for the Cardinals this afternoon in one of the two contests with the Pittsburgh Pirates and this is a story of how this florid-faced behemoth of the hurling hill, very much persona non grata and a pain in the neck when he was obtained by the Redbirds Feb. 9, 1933, has won his way into the hearts of the athletes who are wearing the colors of Sam Breadon.

When Breadon and Branch Rickey announced that the one-time greatest pitcher in the business had been obtained from the Brooklyn Dodgers, persons who were supposed to know what it was all about, took it for granted that Dazzy was merely on the St. Louis roster "between trains."

Why should the Cardinals want Vance? He had been a great star, a high-salaried prima donna, the idol of Flatbush. He wouldn't be satisfied in St. Louis. Vance was a big, tough brutish sort of a person. He pitched when he pleased and when he didn't please no pitching was done.

Street Didn't Want Him.

Street didn't want Vance and didn't expect to have him. It was no secret through the spring that the Cardinals had taken Vance as they would have taken a desirable bond, if any. Vance seemed to have a market value and it was understood that he was to be passed on to another club for a bundle of cash. But the other club had a managerial change of heart and so the Cardinals found themselves with Vance on their hands.

You'd enjoy knowing this Vance person. Maybe he has been transformed or more probably the Cardinals just never knew what sort of a dude he was. At any rate, Vance has won a place in the hearts of Gabby Street's warriors and when he goes to the hill this afternoon, they will be pulling for him, just as they would be hoping for a victory if Jess Haines, their beloved "Pop," were out there on the firing line.

Vance, in enemy regalia, throwing fire balls at batters, is a vicious foe, a sour-face, a scowling, sullen, cruel giant. But you don't know Vance if you see him only on the hill. You should know him in the dugout, as the Cardinals know him.

"There ain't a man on the club with a better spirit," is the compliment Gabby Street pays him. "When we got him I figured he'd be a terrible load on my team and I was eager for a trade that would get him off my squad. But I was dead wrong. He's worked as hard as any man on the roster. He's done everything he's been asked to do and a lot more. Hard work has put him in fine condition and I'm going to be sorely disappointed if Dazzy doesn't win 12 or 15 games for me."

Wise-Cracker.

Vance, to the rank and file of the Cardinals, is baseball's greatest wise-cracker. Half a dozen players will be sitting in a hotel lobby or on the bench. Vance or "King Kong" as he has been nicknamed, saunters in, and the faces light up. Vance says a few words and the boys are all laughing.

"It ain't what he says," Jimmy Collins explained, "it's the way he says it or maybe just because he does say it. But I start laughing as soon as he starts to talk. In the club house after we lost that game in Chicago he pops off. 'Well, I sent everybody home happy,' he says. 'The game was gettin' kind of dull in the late innings, so I went out to the bull pen and threw some real fast ones. Everybody sat up in their seats with renewed interest as those terrific strikes hit Mike Ryba's mitt with resounding smacks and we ought to have a bigger crowd tomorrow.'"

Vance is happy to be with the Cardinals. At Bradenton he heard that the Cincinnati club was trying to obtain him in a trade. Sidney Weil and Donie Bush had made a trip to the Redbird camp to talk swap.

"I fixed that all up," Dazzy told the boys the next night. "When I got through working out I went over to Tampa. Weil and Bush were sitting on the bench at their ball park and I sauntered out with my coat open and walked back and forth in front of their dugout, so they could see my embonpoint, which is an expensive word for an athlete being in terrible physical condition. There'll be no trade with Cincinnati for the Dazzler."

Started in 1912.

Vance started his professional baseball career with Red Cloud in the Nebraska State League in 1912, when he was 19 years old. The Pirates owned him in 1914 but didn't use him, and his next big league opportunity was in 1915 when the Yankees had him.

"I had a sore arm and no control that year," Dazzy explained yesterday. "I didn't know where I was going to throw the ball and never threw it the same way twice, trying to find a way that wouldn't hurt."

Dazzy lost three games for the Yanks that year, without a victory and New York, recalling him in 1916, sent him immediately to Columbus. He drifted in the minors until the Brooklyn Dodgers bought him from New Orleans in 1921, after he had won 21 games for the Pelicans.

Vance pitched against the Browns in Mobile in the spring of 1922 and the writer was in the Mobile press box, a few yards behind the catcher. Vance showed the press box something new in curves that day. He was at the peak of his form then, and he threw curves that actually broke first one way and then the other.

Likes His Fast One.

"I remember that game well," Vance reminisced on the Cardinal bench. "That was the day the Brooklyn club decided to keep me. I'd been up so many times and hadn't shown control that it looked like another trip to the minors, probably to stay. But I threw a lot of pretzels at the Browns and Uncle Robbie (Wilbert Robinson) decided I might help him. Sure the ball broke two ways that day. But that ain't nothin'. When I'm good I sometimes put as many as seven different curves on the same pitch. But curves ain't what Rachmaninoff would call my pianoforte. So often when I start to throw a curve, the ball will whisper in my ear, 'Don't throw me, I'm a fence ball.' But when I grab the leather for a fast ball I can hear the ball saying 'That's the stuff. Nobody can hit this one.' And that's why I like my old fast ball."

Vance was the National League's most valuable player in 1924 and in 1925 he pitched the only no-hit game of the National League season. During his 11 years in the major leagues he has pitched in 358 games, winning 187 and losing 129. In the 2707 innings he has struck out 1893 batters.

And if you visualize Vance as a big, tough, brutish sort of a person, you've got him all wrong. He's mild mannered and soft-spoken, a wisecracker with a keen sense of humor, and to know him is to like him. And if Dazzy doesn't win today, it will be more than just a defeat to the Redbirds. They want their Dazzler to win.

ORANGE TEAM KEEPS Y.M.C.A. SWIM TITLE

ORANGE, N. J., April 22. — Orange's brilliant galaxy of swimming stars captured five of the nine events in the international Y. M. C. A. swimming championships tonight, piled up a total of 37 points and retained the team title it won last year at Toronto, Ont.

Orange's 200-yard relay quartet of Leonard Spence, Gordon Chalmers, Walter Ashley and Walter Spence won the first final, breaking the record of 1 minute 39 seconds it set last night in the qualifying heats by one-fifth second. Chicago, Lawson Branch, was second, Boston third and Toronto fourth.

Leonard Spence, winner last month of the National A. A. U. indoor breast stroke championship, came back a moment later to give Orange the defending team titleist, a commanding lead in points. Spence's time was 2 minutes 24 2-5 seconds.

Bob Pirie, 15-year-old Toronto schoolboy, created the meet's sensation when he put on a thrilling finish to beat Wallace Spence of Orange, by a stroke in the 440-yard free-style race. The third of the swimming Spence trio took an early lead and staged a last-length sprint, but young Pirie's dash was better. The Canadian's time was 5 minutes 12 2-5 seconds.

Dan Zehr, National A. A. U. backstroke champion from Fort Wayne, Ind., and Gordon Chalmers, the national collegiate titleist who wears the Orange colors, provided a spectacular duel in the 100-yard backstroke event, but Zehr maintained his record of never having been beaten by Chalmers.

The 100-yard free-style record also was smashed for the second time in two days by Walter Spence, National A. A. U. indoor and intercollegiate title holder in the event He ploughed through the water in 53 seconds flat tonight to win the title and thereby clipped four-fifths of a second off his mark of last night and two full seconds under the previous listed Y. Charles C. Peterson, internationally known billiardist of St. Louis, departs today for Chicago, where he will referee the world's championship match at cushion carom billiards between Jake Schaefer, Jr., and Willie Hoppe, which opens at the Morrison Hotel tomorrow night.

Peterson is a recognized authority on all styles of billiards and because of the intricate knowledge of the game required to referee such a match it was necessary to select someone versed in the three styles of billiard play who would be mutually agreeable as the third party in the ring.

NAVY CREWS DEFEAT M. I. T. IN FOUR RACES

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Ind., April 22.—The Naval Academy made a clean sweep of the four-crew races with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology over the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths on the Severn today.

Rowing with a confident air, the Midshipment varsity climaxed the blanket triumph with a victory of more than six lengths over the visitors. The winning time was 6 minutes 44½ seconds, 12 seconds better than the losers'.

The M. I. T. oarsmen, with a quick stroke, was off to a short lead as in two previous races, but the Middies, pulling a deep oar at the beat of 24 strokes a minute, overtook the Techmen a short distance from the start.

For nearly a mile the Middies maintained a half-length lead and then increased the count to 37, while M. I. T. was racing raggedly at 39, one more than its starting speed. Navy's smooth rowing increased the varsity lead nearly six lengths.

The junior varsity and freshmen races were won by Navy. The M. I. T. led at the start, but gave up the advantage within the first quarter of a mile. The Tar Jayvees won in 6 minutes 49 seconds by more than five lengths, while the Plebes went the distance in 7 minutes 10½ seconds, winning by three and a half lengths.

The 150-pound race was the closest. Navy led at the start, while the visitors challenged twice, once within a quarter of a mile of the finish, but the Middies' 150-pounders pulled out to win by nearly two lengths. Their time was 7 minutes 10 seconds.

ERRORS MARK BEARS' DEFEAT BY CONCORDIA

Five runs scored in the tenth inning gave Concordia Seminary's baseball team its second victory of the season over the Washington University nine, 14 to 9, yesterday afternoon at Liggett Field.

The Bears booted the game away in early inning, their batting punch being about as good as the Preachers. One of the costliest errors of the game was by Dave Blumberg in the third frame when he missed a triple play opportunity by dropping a liner and kicking the ball out of everyone's reach. Concordia then went on to score five runs in the inning.

Again in the fifth Washington made four more errors, and Concordia added the same number of runs with two singles by Koenig and Steinbeck. The following inning Coach Don White removed the harassed Machens from the hill and put in Graber, Bear ace, who kept the Preachers hitless and scoreless until the tenth when they won the game with some tricky bunts and a couple of good hits.

Arnie Levenhagen and Lou Hauck, Concordia pitchers, kept the Bears' hits pretty well scattered. Levenhagen's thumb was hurt by Mareschal's sharp hit in the first frame, and at the end of the third he was relieved by Hauck. He came back in the tenth, however, when three Bears went down in order.

MISSOURI VARSITY BEATS ALUMNI, 20-12, IN FOOTBALL GAME

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 22. — Spring football practice ended at the University of Missouri today with an exhibition game between candidates for the 1933 varsity and an Alumni eleven. The varsity candidates won, 20 to 12.

The varsity team took the lead in the first period when Jay Faurot, halfback, ran 59 yards for a touchdown. Sid Johnson kicked the goal. George Stuber, playing at halfback, scored in the second quarter on a 7-yard plunge over the line for a touchdown and made the extra point from placement.

Max Collings ran the opening kickoff in the second half back 65 yards, paving the way for the first Alumni score which came on Carl Johanningmeier's 35-yard pass to Collings. A 10-yard pass, Stuber to Lavert, Lawhon, quarterback, gave the varsity its final counter. The Alumni scored their final touchdown in the closing minutes on a 40-yard pass, Johanningmeier to John Van Dyne.

ROOSEVELT WINS OVER BEAUMONT AND CENTRAL DEFEATS SOLDAN

By Harold Tuthill.

Roosevelt moved back into a tie with McKinley for the lead in the City High School League baseball race, as the Rough Riders walloped Beaumont, 16 to 2, in the second game of the doubleheader at the Public Schools Stadium, yesterday afternoon. Central had to go an extra inning to nose out Soldan, 4 to 3, in the first contest.

The Rough Riders took the field against Beaumont determined to atone for their 5 to 3 loss to Soldan earlier in the week. Coach Lee R. Carlson revamped his line-up and had Al Kleier, for instance, the regular second baseman playing left field. But there was a reason for that as well as the other changes. The slugging Kleier twisted his right ankle two weeks ago and Carlson felt that Kleier could be used most advantageously, without hurting his ankle, in the outfield.

tion as the "greatest player of all time," the others being Lajoie, Cobb and Ruth.

Did Everything Better.

A MIGHTY swatter, he led the league in hitting for seven of his 21 major league years of service. He hit .380 in a day when baseballs had no rabbit in them and only one or two were required for an entire game. He led all the shortstops, for several seasons, and in four campaigns he led the league in stolen bases.

When he played first base, as he did occasionally, he led the first basemen. When he played the outfield, he made them all look up. He could play any place on the field, except pitch; and in a pinch he might have done that.

Never Asked a "Raise."

THAT'S a pretty good catalogue of virtues. But it isn't by any means all. Picture a baseball player who could go through 21 years of baseball without lifting his voice, questioning a decision violently or getting himself put out of the game.

Picture a man with whose praises the whole world was ringing so self-effacing that he never demanded a salary increase, never kicked on the pay given him and who only signed a contract because the league demanded it.

It is told of him that when he first came up from the Paterson club to join the Louisville team—then a member of the 12-club National League—he balked at being paid more than $90 a month, because he thought the pay too big for the work done.

And modest! The Pittsburgh baseball writers had a gold mine to exploit in Wagner, only he absolutely declined to help them. He would not talk himself into publicity and he shied at anything he thought might seem to exalt him above his teammates.

In short, they built this player in a mold supreme, and then broke it.

Back to His First Love.

NOW Hans is bending 60. Time has treated him well physically. Financially, not so well. He tried running a sporting goods store. For a time he thought of being Sheriff and he made a good race, but was beaten. Then he landed at Harrisburg, Pa., as assistant sergeant-at-arms for the Pennsylvania House.

Now, he is back probably where he prefers to be — coaching the club with which his big league career began and finished.

He has this satisfaction that although he may have laid up little of the world's goods, he will be talked about when most of the present day ball players have been forgotten.

So This Is Wrestling!

THE up-to-date wrestling show is a strange thing. The rules prohibit kicking; but the wrestlers kick. Butting is prohibited, but they charge head-on into an opponent's stomach. Striking an opponent is "verboten"; yet reports of bouts frequently contain references to "slugging." It is against the rules to throw an opponent out of the ring intentionally, but it is done.

But the strange part of it all is that in spite of the kicking, the kicks seldom damage. The wrestlers slug and the foe staggers across the ring perhaps, but is one ever knocked out? They butt, but no conk are cracked. And when thrown out of the ring, and carried to the dressing room, it has happened that the victim wrestled the next night in a city 300 miles away.

Wrestling rules originally were designed to safeguard a contest in which HOLDS—meaning grips of the hands or legs whereby leverage may be obtained—decide the issue. Yet we see many matches in which violence, or seeming violence, forms the basic appeal.

If wrestlers of today really desired to appeal to rough-house and foul tactics to determine the issue of their contest, and kicked, hit, gouged, slugged and butted in deadly earnest, in our opinion there wouldn't be enough uninjured wrestlers remaining in the country, at the end of a year, to put on a complete card of five events.

Let George Tell 'Em.

OCCASIONALLY a promoter has been quoted as saying: "What if they do put it on a little bit; the crowd likes it and the best man always wins."

To which we ask, in all earnestness, if pretense exists, where does it begin and end; and who, in the name of time, knows which is the "best man" or even one of the first 10 best men, with certainty?

WARREN JR. DEFEATS BOILERMAKER AND BROKERS TIP

BRADLEY ENTRY DISAPPOINTS IN DERBY TRIAL AT LEXINGTON

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 22.—Col. E. R. Bradley's chances of winning his fourth Kentucky Derby were given a decided setback here today when the hitherto lightly regarded Warren Jr., from the Calumet Farm Stable of Warren Wright Jr., led home Boilermaker and Brokers Tip, in the Prospect Purse, a Derby trial which served as secondary feature of the closing day card.

Boilermaker and Brokers Tip had been selected from Col. Bradley's five Derby nominees to carry his colors in the Churchill Downs classic but neither was able to match the fine speed of Warren Jr. Jockey M. Lewis filed a claim of foul after the finish, charging that he was interfered with by the winner, but it was quickly disallowed.

Boilermaker Weakens.

Boilermaker, one of the early winter book favorites for the Derby, started off as if to make a runaway of the mile and a sixteenth test. At the half he was three-lengths in the lead, with Warren Jr. running second and Dixiana Stud's Pre War, also a Derby candidate, third.

At the far turn Boilermaker was still in the van, but his stride was shortening. Pre War was through and gave way to Brokers Tip Seventy yards out Warren Jr. caught the tiring leader and under Jockey C. McCrossen's vigorous riding stalled off the challenge of Brokers Tip to win by a half length. Boilermaker easily held Pre War and Axtel, the only other starters, safe.

The Bradley entry was odds-on choice and Warren Jr. rewarded his followers with $9.08 for each $2 investment.

Mr. James Wins Again.

C. C. Van Meter's Mr. James, a son of St. James and Wonderful, proved himself the best two-year-old development of the meeting when he accounted for the nineteenth running of the Idle Hour Stakes, headline attraction, in handy fashion. Mrs. W. Crump's Rego cut out the early pace, but was no match for the Van Meter colt when Jockey W. Garner set him down in the stretch run. Prince Drake, favorite closed determinedly to get the show. Mr. James paid $9.60 in the mutuels.

UNIVERSITY CITY HIGH WINS IN TRACK CARNIVAL

University City yesterday afternoon continued its uninterrupted reign of three years in triangular and dual competition in track by overwhelming McBride and Christian Brothers' High Schools in a triangular meet on its track by a score of 176 1-3 points for University City to 37 2-3 for McBride and 29 for Christian Brothers.

The Indians made a clean sweep of first places in the junior division, but Genova of McBride won the shotput in the senior division to keep the Indians from making a clean sweep in both divisions.

Joe Ryan of University City made excellent time in the mile, 4 minutes 58.5 seconds, and that without being greatly pressed. His teammate, Zimmerman, was second.

Dick Leyhe turned in the best race of the day, running the 440-yard dash in the junior division in 54.2 seconds, faster than the senior quarter-milers could run it. Leyhe may break the junior record next week in this event when the county meet is held.

Robert Stamm of University City was the senior point leader, winning the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and running on the winning relay team. Joe Ryan and Knight of University City won two events, Ryan winning the 880-yard and mile runs and Knight winning both hurdle races.

MISS EVELYN S. GUY of St. Louis spent yesterday in Paris at the Hotel Continental, leaving early today for the south. She crossed from London, where she has been for a month, following her return from Lousanne, Switzerland, where she went to attend the wedding of Miss Virginia Gordon, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Gordon of St. Louis, to Georges Narbel of Lausanne.

The Marchese and Marchesa di Mattei (the former Miss Georgette Madill of St. Louis) arrived in Paris last Saturday, crossing from London, where they have been passing the winter. They will spend three weeks at their Plaza Athenee apartment and then will leave to open their home in Malta for the spring. The Marchesa is the daughter of Mrs. Edward Robert of St. Louis and Clarksville.

They arrived here with the Marchesa's sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles A. Madill, and the latter's daughter, Miss Delphine Madill, who spent the winter with them in England. Mrs. Madill and her daughter will remain in town indefinitely.

Mrs. Nelson Dean Jay, who spent the week at Fontainebleau, just outside of Paris, will return to her residence in the Avenue d'Iena tomorrow.

Mrs. Nathaniel W. Ewing, who, with her brother, Paul Fisher, has been touring in Egypt and French North Africa, have just returned to Paris. Mrs. Ewing gave up her apartment at the Hotel du Rhin before her departure several weeks ago and is now at 83 Quai d'Orsay, where she will remain until fall.

Committees Selected For Spring Horse Show

ABOUT 200 St. Louisans interested in horseback riding have been selected to serve on the various committees whose chairmen and members will be in charge of the annual St. Louis Spring Horse Show, to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon, May 18, 19, 20 and 21, at the Missouri Stables Arena, 5200 Berthold avenue.

The chairmen and their respective committees are as follows: R. W. Brown, entry and prize list; Kurt A. Schrader, stakes; James W. Wellman, ring; G. B. Laufer, program; Harry J. Burkart, tickets; William N. Sitton, finance; R. G. McGrath, publicity; Mat S. Cohen and Mr. Brown, stalls; Herman J. Sternberg, trophies; Dan C. Kerckhoff, entertainment; Dr. G. B. Winter, advisory, and Ray Bartholomew, Fred W. Holecamp and Mr. Burkart, horse show. The chairmen of the committees with Arthur Van Ronzelen form the board of directors for the show. The chairmen of the 12 committees, the board of directors and other horse show officers will organize the committees at a meeting this week.

Five hundred prize lists to prospective exhibitors in the show, which will be an open equestrian event, have been sent out. May 6 has been chosen as the final date to file entries.

Seventy-five classes and stakes comprise the program for the four-day exhibition. The stakes—three-gaited, five-gaited, junior five-gaited and hunter—feature the annual event. The many classes include events for three and five-gaited horses, driving horses, hunters, jumpers and polo ponies.

In the harness classes, exhibitors will be given a chance to drive horses in fine harness, junior fine harness and the three heavy harness classes: single, pair and tandem.

The horse show officers have taken special interest in the classes for children. There will be jumping, three-gaited pair and parent-and-child classes, in addition to eight other classes which are for riders of various ages up to 16 years. These novice classes include events for three and five-gaited mounts.

Fraternity Merger At Washington U.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY Chapter of Alpha Tau Omega, national social fraternity, will initiate all members of Chi Delta Phi, local fraternity, next Saturday. Chi Delta Phi, founded in 1923, has 50 alumni and 15 active members, all of whom will be taken in. The ceremony will be held at the Coronado Hotel, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

Arrangements for the merger have been under way for several months. Alumni of both chapters have co-operated with the active members on the project, which was finally approved last week by the High Council of Alpha Tau Omega after an investigation of the local situation by national officers. The merger also has the approval of Prof. Charles McKenzie, until recently faculty adviser of the Men's Pan-Hellenic Association; Dean George W. Stephens, and Dean Frederick W. Shipley, chairman of the faculty committee on fraternities.

Until a few weeks ago both fraternities had houses off the campus. Chi Delta Phi has given up its lease and most of the active members will move into the Alpha Tau Omega House at 7020 Forsythe boulevard.

The Alpha Tau Omega Chapter, Delta Zeta of Missouri, was installed at Washington University in 1918 with the initiation of members of a local group which had been in existence since 1903. The present officers are Charles Schumacher, a senior in the School of Business and Public Administration, president; Daniel Corcoran, a student in the School of Law, vice president; and George Brightman, a sophomore in the College of Liberal Arts, secretary.

ENGAGEMENTS and WEDDINGS

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the engagement of Miss Marre Ballban, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Ballman, 7408 Byron place, and Joshua D. Eckerle, son of Mrs. Mary Eckerle, 3508 Hartford street. The news was told informally last Sunday.

Miss Ballman attended Hosmer Hall, and has traveled abroad. She is now studying voice with Mrs. Alice Widney Conant.

The wedding date has not been announced.

The marriage of Miss Marie Heintze, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Heintze, 4115 Shenandoah avenue, and Dr. Stanley Herdlein, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Herdlein, 2127 Alfred avenue, was solemnized Thursday evening at the Oak Hill Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Malcom Matheson officiating. The ceremony took place by candlelight against a background of greenery. Following the wedding there was a reception for members of the families at the bride's home.

The wedding party consisted of Mrs. Wallace Herdlein, as matron of honor; Miss Victorie Heintze, sister of the bride, bridesmaid; Wallace Herdlein, brother of the bridegroom, best man; Oscar Heintze Jr., brother of the bride, and John Herdelin Jr., brother of the bridegroom, as ushers.

The bride was gowned in a Vionnet model of white triple sheer crepe, which swept into a train from a deep yoke of Alencon lace, and her tulle veil fell from a cap of Alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white sweet peas.

The matron of honor wore a gown of pink organdy with close fitting lines and godets in the shirt. A hyacinth blue boa fastened in the front by velvet ribbons of the same color, crossed to meet in the back and fell to the hem of the skirt. She carried a nosegay of blue lace flowers.

The wedding of Miss Stella Diamant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Diamant, 6603 Pershing avenue, and Marc L. Perles, son of E. M. Perles, 4440 Lindell boulevard, took place at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Italian room of the Chase Hotel, Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Perles will live at 4440 Lindell boulevard after May 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Mayer, 5780 Westminster place, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ethel Mayer, to Roscoe E. Zemelman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Zemelman, 7005 Amherst place, Saturday afternoon at the home of Rabbi Julian Miller.

Many Priced Below Wholesale Cost!

Just lately our rug buyer was in New York and purchased 183 large-size fine Oriental Rugs at unusually low prices, from a foremost importer who is discontinuing business. Every Rug has been woven by hand. Some are antiques—some semi-antiques and many new wash types. They are marvelous examples of fine Rug weaving. Rich in colors, intricate in designs and of a soft, lustrous thickness.

It is really a shame that handmade Rugs like these should sell for so little as we have them priced, but that is today's condition.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 22.—A new trial was granted today by the Illinois Supreme Court to Charles L. Winchester, St. Louis paroled convict, who received a death sentence in the Circuit Court at Belleville for the murder of Emil Kirsch, East St. Louis barber, in a holdup last June 6. The Supreme Court, in its opinion, reversed and remanded Winchester's conviction.

Kirsch, a customer in a drug store at 1435 East Broadway, East St. Louis, was fatally shot while standing at a soda fountain in the store. Winchester was found guilty last Sept. 28 and was sentenced to be executed last Dec. 16. The Supreme Court stayed the sentence in granting a writ of supersedeas to review the case.

WIFE DROPS ALIENATION SUIT AGAINST HUSBAND'S PARENTS

Mrs. Solomon Wise, 18, Reconciled With 23-Year-Old Mate, Lawyers Say.

An alienation of affections suit, in which Mrs. Mildred Wise sought $25,000 damages from her husband's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Goldberg, was dismissed yesterday at the request of her attorneys.

Her suit for separate maintenance was dismissed several weeks ago. Both actions were filed at Clayton. Mrs. Wise, 18 years old, and her husband, Solomon Wise, 23 years old, have become reconciled, attorneys said.

In her suit against the Goldbergs, who live at 754 Leland avenue, University City, Mrs. Wise alleged they influenced her husband against her because she was not of their faith, although she had observed all the necessary Jewish customs and rituals.

SCIENCE STARTS a WAR on the SCHOOL CHILD'S SUPERSTITIONS

Dr. Otis W. Caldwell.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CAN a child be changed by what his mother does or sees or thinks before the birth of the infant?

Will the mother who studies fine paintings give birth to a child with artistic talent? Will the mother who meditates diligently on religious matters be blessed with pious offspring?

On the other hand, will the mother who is involved in an automobile wreck "mark" her child with the fear of traffic or with significant markings on his skin?

You have probably heard of such claims since your childhood. Scientists know that the unborn infant is carefully protected by nature from harm due to mental or even most physical experiences of the mother.

Yet people go right on holding to this baseless fear. They go right on attributing a child's talents or shortcomings to this "prenatal influence" or "maternal marking" instead of to heredity or to training after birth.

And people go right on believing that fat people are always good-natured. That mental disorders are caused by over-study. That children of first cousins, although of healthy parents, are likely to be feeble-minded. That any disease can be produced by thinking too much about it. And that the eating of fish will produce unusual brain development.

So psychologists and educators have turned their attention to devising means of eradicating such false ideas, misconceptions on scientific matters, and common but baseless superstitions.

Do the courses in general science as given in the public high schools tend to overcome such unfounded beliefs? This question has been raised by Dr. Otis W. Caldwell and Gerhard E. Lundeen of Teachers College, Columbia University.

To a certain extent they do, these investigators found. They gave high school students a test containing, among ordinary science questions, a series of questions on current misbeliefs and superstitions. The answers showed that seniors held fewer such unfounded notions than did the sophomores.

But if these general courses in science make some impression in weeding out the misbeliefs, would a course specially designed to cover these points be more effective?

DR. CALDWELL and Mr. Lundeen decided that it would. They have experimented in giving special instruction against superstition and found that they were entirely justified in their hopes. But the story of this experiment is a long one and a very interesting one.

First, it was necessary to find out just what were the common superstitions and misconceptions held by high school students.

There are some old superstitions that very few people are bothered with today. People don't burn witches now People are probably not so much worried about black cats and salt-spilling as they used to be, though some still act as if they feared these "jinxes."

But many other equally baseless beliefs are current in these days and may lead to trouble in practical life.

The man who believes that all brunettes are trustworthy and that blondes are not may find himself "gyped" some day by a dark-eyed beauty. If he trusts the judgment of a business associate merely because a high forehead is the sign of great intelligence, this credulity may lead him to employ a high-domed dub.

As a first step, the investigators compiled a list of 200 commonly held unfounded beliefs or superstitions. These were culled from books and scientific articles on superstitions and folk lore.

When the list of 200 was complete, it was given to the students of high schools in rural towns having populations ranging from several hundred to 10,000 inhabitants. The students were requested to indicate, first, whether they had ever heard of the saying; second, whether they believed it, and, third, whether they were ever influenced in their behavior by it.

As an example of being influenced, the case was cited of a boy who had the choice of locker number 12 and locker number 13. He preferred the location of 13, but selected 12 rather than have anything to do with the number 13.

The returns from this inquiry showed that high school seniors on the average had heard of about half the 200 unfounded beliefs, and they believe in and are influenced by about one-fifth of the ideas they have heard.

Girls are more superstitious than boys. And the high school seniors of the smaller communities have heard, believe in and are influenced by a greater number of the unfounded beliefs than are the high school seniors in the larger towns or cities.

Weather proverbs, misconceptions about natural phenomena and those derived from pseudo sciences such as astrology, phrenology, and so on, are more commonly believed in by high school seniors than are signs of luck, visitors, and such, or witchcraft, "spirits" or the listed misconceptions about health.

Next the investigators prepared actual instructional material dealing with these unfounded beliefs and with related facts, and giving the truth of the matter, together with whatever basis there may be for the superstition.

This material was not intended for teaching as a separate course on "superstition." So do not look for this subject to appear on the curriculum of your local high school.

Dr. Caldwell's idea was to incorporate this material into the regular high school course in general science or in the special sciences.

As the ordinary textbook on biology is written, to take one subject for example, no direct reference is made to the subject of maternal "marking" of unborn infants. The boy or girl who hears of this belief may search the school book in vain for any facts about the belief.

This is too bad, Dr. Caldwell feels. So, in a biology textbook, he would include the following:

"Will a child be influenced by what the mother sees or thinks before the child is born? There is a common idea that a mother can influence her unborn child by what she sees or thinks.

"According to this belief, the child may become talented and may develop interests and abilities according to the mother's habits and practices. Physical appearance and physical deformities that the child may have are often thought to have been caused by what the mother saw previous to the birth of the child. These ideas have no evidence to support them.

"There are no nerve connections between the mother and the embryo. The vital connection between the mother and her unborn child is through the blood stream. It is therefore impossible for the mother to affect the child by what passes through her mind except in so far as it may affect the composition of the blood.

"If certain poisons or toxic substances are present in the mother's blood, they may pass to the unborn child. It is also true that if the mother is under-nourished the health of the child and its development would be affected.

"The effect that the mother may have upon the development of her child is entirely of a nutritive nature and would not produce changes in the child's mental or artistic inheritance.

"If a mother spends a great deal of time looking at paintings or other works of art, she may be happier and more pleasantly occupied than she might otherwise be. This might be good for her health and thus be good for the nutrition and development of her child, but her child will not as a result be endowed with an increased artistic ability because of the mother's actions.

"If she cultivates her musical ability by playing musical instruments, or by listening to beautiful and inspiring music, her child will not have greater musical ability because of this."

DR. CALDWELL and his assistant have prepared several units of teaching material aimed at different types of misconceptions. Some of the questions which these units answer scientifically include:

Is disease a direct punishment because of some particular wrongdoing by the person who has the disease?

Should patent medicines be used?

Is it possible for individuals to communicate with each other by telepathy, that is, without the use of sounds or signs of any kind?

Is it true that "brains and beauty rarely go together"?

Is a square jaw a sign of strong will-power?

When boasting or bragging of your good luck, should you knock on wood to keep your luck from changing?

Can astrologers read a person's character and future in the stars?

Does lightning never strike twice in the same place?

Does the groundhog foretell the weather?

The answer is "no" in all cases, though qualified in one or two.

You are probably wondering what the effect of even such a course, aimed directly at overcoming false ideas, will be. Will the high school students who complete these units be convinced? And will they adopt a more scientific attitude toward the folk-lore and the old wives' tales circulating in their communities?

Dr. Caldwell and Mr. Lundeen have some very encouraging results to report concerning the effect of this direct teaching where it has been tried experimentally.

By JAMES STEVENS

"You poor darling," said a sweet voice.

CURT STATLER was the youngest and toughest camp boss on the Evans line of logging camps. When Alice Evans, visiting her father's logging operations for the first time since she was a child, saw Curt whip five Swedes single-handed, she fell in love with him. A week later Alice eloped with Curt.

The young couple had their honeymoon in the Canadian Rockies. Because of his knowledge of wild life Curt showed to good advantage there, and Alice was so infatuated with him that she would not allow herself to notice his table and other manners.

She and Curt made beautiful plans for their future. When the honeymoon was over Curt would find another logging camp to boss and they would settle down for a happy life in the tall timber. They were both so deep in the enchantment of their romance that they had never a doubt about Garrett Evans disowning them.

But when the happy pair returned to Seattle Mr. Evans received them with open arms, and he wrecked their romantic plan.

"Curt," he said, in a private talk with his husky son-in-law, "Curt, I aim to treat you right. It is my wish that you be worthy of your position in Seattle society.

"I've bought you and Alice a home on Killane Island. This afternoon I'll take you around and buy you the society clothes you need. Tonight you'll attend your first formal function. There'll be lots of fine times ahead.

"You'll learn golf, bridge, tennis, hunting, and the like of that. You'll become an expert at the rite of afternoon tea, and so forth. That's what you want, I hope?"

What Curt really wanted was to get back to the logging camp. But he also wanted to be worthy of Alice. He said as much to Mr. Evans, and later repeated his wish to his bride.

"Oh," said Alice. For an instant her blue eyes were dim with disappointment.

Not that she herself wanted to live in the woods. It was just that a logging camp seemed to be the only place for Curt. But he seemed intensely sincere, so her disappointment soon turned to gladness. Society life was natural to her.

That night he attended his first formal function with Alice. When it was over he went to Mr. Evans to report.

"Talk about a strain!" said Curt wearily. "And I bet I done a dozen things wrong."

"Surely not a dozen," said Mr. Evans encouragingly.

"Just about, I bet." Curt's tone was despondent. "You take, now, at the dinner, when the flunky brung around a plate of biscuits. About the size of walnuts, they was.

"I figgered I hadn't ought to cause the flunky too many trips, so I raked off a whole handful. Ever'body looked kinder funny."

"Well, that was wrong," admitted Mr. Evans. "You shouldn't have raked off a handful. You know, Curtis, you have somewhat of a hand. There is no sense in thinking you did wrong, but people will think so. Custom, my boy."

"And when I et my olives with a spoon," said Curt mournfully, "they looked funny at that, too."

"Anyway, you never drank from your fingerbowl," said Mr. Evans. "I'm sure you remembered my warning about that."

"No." Curt brightened up. "I remembered and sipped that there lemon water with my spoon."

"You enjoyed the play, I hope," said Mr. Evans hurriedly. "Surely, you were charmed with the Little Art Theater folk."

"I wish to hell I could say I did," replied Curt, despondent again. "But the room and the stage was so dark you couldn't see an infernal thing that was going on. All you could hear was a flock of people somewheres, arguin' whether to drink up another gallon of hooch or go out and strangle somebody's baby.

"And callin' each other names like Whooshka and Bushka. Roosians, Alice said they was. Well, that set me agin the play. Roosians are the rottenest loggers they are; a man'll wear out four ax handles a day on 'em, and then they won't swamp."

"Yes," said Mr. Evans sympathetically, "I know Russian loggers. But that has nothing to do with art. Alice and her friends adore Russian art. I wouldn't argue it with her, if I were you."

Curt brightened again.

"I'LL learn culcher and all them things if they kill me. Don't worry, Mr. Evans, I'll make it in society or bust the seams of my tuxeder tryin'! Yes, sir!"

Life on the island did drift along pleasantly for a week, while the young people were getting settled in their new home. Then they had an evening with nothing to do.

For a while after dinner Curt was quite comfortable with his cigar. He was feeling pleased with himself. Alice had complimented him on the ease and grace with which he had handled his oyster fork. But that compliment was only to soften the blow to fall.

"Curtis, dear," she said gently, after a moment of silence, "I saw you talking to the Swede farmers this afternoon."

"Oh," said Curt, his heart sinking.

"Curtis, darling," said Alice. "I heard you talking to them."

Curt turned red as a beet. He had talked to the Swede farmers just as he had talked to Swede loggers when he was a woods boss. All of his culture, refinement and polish had been thrown off like a new shoe that pinches.

"Yes, dearest," she said, "I was out by the windmill, looking at the honeysuckle vines. I was gazing dreamily at the blossoms, Curtis, thinking the most romantic thoughts about us, and then I was startled by the most horrid words! Oh, Curtis!" Alice's voice trembled. "How could you? How could you use such language?"

"I got lonesome," said Curt gloomily. "They was nobody else to talk to."

"But surely there were men at the country club."

"I've tried and tried my blamedest to talk to 'em," Curt said, a stubborn expression disturbing to Alice slowly creeping over his face.

"They don't know nothin'. One of 'em has a story about how he was travelin' in Italy one time. He tells it ever' time you look crossways at him, and it wasn't much of a story to start with. Runs on and on like this here:

" 'Val,' the Duke said to me.

" 'And I said to the Duke, 'What?'

" 'Got a match, Val?'

" 'I told the Duke, "Sure I got a match."

"It's only what you want, Curtis, that I'm considering," said Alice gently. "If you find that you'd rather be a woods foreman"——

Curt didn't hesitate an instant. He was determined not to give an inch on this society stuff. He was bound to fight it out.

"I'll go get a Roosian book this minute," he said grimly.

The next afternoon Curt felt more cheerful and brave. He was going out for tennis. The art side of society life left him groggy, he admitted, but he was certain that he would relish outdoor sports.

The start was inspiring. Alice told him that he looked like a Greek god when he dressed for his first try at tennis. His powerful neck and rosy complexion and mop of blond hair looked superb above the silk tennis shirt. And the white flannel pants draped handsomely about his sturdy logger's legs.

On the courts the man who had been to Italy made a monkey out of him. Curt lunged and swatted at the little white ball as though he were fighting a grizzly, but all the good it did him was to strain his back. The ball always dodged.

That night he felt worse than ever, so Alice took him to a musicale. Luckily, Mr. Evans was also there, and after a long look at Curt he called him outside.

He gave Curt a pint of Scotch, and then the harp playing didn't jar on his nerves so much. In fact, Curt was feeling exuberant when he and Alice started home, and he sang "The Jam on Gerry's Rock" all the way to the island.

CURT'S voice broke when he finished the song. Then he was silent. Alice also said nothing. But she was thinking. She was certain now that her husband was a liar: in his heart he didn't want to be a society man at all.

After Curt had hobbled heavily and wearily up to bed Alice called her father over the telephone. At the end of their long conversation her eyes shone with triumph. She went upstairs with a dancing step.

Curt's jagged nerves roused him early in the morning. He got up quietly, so as to leave Alice undisturbed, and tip-toed down to the kitchen to make some morning coffee. He was standing on the kitchen porch, idly stirring his first cupful, when a boy rode up on a sweating Shetland pony.

"Island's afire!" yelled the juvenile Paul Revere. "Come and help put out the fire!"

Fire! At the word all of Curt's painfully acquired culture and refinement were lost and forgotten. The word brought up vivid memories of fire-fighting in the tall timber . . . himself leading a band of bullies into the smoke and flames . . . the old life!

A west wind was beating it up from the beach, through the dry brush and grass of the late summer. In its path was the wooded park and the country club, the Swedes' farms and the hillside homes of the society folk.

"She ban goin' be big fire. Jah, she ban"——

"Get th' hell after some sacks and shovels, damn your eyes!" roared Curt. "You, Ole, go for some buckets! Lars, you roust out this country club outfit! Sven, telephone somebody with a portable pump! Pete, you go after the rest of the Swedes!

"All of you dig up all the sacks and shovels you can find! Hustle now, or I'll give you all the ax-handle! On your way, bullies!"

The Swedes moved. They scattered, to carry out Curt's bawled orders. His eyes shone. His heart beat high.

Up the road was an old windmill. Curt headed for it, shinned up the derrick and swung the paddles to face the wind. Then he discovered that the pump coupling was broken. He shinned down, hunted for haywire, then shinned up again.

He spliced the coupling and the old machinery began to creak and groan. Down below water spurted from leaky valves, but a fair-sized stream gushed from the spout. Ole arrived with some buckets.

The two of them began to carry water down through the smoke to soak the grass that skirted the clubhouse park. Once the fire reached the dry trees it would sweep over the island.

Under his expert direction the fire-fighting went on with heroic success until the windmill's pump coupling broke again, this time beyond repair. Still roaring at the Swedes, Curt manned the hand pump, to fill their buckets and wet their sacks.

Still the fire crept on. Sparks flew against the brittle boards of the pumphouse and set it afire. Curt ripped the burning boards off barehanded, then manned the pump again.

The pump handle snapped from a vigorous yank of his brawny arms. He tore up the board covering of the well and bailed with a bucket attached to a rope of barbed wire. The barbs bit through the skin of his palms, but Curt kept on, and only swore harder at the Swedes.

They were beating the fire back, and then the well went dry!

Curt loaded the Swedes with two buckets apiece and started them on the run ahead of him. The battle went on. Curt gloried in it.

His knicker pants were scorched in five places, his hands were burned and bleeding, his white silk shirt was smudged and torn, and his crepe-soled shoes were burned to his ankles, but little did he care. He had Swedes to boss and a fire to fight!

THEN the country-clubbers appeared. Curt first realized that when he heard a familiar voice drawl:

"When I was traveling in Italy I witnessed a forest fire. It was on the Duke's estate. The Duke said to me, 'Val' "——

The rest of Val's story was muffled in a wet and muddy sack.

"Get after that there fire!" roared a voice with a commanding tone that was not to be denied. Val got.

Curt energetically forced the other country-clubbers into the fray. By his roared and profane directions groups of them were dispersed with wet gunny sacks along the fire line, and others were strung out in single file through the field of pea vines, and kept going with buckets of water.

The tennis stars, bridge sharks, hunters and the folk of the Little Art Theater carried on valiantly, once they had submitted to Curt's rule. The fire receded under the attack, leaving black, smoking patches along the hillside.

Four hours from the time he answered the call Curt and his men were beating out the last spark of the fire, 50 feet from the park. He was still the hero-leader, still hot and eager for battle.

"Go to your homes, men," he ordered. "I'll stand guard."

The country-clubbers and the Swedes needed no urging. One and all they dragged wearily away. When the last one was gone Curt relaxed and leaned against a tree.

He looked a wreck. His clothing was in scorched shreds. He had burns, blisters, cuts and scratches in 20 places. He was hungry and tired and incredibly dirty. But he was happy.

For half a day, at least, he had lived the old life . . . bossed Swedes . . . even made society lads perform like hard-bitten loggers . . . It was over now . . . yeah . . . back to the society life for him.

MOURNFULLY Curt Statler bowed his head. He was resigned. This morning he had lived his last high and mighty time.

"You poor darling," said a sweet voice. "See what I've brought you."

Curt looked up. There was Alice. She was wearing a white silk sports dress. Her eyes were blue. Her hair was golden. She was a vision. She lifted a thermos bottle in her dainty hand.

"See what I've brought you," she said again. "I'll show you that I know how to be a woods boss' wife."

"A woods boss' wife?" said Curt.

"Yes, darling. I called papa up last night and made him promise to let us move to one of his logging camps. You shall boss it, Curt, and I'll prove that I can make a good wife for a woods boss."

"Well, hell!" Curt's head was whirling.

"Now all is settled. Take what I brought you, dear."

Mechanically he took the thermos bottle and opened it. Water!

Water. All morning he had pumped it, baled it, carried it, soaked sacks with it, drenched himself in it. He had felt that he never even wanted to hear the word "water" again. But now it was nectar, for Alice had opened paradise before him.

Back to the tall timber! Back with a girl who wanted to prove herself a good woods boss' wife! So long, society! He drank.

The quart bottle was empty when he took it from his mouth. He bulged in his middle. He gurgled and sloshed inside. But he did not care. And neither did Alice care when he took her delicate hand in his begrimed paw.

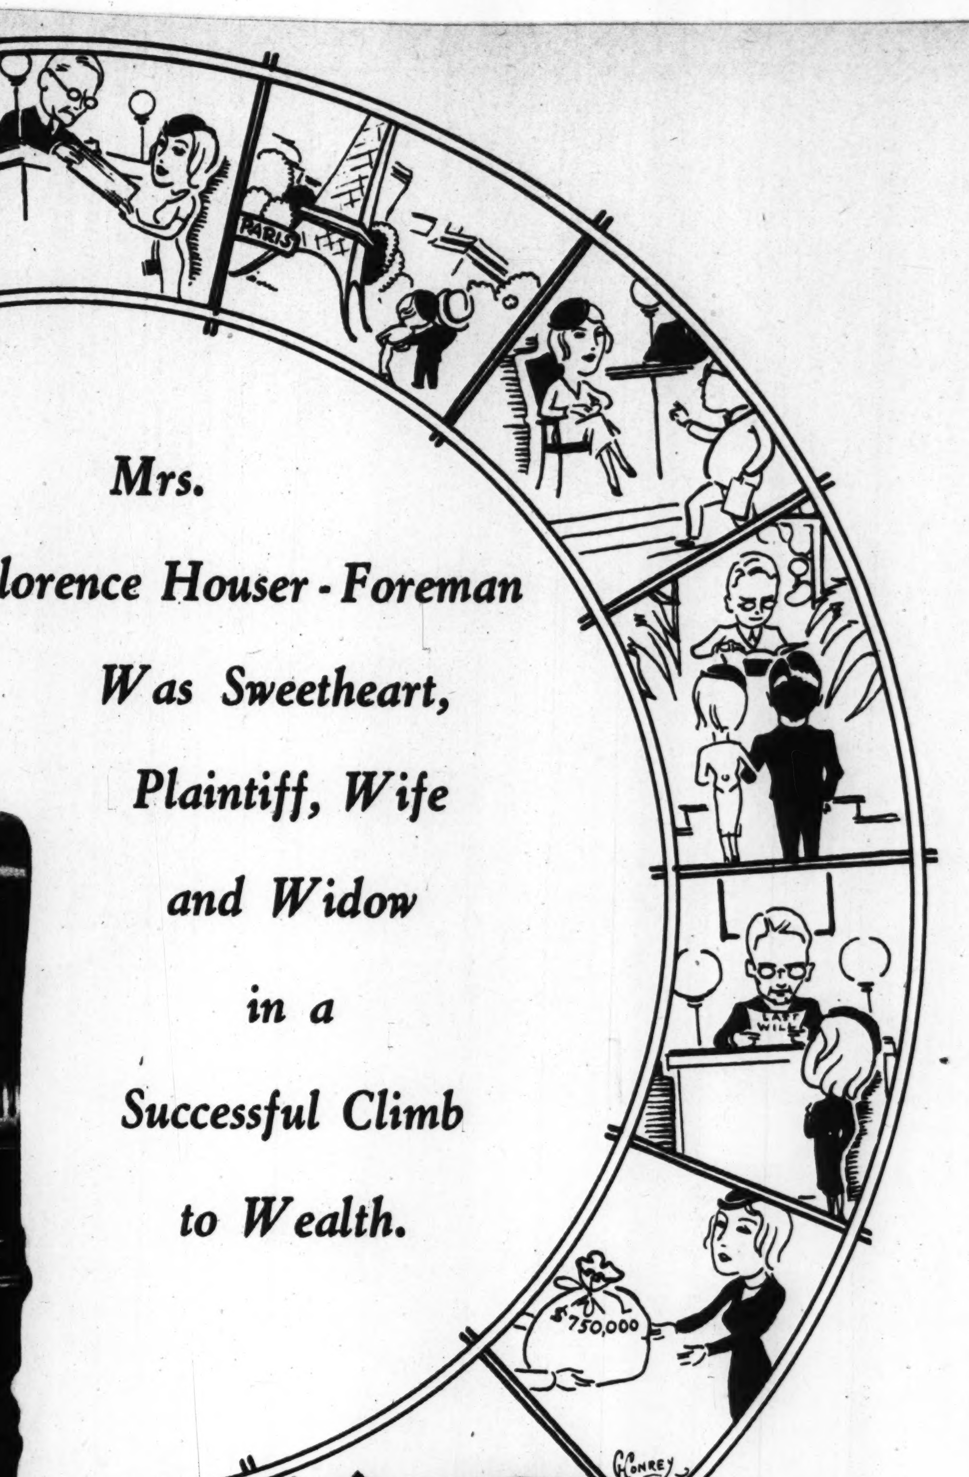
A Chance Train Meeting That Brought a Million Dollars

Mrs. Florence Jane Houser-Foreman.



Mrs. Florence Houser-Foreman Was Sweetheart, Plaintiff, Wife and Widow in a Successful Climb to Wealth.

NEW YORK.

A BLONDE screen actress with wide, far-seeing eyes just happened to come East on the same train with a 250-pound clothing store millionaire, and that started a train of events which, after 15 years, have just unwound.

Quite unsuspecting of the various roles she would play in this true life drama, Mrs. Florence Jane Houser-Foreman of New York boarded the Overland Limited in November of 1918 for New York. She was shaking the dust of Hollywood from her pretty kidskin slippers. Now, quite a lot of movies and novels have been written about the actions that can take place on a train, but the events that were in store for this cast of characters were so many and varied that it can only be described as another instance of where truth is stranger than fiction. As the train made its way eastward, the pretty blonde began her role of sweetheart, which was followed by that of co-respondent, injured collector of heart balm, divorcee from her first husband, bride, plaintiff in a divorce action of her own, disinherited widow with a red-hot lawsuit on her hands and, finally, wealth.

Aboard the train was Winfield A. Foreman, who was traveling with his wife, Rose. Anita Loos achieved something like immortality by making the observation that gentlemen prefer blondes. Well, Foreman showed he was a gentleman by immediately preferring blonde Flo. The fact that she was at that time the wife of Dr. Mortimer Houser bothered them little, if at all. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Rose Foreman said that even her own presence beside her husband didn't cramp Flo's style a bit.

Be that as it may, Foreman took one look at the pretty girl in the Pullman section, said something as weighty as, "It's a long ride, isn't it?" and things began to happen as the train sped on.

Exactly what happened was revealed several years later when Mrs. Rose Foreman got a divorce on the only ground that is recognized by every state in the Union. She charged that, "Shortly after the meeting of the defendant and the plaintiff in November, 1918, the plaintiff and the defendant began a relationship continuous in character. That for a period of at least four years prior to their marriage in 1925, plaintiff and defendant lived together at different places at different times."

When the train arrived in New York, that would ordinarily have been the end of the scenario, if it were a bona fide movie. But this was real life, and life goes on. So did the affair between Foreman and Flo. They continued seeing each other, made several trips to Europe together and even traveled all over the United States.

In 1919 Florence beat her husband to the divorce court, getting her freedom from Dr. Houser on the charge of cruel and inhuman treatment. Mrs. Foreman, however, wasn't quite ready to give up her husband, so, tired of waiting, Florence took action herself. She sued the millionaire for $150,000, alleging that he had promised to marry her and didn't. The suit was compromised for a mere $33,000.

Did that cool Foreman's ardor? It did not, for the next year he and Flo went to Europe, and they continued, according to the records, to be very friendly. Finally, Mrs. Rose Foreman said she could stand it no longer, and she sued for divorce, naming Flo as co-respondent. She got her decree in 1925, and a year later, on September 1, 1926, Mrs. Flo Houser became Mrs. Winfield A. Foreman.

Safely married, with a bunch of difficulties overcome before they finally reached the wedded state, they should have, according to all romantic fiction, settled down to live happily ever after.

ALAS, no sooner were they made one than they began to develop two sides to every question, each taking one, so that they were practically always in the middle of quarrels, just like any other pair of newlyweds.

Two and a half years later, they separated. Mrs. Foreman sued for separate maintenance, and was awarded $1250 a month to live on. But by that time Foreman was fighting mad. He contested the suit and her alimony was cut to $500 a month.

Flo, by this time, had attained a considerable familiarity with courtrooms, so she started another suit against her husband. She wanted a divorce, final and absolute, and in the meantime she proceeded to tell all and sundry what a big brute he was. She accused him of twisting her arm in a hotel lobby, scratching her face so that she had to wear a piece of courtplaster over her nose when she came to court, and also charged that her husband had never overcome his preference for blondes, even though he no longer preferred her, for, she contended, he was guilty of misconduct with another blonde. Right in the midst of the charges and counter-charges, Foreman died. Now, while Florence was still his legal wife, he had cut her off in his will with but a mere $50 a week for life. To this cruel turn of fate, the blonde girl of the Pullman flirtation responded with a barrage of lawsuits against the Foreman family and his estate.

Lawyer after lawyer--seven in all—told her she didn't have a chance, that her record was against her, but she kept on fighting. Surrogate O'Brien turned her down cold, and so did Surrogate Foley. But when the will finally came up for probate, Surrogate O'Brien reconsidered, and one of his last acts before becoming the Mayor of New York was to work out a compromise in the privacy of his chamber.

From those chambers all emerged with huge smiles. The family smiled because peace had been declared, the lawyers smiled because now they could proceed with other cases, O'Brien smiled because he'd proved himself a good referee, but Flo smiled most broadly of all, because she had received a settlement of $750,000. Today Mrs. Foreman is marking time and conserving her wealth, in total about $1,000,000. She recently announced that if nothing better offered she was going back to Hollywood.

Digging Up an Ancient Temple in Modern Rome

A Shrine That Was Built by Julius Caesar and Dedicated to Venus From Whom He Claimed Descent.

ROME.

IN 48 B. C. Julius Caesar decided to build a temple in honor of the goddess whom he chose to regard as an ancestress of his—Venus. The project could not be carried out immediately, for Caesar was then engaged in the final phase of his desperate struggle with his rival, Pompey. But as soon as he had ended the business on hand by defeating Pompey in the battle of Pharsalia and sending him fleeing to his death in Egypt, Caesar went back to Rome and set about erecting the temple, also the forum which was given his name.

More than 150 years later the temple was rebuilt, enlarged and enriched with new works of art. Centuries passed, and a few years ago only the tops of a few arches were visible above ground to mark the site of one of the Emperor's most ambitious building enterprises. Archeologists set to work to excavate these buried ruins and now have uncovered a large part of them, revealing a wealth of ancient Roman sculpture and architecture, examples of which are pictured on this page.

The original temple to Venus Genetrix, built by Caesar, was circular, and in the center was a statue of Venus with a Cupid perched on one shoulder. The statue was made by Arcesilaus, a Greek, who was a friend of Lucullus. There were in the temple a statue of Cleopatra and one of himself wearing armor. In front of the temple was a bronze equestrian statue of Caesar.

Trajan rebuilt the temple which Caesar dedicated to Venus, making it rectangular in shape and using a great deal of marble to replace humbler materials. The reconstructed building was completed in 113 A. D.

Marble columns and richly ornamented friezes, as well as statues, which have been exposed by the recent excavations attest the flourishing art of the period, despite the fact it is not considered quite equal in beauty to the products of the Augustan Age. The Corinthian columns and capitals apparently were inspired by those in the temple of Mars Ultor, and the floral designs by such ornamentation in the Ara Pacis. Throughout the temple the ornamentation is lavish. A lively feature of the decoration is the profusion of winged little boys in this shrine to the Goddess of Love.

Additional details of the forum in which the temple is situated have been brought to light recently. One is an arcade of shops. Another is the Basilica Argentaria, an exchange for bankers and money changers. A line of buildings on the Argentarian Hill also has been uncovered. Among the many inscriptions found in the forum are lines from Vergil's "Aeneid."

The excavation of the temple of Venus, described by records as one of the finest buildings of the ancient capital, was begun early this year after traces of it were disclosed in uncovering Caesar's Forum, which was on a higher level.

PRISONERS OF THE WAR GOD

This is a game that can be played by any child. All that is needed are scissors, paste and some cardboard. The directions for playing "Toy Talkies" are given at the bottom of the game.

THE PLAYERS

JOE BREEZE—A native of the void.
FALLING STAR—Another native.
KI YOODLE—Joe's fellow citizen.

(Joe Breeze and Falling Star enter.)

JOE BREEZE—Gosh, just look at those folks on Mars celebrating.

FALLING STAR—I suppose the god of war is coming home and bringing another trophy to put in their zoo.

JOE BREEZE—I wonder what it will be? Last time he came back with a dachshund.

FALLING STAR—I wonder? He has a British lion, a Russian bear and lot of other trophies. About the only one he hasn't got is an American eagle.

JOE BREEZE—Sh-h-h Here comes some people. They must be trophies. Let's leave before Mars comes. (Joe Breeze and Falling Star leave as Joe Eagle and Ki Yoodle enter.)

JOE EAGLE—(Yelling) Hey! Wait a minute. (Then lowering his voice.) I wonder why they are running away?

KI YOODLE—Oh, why didn't you go faster. How will we ever find out how to get back to earth now?

JOE EAGLE—Well, I don't think it would be a good idea to land on that planet and ask. It looks like they are having a war.

KI YOODLE—O-o-oh! L-look at this. (Mars enters.)

MARS—(Loudly.) Well, well, well. So you have come to pay old Mars a visit? Ha! ha! How nice of you.

KI YOODLE—Please, sir, we are from the earth and we have lost our way.

MARS—(Gruffly.) Lost your way, hey? I'm Mars. I just came from your earth and I'm bringing back this Chinese dragon. Every now and then I go to the earth and start a war, and I take the mascot of the nation that loses. I have never been able to get an American eagle. So come along, you are my prisoners. (They leave and Joe Breeze and Falling Star enter.)

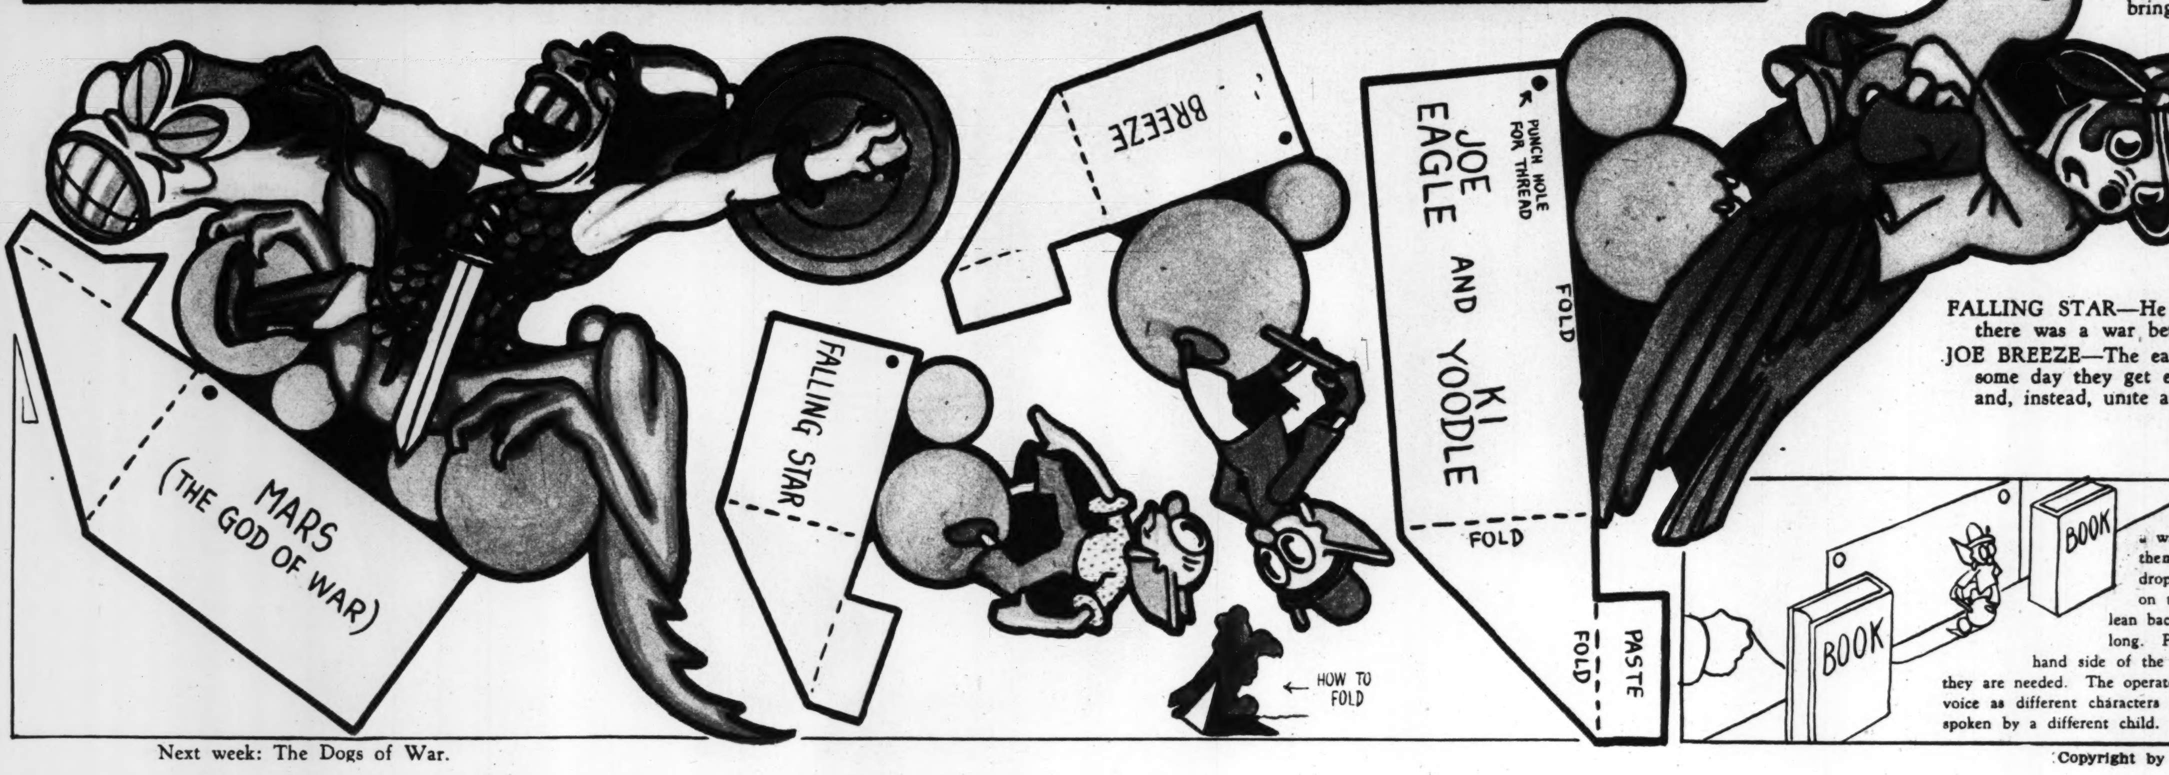
JOE BREEZE—Gosh, did you see what he had? The dragon must be from China and the eagle from America. But the pup, where can he be from?

FALLING STAR—He was dressed like a detective, so I guess there was a war between the detectives and the underworld.

JOE BREEZE—The earth must be a terrible place. I hope that some day they get enough sense to stop fighting one another and, instead, unite and fight Mars. (They leave.)

CURTAIN



Next week: The Dogs of War.

DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

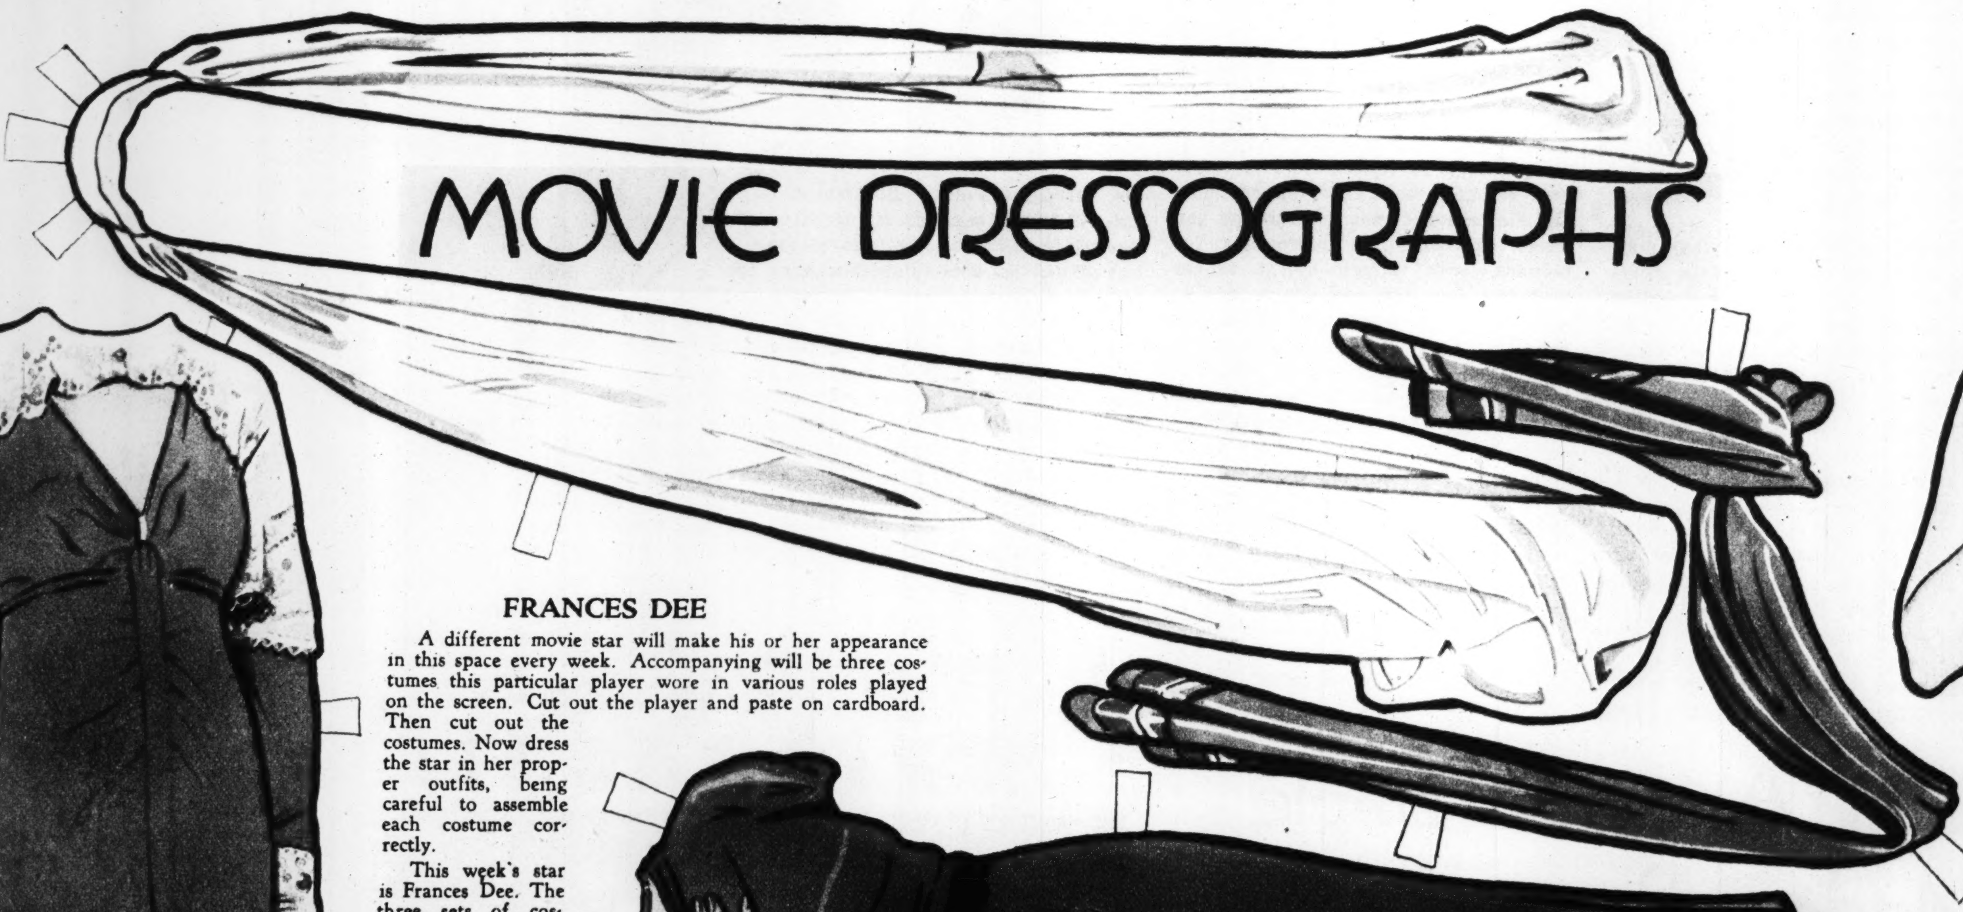
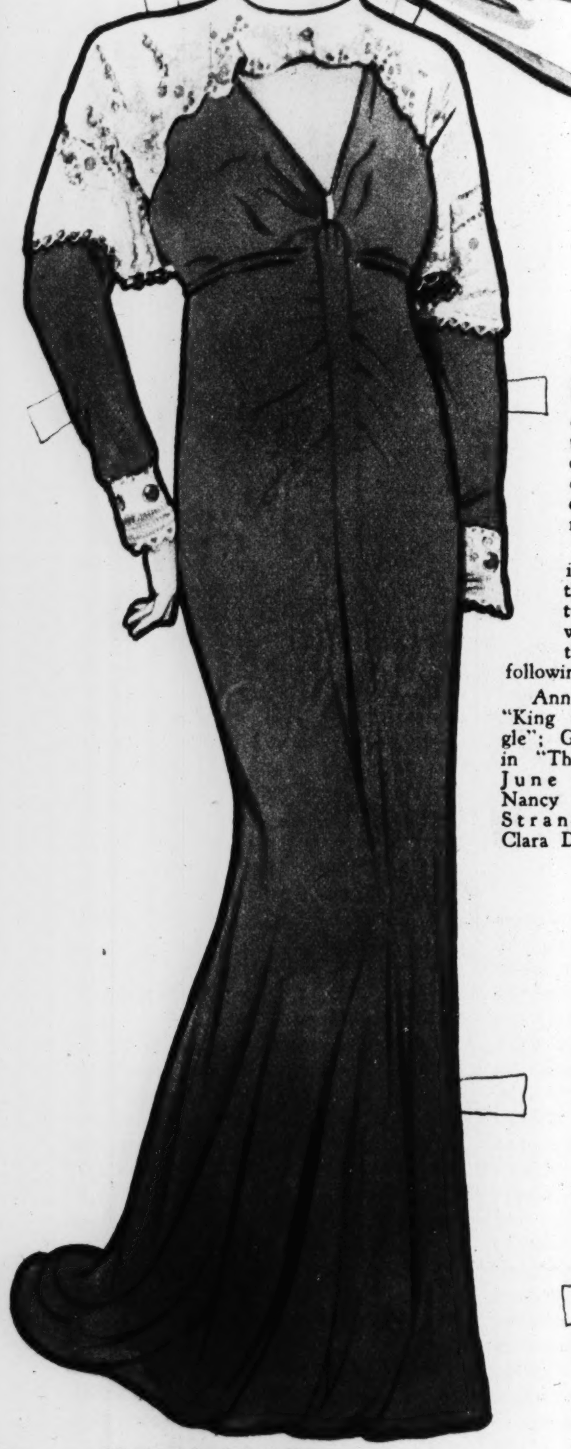
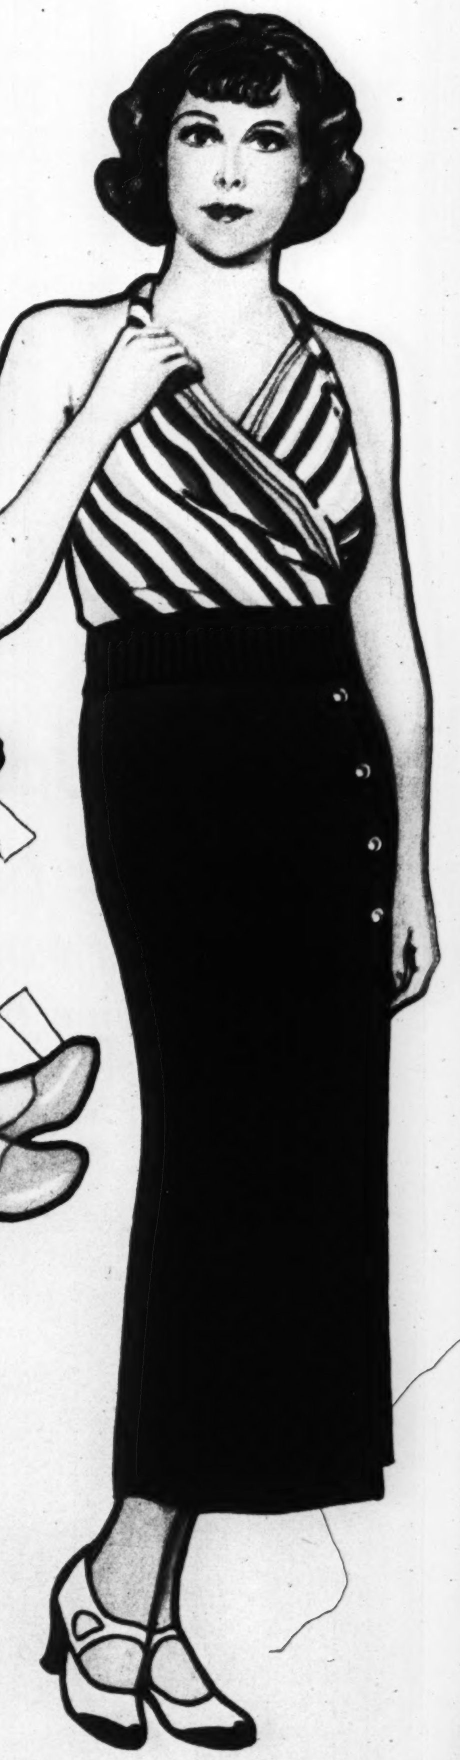
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS







FRANCES DEE

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in her proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

This week's star is Frances Dee. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by her in these roles in the following movies:

Next week: Lionel Barrymore.

MUNCIE, Indiana.

WHEN, year before last, the Rev. G. Lemuel Conway came here to preach there already was discord in the church, and there was bound to be more, for there were two choirs, and the preacher, in a way of speaking, had a choir of his own, his wife and six children, who were singers and musicians as well. The discord soon got worse. It began with a complaint that the preacher's family was doing all the singing. It culminated in charges by a young and pretty choir singer that the preacher had made love to her, which led in turn to the preacher knocking, or pushing, one of the choir leaders off the chancel at evening worship.

In the church trial that followed the preacher was found guilty of imprudent and unministerial conduct, imprudent in his bearing toward the pretty choir singer, if she was to be believed, and unministerial in manhandling the choir leader, but in the criminal trial on the charges made by the girl he was acquitted.

For his happy outcome in the court trial praise belongs to the coon hunters of the vicinity, who stood by him to a man, for he was one of them, a coon hunter of parts, high in their councils, and they had fellowshiped together in midnight forays, and it chanced that at the very hour when the choir singer said the preacher was making imprudent approaches, the coon hunters, Preacher Conway in their midst, were in session at Charley Williams' plumbing shop, planning the next hunt. It was an air-tight alibi.

THERE remains the charge of assault and battery on the choir leader, and there cannot be an alibi plea in that, but from all accounts it was only a technical knockout scored by the preacher on that occasion, and nothing much is expected to come of it. The preacher will appeal from the decision of the church trial, under which he was suspended for a year. If he is reinstated he will be transferred to some other church, for the Madison Street Church is split wide open and a new preacher is needed to patch it up.

When the Rev. G. Lemuel Conway was sent to shepherd the flock of 400 at Madison Street Methodist Church, he had won a reputation as a fighting parson. He was outspoken, energetic and aggressive. In his first sermon at Madison Street Church he sounded a militant keynote. He said he would rather lead than drive in the work of the church, but there was a hint that if he had to drive he would. He did suggest a way of harmony along which they might go together, but it was not a way of compromise. He announced that if any of the officers of the church found themselves out of step and wanted to quit, they would only have to say so and he would retire them to private membership. It did not take long for trouble to begin. Conway might have meant what he said in his first sermon about preferring to be a leader, but his was a driving leadership. Some of the members liked that and some didn't. Among those who didn't were the two choir leaders, Percy Kabrick, who directed the senior choir, and Willard Aurand, in charge of the junior choir. They formed a defensive alliance against what looked to them an invasion of their field by the preacher and his musical family. Preacher Conway was proud of his family—his wife, five daughters and one son—singers and players upon instruments, a family orchestra.

The singers in the preacher's family, it seems, did not lend themselves to assimilation in the existing choirs. The tension increased and the members of the Conway family finally withdrew from the choirs. Sometimes the choirs performed in the services and sometimes they did not.

Antagonism to the preacher increased. As last year's general conference approached a movement was started to prevent his return to the church for another year. There was a whispering campaign. One complaint was that the preacher was a coon hunter, a member in good standing of the Indiana Association of Coon Hunters, the principal speaker at the annual convention of the association. Coon hunting, it was admitted, was not an outlawed pastime, and good citizens had been known to engage in it, but it was, well, uncouth, and it was known that when coon hunters got together they were addicted to telling tall tales about the prowess of their dogs, and, altogether, it was no way for a preacher to do, rampaging through the creek bottoms at all hours of the night.

It came to a showdown in the official board of the church, whether the Bishop should be asked to return the pastor for another year. The board members voted, 17 to 14, to request that a new pastor be sent.

By that time, it seems, the district superintendent, the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Daugherty, had taken sides with the opposition. He had not, in the first place, recommended Conway, who had been pastor of a smaller church at Lapel, for assignment to the Muncie church, but the bishop had seen fit to disregard the district superintendent. Now, after a year, when there was dissension in the church and a majority of the official board opposed Conway's return, Dr. Daugherty threw the weight of his recommendation with the opposition. As an offset, however, there was a petition for Conway's return, signed by 265 persons. Some of the petitioners, it is said, were indifferent church members and a few were not members at all, but it was a rather formidable petition notwithstanding. The coon hunters, too, were strong for the return of Conway, for coon-hunting preachers are scarce and if a new pastor were sent he might look down on their noble sport. However, the Bishop saw fit to send Conway back.

IT WAS a church divided against itself to which Conway returned and as time passed the breach widened. The opposing faction tried a little game of freezeout. The preacher's salary had been cut $700 a year before conference, in the hope that he would welcome a transfer, but he had come back with the declaration that he would rather work for nothing a year than go away, and during the first part of the second year he was in a way taken at his word until, he says, his salary was $1000 in arrears.

It was a grave mischance, considering the strong factional feeling against him, that the minister, on the 29th day of last December, seeing Helen Huffman, pretty 18-year-old member of the junior choir at his church, on the street near her home, on her way up town to buy a jigsaw puzzle, invited her into his automobile and took her, as he says, to the business section. He may have felt that a man of his standing, 55 years old, the head of an interesting family, ran no risk in giving a lift to a member of his flock, even though she was young and pretty.

In a few days there were whisperings of a scandal affecting the pastor of Madison Street Methodist Church. It reached the ears of the leaders of the opposite and these felt it to be their duty to bring it to the attention of the district superintendent. The girl prepared a written statement upon which were later based charges against the minister, and was a witness against him in the church trial and the trial in Circuit Court on the criminal charge of attempted attack.

The girl's story was that the minister, instead of taking her directly to the business section, drove with her into the country and during the ride made advances which she repulsed.

There was a hearing before Dr. Daugherty and the testimony taken was referred to Bishop Edgar Blake.

At the church services the following Sunday morning Conway took occasion to say that the two choir leaders had been his worst persecutors and announced that as long as he was pastor he would not permit them to lead in the musical services. Neither of the leaders was present and there was no choir. Conway called for volunteers and members of the church occupied the choir loft and led the singing.

At the evening service that Sunday there was a full turnout of members of the junior choir. Preceding the opening of the service Choir Leader Aurand sat in a rear seat of the auditorium. Conway went to him and told him of the statement that he had made at the morning service.

"I hope, Willard, that you will not attempt to lead the singing," said Conway.

"I came here for that purpose," said Aurand, "and I am going to do it."

Conway started back to the pulpit. Aurand took a short cut and beat him there and took his position inside the chancel rail. He opened a song book and announced the number to be sung.

"Wait a minute," said the minister. "At the morning service I made a statement concerning the choir leaders. I have not changed my mind."

He turned to Aurand and asked him to leave. Aurand insisted that he was the duly elected chorister and was not subject to the minister's authority. Conway declared that he, as minister, had the exclusive right to preside at a worship service. He again asked Aurand to withdraw. Aurand again refused.

LEAVING the pulpit, Conway went to where Aurand was standing and took him by the arm. At least the preacher and his friends say that is all he did. Aurand says the preacher struck him. It is agreed that he was propelled down the three steps and careened against the piano. Whether he was pushed or stumbled is one of the things about which there is no concord of testimony.

When a formal church trial was later held, the expulsion of Aurand was adduced as an instance of unministerial conduct, and although the proceedings were secret, Conway says it was on that count rather than on the girl's story that he was suspended.

It was the bout, or tussle, or whatever it was, at the chancel rail that brought the troubles in the church to general public attention and it became known that Helen Huffman had made serious charges against the minister. Her story was told to the grand jury and there was a showing that Aurand had been gravely mistreated when he attempted to lead the singing, and indictments were returned on both charges.

The case based on Helen Huffman's charges came on first for trial. Every day for a week the courthouse was crowded to the doors and window sills. The preacher, accused, was backed by the portion of his former congregation that were still loyal to him. The prosecution, with Helen Huffman as its star witness, was backed by the opposition faction of the church.

IT was something that could have happened, what the girl said had happened, or it was something that might have been imagined. It was the girl's word against the man's word. Or, but for the coon hunters it would have come down to that. The coon hunters saved the day. Into court they came, Charley Williams and all, to the help of their friend, the coon-hunting preacher, who needed their help.

It was a case where time meant everything. There were about two hours that had to be accounted for. It was 2:30 by the clock when Helen Hufman left her home and started up town. It was 2:30 o'clock when Conway took his wife to a meeting of the Women's Service League and drove away. It was 4:30 when he called for her. The two hours that needed accounting for were accounted for by the coon hunters. Did they know where Preacher Conway was those two hours? Sure they did. He was down at Charley Williams' plumbing shop planning one more coon hunt. Charley remembered it and had a memo for fixing the faucet at the Reverend's house that proved it. Bill Ridgway remembered the day because they had only two more days on their hunting license and they had to hurry up or there wouldn't be any hunt. Jerry Keever and George Funkhouser and Carl Fortner, Bill Winters and Chester McLaughlin and half a dozen others. MORLAIX GOTHIC COURT

THE Morlaix Gothic Court is the seventeenth in a series of exhibits to be featured at the City Art Museum in Forest Park. Each display in this "Gallery of the Week" presentation will be reproduced in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine with an accompanying description of the exhibit by museum authorities.

The Morlaix Gothic Court derives its name from its most imposing feature, an oak staircase from Morlaix, Brittany, which is perhaps the finest complete unit of Gothic wooden architecture in the country today.

The staircases of Morlaix are unique and seemingly peculiar to the town, condensing into a single element the turret-inclosed spiral stone stairway and connecting galleries customarily found elsewhere. This feature, with its balconies of linen-fold paneling, was constructed probably about 1500. Subject to frequent attack from across the English Channel, the citizens of Morlaix sought protection within its walls, and building space was limited. In consequence, houses of four and five stories were developed. Access to rooms of the upper floors was provided by an open stair court, this court being used as entrance hall and living room. The weather was kept out by awnings or wooden shutters at the height of the roof, which were later replaced by glazed skylights. The staircase as the main feature of the house achieved a degree of elaboration usually reserved by the Breton for his church.

The richly carved newel post, some 38 feet high, is made of one piece of timber. High relief sculptures of St. Barbara, St. Catherine, the Virgin and the Christ within niches adorn its successive stages, and figures of St. Peter and other saints mark the junction of the balconies with the stair. The Gothic screen on the ground floor, with its beautiful traceried panels, adjoins a built-in Renaissance buffet of late sixteenth century design. The stairway has been reconstructed in a setting of half-timber work suggested by a drawing which has survived.

At the end of the court, opposite the stairway, an original late French Gothic doorway with an elaborate coat of arms from the church of Chefboutonne, Deux-Sevres, has been installed; also a stone window frame of the transitional style of the early sixteenth century from the region of Vendome. The entrance to Gallery 16 is formed by a late Gothic doorway, bearing a coat of arms on the lintel. Opposite this is a somewhat simpler but fine door of the late fifteenth century from the region of Cosne, Nievre. The court affords an appropriate setting for two early sixteenth century tapestries, one a "storied" tapestry of Flemish weave, the other a fine decorative mille fleur panel. The interesting doors and a fourteenth century oak chest are further specimens of Gothic woodwork.

What Music Is Accomplishing

tally, that we have more paying pupils now than we did before the depression.

The purpose of the community music schools is principally to enable their pupils to find self-expression in music as a leisure pursuit, an avocation. It is believed such training makes life broader and richer for the individual, and also that it improves his qualities as a citizen. Also it increases the number of persons in the city who can appreciate good music.

The development of professional musicians is not a primary object, but it is natural that the system, with its eager pupils and competent teachers, should produce some musicians who are able to market their skill. While the St. Louis organization has not been in existence long enough to have any artists of wide fame to its credit, a number of its proteges have made professional use of their ability. Perhaps the best known of these is Miss Nora Rife, harpist. She has played at many private entertainments and within the last year has been employed to play regularly at one of the churches. Certain members of the foundation, incidentally, helped her complete the payments on her harp. Another pupil, a woman whose two small daughters are studying piano in a settlement school, earns money by singing. Several other students have occasional paid engagements with bands and dance orchestras.

How a St. Louis Settlement Worker and the Venus de Milo Started America's Annual Clean-Up Campaigns

Allen W. Clark.

The civic betterment prize.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

IN THE midst of its annual spring clean-up campaign, St. Louis looks with satisfaction at the results achieved in this and other years and offers thanks to the Venus de Milo for the idea. If it doesn't thank Venus, it ought to, for a little white plaster statuette of the Venus de Milo was the inspiration behind this movement which, now sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and some 150,000 school children, engages the attention of the entire city every year, not to mention 7000 other cities of the United States in which an annual clean-up drive is a feature of civic betterment programs.

It all grew out of an incident in the life of a St. Louis settlement worker which was brought to the attention of another St. Louisan, the late Allen W. Clark, more than 21 years ago. Clark, who was a man of vision and energy, quickly saw in it a principle that could be applied on a big scale.

This settlement worker was having trouble with a family under her supervision in a squalid section of the city. These people lived in a dirty one-room tenement and remained unresponsive to all her entreaties that they clean up the place. Finally she purchased a miniature of the famous Venus statue and placed it in the home, hoping that the incongruity of its white beauty in the midst of squalor and filth might awaken her charges to the condition in which they were living.

To her great delight, she found, on visiting the family a few days later, the experiment had worked. Not only had the occupants tried to clean up the house. They had made a pathetic attempt to beautify it by bringing in a bunch of wilted cast-off flowers.

When Clark heard about this incident he set himself to thinking. If a little touch of beauty in the form of a white statuette could work such a transformation in a tenement home, he reasoned, why wouldn't a clean and attractive building do the same thing for a dingy and untidy community?

IT WOULD, he believed, and he worked out a plan for a city-wide campaign. Several others became interested, too, Henry W. Kiel among them. Kiel then had just become Mayor of St. Louis.

With Mayor Kiel lending his support and co-operation, the first clean-up campaign was launched in this city that same year. That was 1912, just 21 years ago. Results were encouraging, but interest in the project waned and the movement was not revived until 1915. Its success led to its repetition in 1916 and 1917. Then came another interruption due to this country's participation in the World War. Since 1921, it has been held with more or less irregularity, but other cities in all parts of the United States have adopted the idea so that it is now more a national undertaking than a local one.

With resumption of activities after the war, requests for information and advice came in so rapidly that Clark was forced to open a national service bureau to handle communications. Subsequently this bureau was moved to New York and then to Washington where it is now the fountain head for campaigns throughout the country.

Last year the St. Louis campaign was the most extensive made up to that time. The Chamber of Commerce and all schools, public, parochial and Lutheran, co-operated in a two-weeks' intensive drive to rid the city of dirt and rubbish and to induce property owners to repair and paint their buildings. The schools taking part in the work competed for a trophy—the Allen W. Clark Civic Betterment Trophy donated by Mrs. Helen A. Clark to perpetuate the ideals of her husband and to engender in the young citizens of St. Louis a desire for a cleaner and more healthful community. The trophy is now offered annually to the school with the best record of accomplishment. The Rose Fanning School won it last year with a record of 23,355 odd jobs completed, or more than 23 to each pupil, a record which surpassed the mark of the next contestant, the Harrison School, my more than 5000. The Horace Mann School took third place.

This year's campaign which still has a week to run promises to be quite as active and as productive of results as was last year's drive which produced a total of 516,899 jobs. More than 150,000 school children are hard at work, acting as a militant army in enlisting the interest and aid of householders.

Each school has been assigned to a specific district, and the pupils are visiting all the property owners and tenants twice. Last week they made their first calls with suggestions for cleaning up and beautifying the premises. This week they will call again and will report on the results of their efforts. The school which gets the largest number of odd jobs done will receive the Clark trophy, which will become the permanent possession of the school winning it three times.

Efforts to obtain the co-operation of business men in the downtown district are being made by the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, which has also provided most of the speakers who have talked over the radio and before various groups to emphasize the importance of the drive. P. C. Frayser is chairman of the general clean-up campaign committee. Julius Seidel is vice-chairman and George H. Priest Jr. is treasurer.

It is still a bit early to report on accomplishments of this year, but records of last year's drive may be taken as indicative of what may be expected.

The reports last year showed that 40,130 lots and yards, 22,557 basements, 7732 attics and 9925 furnaces were cleaned during the campaign.

PAINTING jobs completed included 7642 houses, 14,772 walls, 14,572 floors, 12,822 woodwork units, 10.962 porches and stairs, 8201 fences, 4309 outbuildings, 26,921 screens and 5018 roofs. In addition, 15,977 walls were painted or kalsomined and 25,632 walls were cleaned.

A total of 13,424 flower boxes, 20,709 flower gardens, 11,140 vegetable gardens, 19,407 grass plots, 12,096 trees and 12,665 shrubs were planted during the two weeks' drive. Other jobs completed included the burning of 14,277 rubbish piles and the repair of 9360 fences, repair of 7484 porches and steps, repair of 5143 roofs and 14,268 screens.

Thousands of breeding places for disease were eliminated and hundreds of rats and other pests exterminated. Old newspapers, magazines and junk sold during the drive netted a total of $3472.

The History of Moll's

In 1858 two young men . . . Adolph Moll and Henry Heidsieck . . . entered the grocery business in St. Louis, under the name of Heidsieck & Moll. Their store, called the Frontier Trading Post, was a small log cabin on Market between Second and Third.

About a year later demands of the rapidly increasing business made larger quarters necessary, and a move was made to a much more spacious store. Soon, this, too, became inadequate and again a larger home was secured.

In the fall of 1863 Mr. Heidsieck retired from the business and since that day the House of Moll has ever been under the sole guidance of a Moll, rigidly trained to his task and imbued with the ideals of its founder.

Today, in its modern, spacious home at Delmar at De Baliviere, as in the beginning, Moll's is the Mecca of discriminating housewives who demand highest quality foods at saving prices.

"If it comes from Moll's, it's the best!"

A Fine Thing

Every housewife has long felt the need of something to really clean and renew her window shades and walls. ABSORENE, manufactured in St. Louis, is designed and marketed solely for this purpose . . . a wonder worker indeed.

It is expensive to have shades cleaned every few months; yet if this is not done, they collect dust and grime despite the most careful housewifery. This is a constant source of air contamination, especially if there has been illness in the home; also, plainly visible, soiled shades are a continual source of worry. Absorene solves this problem quickly and efficiently.

It also is one of the finest, most economical cleaners of wall papers and is a magic aid to the homemaker in many other ways. Ask for it by name at your department, paint, drug, hardware or grocery store.

Milk a Complete Food

Save the caps from Lange's Inspected Milk, Cream or Buttermilk. Exchange them for Eagle Stamps and "Save as You Spend"—1 stamp for each cap.

The body requires certain elements to keep it functioning normally. In planning daily menus, therefore, the housewife must aim for a balanced diet . . . one that will produce energy and provide those vitally essential vitamins. Milk is the one food that is complete in itself. It is easily obtained, inexpensive and ready to be absorbed into the system without cooking or other preparation unless desired.

Lange's is the answer to all milk problems. Inspected herds, well kept farms, constant laboratory tests, insure Lange quality . . . milk and cream with all the rich, health-giving elements, ready to serve as it comes from the bottles, or to be converted into the almost unlimited number of dishes that require these ingredients.

Ask for Lange's INSPECTED MILK at your neighborhood store; if his supply is exhausted phone the Lange Milk Co., FRanklin 5640, for the address of another nearby dealer.

Eat More Fish

Today's housewife should know how to select a fresh fish. The Meletio Sea Food Co., Broadway at Franklin, and The Food Mart, Sixth and Lucas, tells how:

The flesh should be firm and the eyes and gills should be bright.

Broiling, boiling, baking, planking and frying are the best methods of cooking. White fish may be fried, but rarely, if ever, fry an oily fish. When frozen fish is used, it should be thawed in cold water just before cooking. Fish should never be put in the refrigerator with other food unless closely covered.

Depend upon these modern markets to supply you with every seasonable variety of fresh and salt water sea food daily, and . . . EAT MORE FISH!

MOLL'S QUICK MUFFINS

Mix and sift 1¾ cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1½ tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon salt. Add gradually ¾ cup Lange's Inspected Milk, 1 well-beaten egg and 2 tablespoons melted butter. Beat well and bake in buttered muffin pans 20 minutes in oven at 400 degrees.

It is a larger, better loaf . . . the best bread on the market today . . . endorsed by Good Housekeeping Institute . . . and guaranteed to be fresh and satisfactory in every respect or your money back.

Make Cleaning Easy With Durlacque

Durlacque is everything that a perfect cleaner should be. It cleans absolutely . . . is antiseptic and odorless. Contains no lye, sal soda, caustic or oxalic acid . . . a triumph of modern chemistry that puts cleaning on a scientific basis.

Use it for everything in your home . . . cooking utensils, refrigerators, glassware, floors, paint, windows, furniture, rugs, carpets, for grease spots, stains, silks and laces . . . it is positively harmless.

Housewives like Durlacque because it cleans everything better, quicker and at less cost. The contents of one package will make 12 gallons of cleaner.

Ask your grocer for a package tomorrow and follow the simple, easy directions for all your cleaning needs.

Use Cream in Coffee?

Then especially you will be delighted with the mellow smoothness of FORBES CULTURE RIPENED COFFEE! Cream blends with this coffee as it does with a ripe peach . . . for the same reason Ripening takes away the harsh acid, and with no acid to affect it, the flavor is like "Old Java" of years ago. In those days the green coffee lay in wooden ships for months while they sailed from the East Indies around the Cape to far away parts, and each bean became treated with a natural culture which caused the coffee to become entirely ripened, taking from it all the harsh acids.

But this natural ripening vanished when fast steel ships carried coffee over canal-shortened routes. Now Forbes has brought back that fine old Java flavor by duplicating the conditions of old sail-ships . . . forming the same "culture" to make coffee ripe when roasted. The flavor that first made coffee the favorite drink is yours in Forbes Culture Ripened. Ask for it by name at your grocer's.

Advantages of Elco Canned Foods

Dr. Walter H. Eddy, prominent food authority of Columbia University, is just one of the many food scientists who have put their stamp of approval on canned foods. And well they may, for commercial canners have resources and advantages that insure the finest products.

This is particularly true in the case of ELCO CANNED FOODS, distributed by the L. Cohen Grocer Co., an organization with many years of practical grocery experience . . . a background that assures the same high quality in every can bearing this brand.

To bring you the vegetables and fruits you want throughout the year, they draw from thousands of acres. By scientific farming, study of the soil and continuous care, flavor is "built in" before the canning process starts.

Keep a supply of Elco foods available at all times . . . your independent grocer has them.

Magic Washer Meets Requirements of Modern Homemaker

An immaculate home with a minimum of labor is the aim of the modern homemaker, and thanks to the efforts of the Iowa Soap Company, this has been made possible. Every homemaker should know about Magic Washer which this firm has developed. It meets every requirement . . . at such small cost.

Magic Washer is a pure, modern powdered soap. Its action is efficient, yet so mild and gentle that it is harmless to the most delicate fabrics. It absorbs grease and dirt.

Dishwashing with Magic Washer is done in half the time, the dishes are sparklingly clean and free from soap film, the hands are soft and unharmed.

For every cleaning purpose about the house . . . in the laundry . . . for walls and woodwork . . . floors . . . wherever there is need of soap and water . . . use Magic Washer.

Griesedieck Family in Business over 150 Years

When the Falstaff Brewing Corp., 3684 Forest Park boulevard, started selling real beer again on April 7, it marked more than 150 years in the brewing business for the Griesedieck family.

It was more than a century and a half ago when Herr Johan Henrich Griesedieck started a little brewery in Stromberg, Germany. Today, at the Falstaff brewery, Joseph Griesedieck and his son, Alvin, are carrying on the brewing business for the fifth and sixth generations. The elder Griesedieck is president of the corporation and his son is vice-president and general manager.

Silky Softness

CUPPLES HOSPITAL TISSUE is a cool, soft, absorbent paper, meeting the strictest laboratory standards . . . a revelation in fluffy gentleness.

Cupples Hospital Soft Absorbent Tissue especially appeals to those who appreciate the harm that can result from the use of an inferior and harsh bathroom tissue.

Grocery, drug and department stores carry this brand . . . 1000 sheets in a sanitary wrapper . . . ask for it by name.

Stronger Than Glue, Waterproof, Too

In it are combined all the adhesive properties of ordinary glues, pastes and cements, but STRONGER in its "sticky and strength-holding properties."

It mends and repairs everything for the home, garage, office, shop, factory . . . has a thousand uses.

Buy a bottle and keep it for an emergency.

Meat Specialists

Present day standards are so high and public demands so exacting that mediocrity falls by the wayside. Particularly is this true of the housewife's requirements for her table.

HUNTER HAMS, sugar-cured, hickory-smoked, prepared by the Hunter Packing Co., are the finished creations of experts who give their personal attention to supplying the public with only best quality meats. This aim was set when the company was established and has been the standard ever since.

Hunter hams and bacon are famous for their mild, distinctive flavor and superior tenderness. From selection of the live animals through every step of preparation, exacting care insures their unsurpassed excellence.

An Attractive Kitchen

Too much stress cannot be placed on the proper treatment of walls, floors and woodwork of the modern kitchen.

To the average housewife the suggestion of color and use of a proper finish may only be an incident, but where the treatment of the kitchen is a problem, as in an army base as that of the U. S. army in Panama, standardization is necessary, and that standardization is on Steelcote Rubber Enamel.

The color treatment of the kitchen shown here may be carried out in Steelcote Rubber Enamel; walls and floor white, trim, old rose; table, orchid.

Steelcote products are made in St. Louis, and may be obtained from conveniently located neighborhood stores bearing the Steelcote Paint Stores sign, or from hardware, paint and accessory stores everywhere.

Discovered! A Rapid Way to Build Child's Weight

At the Rate of a Pound a Week or More

How a Delicious Food-Drink from Switzerland Scientifically Corrects Underweight and Curbs Nervous Traits as Much as 30% in 2 Weeks' Time, by Actual Clinical Tests

Mother:—Accept A Trial Supply Note Coupon Below

Now—these last few weeks of winter when health-hazards are on the increase—watch your child's weight especially! Make sure that he's building normally—and maintaining the vitality that's needed to combat the ills so prevalent at this season.

A remarkable discovery from Switzerland will help you do this in a most effective way. A delicious food concentrate that has attracted world-wide attention for its power to build up underweight children at the rate of a pound a week or more—while also building vitality and curbing nervousness to a decidedly marked degree.

How It Builds Weight

This unique food creation is called Ovaltine. You simply give it mixed with milk and it acts 2 ways to bring a child rapidly up to par and then to keep him there.

First: In addition to providing concentrated nourishment in itself, Ovaltine contains a remarkable food property called diastase—a property that has long been recognized for its power to digest the starch content of other foods regularly taken into the stomach. Thus allowing a child to get a higher ratio of nutriment from bread, potatoes, cereals and other starchy foods that comprise over 60% of the average child's diet.

Second: Ovaltine not only aids a child's digestion, but also has the power to speed up the process so that the stomach may be emptied sooner. This in turn makes a child hungry. For hunger is a sensation caused by the walls of an empty stomach drawing together.

Thus when a child takes Ovaltine his appetite is not only stimulated so that he eats more—but he is also able to derive more real nourishment from every meal that's set before him. With the result that weight frequently increases at the rate of a pound or more each week!

Curbing Nervousness

As weight increases, nervousness, too, is usually curbed to a decidedly marked degree. For specialists have long observed that nervousness and underweight usually go hand in hand.

In a series of recent tests conducted by an Eastern University scientist, children taking Ovaltine showed an average decrease in nervousness of 30% in 2 weeks. While in many cases, nervous traits—as measured by the Olson-University of Minnesota checking system—diminished as much as 18% in a single week. Thus breaking up the "vicious circle" that nervousness and underweight always tend to create.

See For Yourself

Discount, if you wish, the results ascribed to Ovaltine in the remarkable tests above. Disregard the fact that this remarkable building-food is approved by over 20,000 physicians and child specialists. But for the sake of your child, try it.

Give Ovaltine mixed with warm milk at breakfast always. At meals and as frequently as you wish between meals. You can get it at any drug or grocery store. It is economical to serve. It is all food concentrate. You add your own sugar to taste when you mix it. So do not be misled if you are offered a sugar-laden chocolate mixture substitute in place of genuine Ovaltine.

NOTE: Thousands of nervous people, men and women, are using Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. During the World War, medical authorities made it a standard ration for rebuilding shell-shocked, nerve-shattered soldiers. It is also highly recommended by physicians for sleeplessness—and as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged.

OH OH! THERE'S MY DOORBELL!
WELL LET HIM RING. HE'S PROBABLY COLLECTING ON SOME NEW ACCOUNT AND THERE'S NO USE IN SPOILING HIM BY PAYING THE FIRST TIME HE CALLS.
HEAR HIM TEARING AWAY AT THAT BELL. HE PROBABLY GOT A GLIMPSE OF ME AT THE WINDOW. LISTEN TO THAT BELL. HO-HUM! HE'S.....
OH HELLO KID! THANKS FOR HOLLERING TO ME TO COME IN. NICE WEATHER, ISN'T IT? HOW'S THE FOLKS? AND YOU?

TAKE ANOTHER LOOK. WAIT, I'LL REMOVE THE MUSTACHE. KNOW ME NOW? REMEMBER, WE MET A FEW YEARS AGO WHEN I WAS COLLECTING FOR YOUR PHONOGRAPH? REMEMBER?
YES I KNOW YOU NOW. AND I REMEMBER THAT WE HAD A LOT OF TROUBLE ABOUT THAT PHONOGRAPH OVER YOU USING ROUGH STUFF LIKE THAT TRICK MUSTACHE. WHAT ARE YOU COLLECTING FOR NOW?
WELL BROTHER BUNGLE IT MIGHT BE THE RADIO.
AH, FINE! IT'S NO GOOD! IT NEVER WORKED RIGHT. IT SOUNDS LIKE A COFFEE GRINDER. AND IT ISN'T MY FAULT, BECAUSE I DON'T HAVE ANY TROUBLE WITH ANYTHING ELSE I'M BUYING ON TIME.
I SAID, BROTHER BUNGLE, THAT IT MIGHT BE THE RADIO. AS A MATTER OF FACT I'M COLLECTING ON THE VACUUM CLEANER, WHICH YOU JUST ADMITTED RUNS LIKE A TOP.
THE VACUUM CLEANER! LET ME THINK..? HOW MUCH DO I OWE ?..NOT MUCH, I KNOW. HOW MUCH IS IT AND WHAT WILL YOU KNOCK OFF FOR CASH RIGHT NOW?
WELL LET ME SEE . YOU OWE ME $4.50 BUT FOR CASH I'LL CUT THAT IN HALF IF THE OFFICE WILL ACCEPT IT. MAY I USE YOUR PHONE BROTHER BUNGLE?
THAT OLD STUFF OF HOLDING HIS FINGER ON THE HOOK AND "TALKING" TO HEADQUARTERS. WELL I REMEMBER THAT HE ALWAYS WAS ABOVE THE AVERAGE IN COLLECTOR'S TRICKS. I'M LUCKY I GOT HIM TO COME DOWN SO EASILY LISTEN TO . HIM PUTTING ON THIS ACT.
HELLO...OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT?....THIS IS NEMESIS SPEAKING.. ABOUT THAT BUNGLE ACCOUNT. IT'S $4.50. WILL YOU, CHIEF, AS A SPECIAL FAVOR TO ME, ALLOW ME TO ACCEPT $2.25? PLEASE! OH PLEASE! OH CHIEF I BEG... O.K!
WELL YOU HOOKED ME AGAIN, KID. I REALIZE NOW THAT $2.25 WAS MUCH TOO LOW AS A SETTLEMENT BUT WHAT WE LOSE ON ONE ACCOUNT WE MAKE UP ON ANOTHER. YOU ADMIT YOU WERE TOUGH DON'T YOU?
WELL TO TELL YOU THE TRUTH I WOULD HAVE SETTLED FOR $3.00 BUT I CHARGED YOU 75¢ FOR WEARING THAT MUSTACHE SO LONG. BETTER LUCK AT THE NEXT STOP.
WELL THAT WAS AN EASY WAY TO PICK UP $2.25. I KNOW COLLECTORS. ESPECIALLY THAT BABY. HE'S ALWAYS TOUGH. HE...I WONDER IF HE HOOKED ME AGAIN? HE LEFT HERE SMILING.
LET ME THINK..? HOW MUCH DID I OWE ON THAT VACUUM CLEANER? WHY NOW THAT I THINK, IT WASN'T ANYTHING LIKE $4.50. IT WAS.. IT WAS $2.25! EXACTLY WHAT I GAVE HIM. THAT PHONY! I'LL...
